'Waist-High' Soybeans Create Award Opportunity For Berks Farmer

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

BARTO (Berks Co.) — Late in July last year, cash cropper Wilson R. Hoffman inspected his fields and noticed the "waist-high" canopy of soybeans. Then he read a notice for a soybean yield contest in Lancaster Farming. Almost immediately, he decided to sign up.

The decision to compete against 16 others in the first Pennsylvania Soybean Promotion Board Yield Contest garnered him first place for a three-acre plot, netting a 74.8 bushels per acre yield using Dekalb CX415.

But mostly, it wasn't just to see if he can win the award. "It was not something I was really trying to win," he said. "I mean, it doesn't pay to go overboard and spend all kinds of money just so you can win an award."

Hoffman said that "economics" are vital in managing soybean yields — to achieve the highest yield at the least cost. But what farmers often overlook, and what is extremely important to the Berks County soybean grower, is the benefits of using the contest to promote soybean marketing.

According to the state Soybean Promotion Board, the contest was established last year to demonstrate the practices necessary to produce maximum economic yields and to encourage the production of high-quality soybeans, according to John Yocum, manager of the Penn State Landisville Research Farm and contest coordinator.

Participants are restricted to nonirrigated soybeans only, but not to the variety, fertilizer, spacing, or other cultural practices, according to Yocum.

Hoffman uses a combination of tillage practices, including about 75 percent minimum tillage (chisel plow and disc) and 25 percent no-till. He said he waits until the soil is dry enough before going into the fields to prevent compaction. The soil is Steinsburg loam, including a silt loam and Norton gravelly loam.

Hoffman's used a preemergent herbicide, Squadron, at 2 pints per acre, incorporated with a cultipacker. He also used a starter fertilizer, a 3-9-12 liquid, before planting, according to soil test recommendations. No lime was applied.

The state winning yield was planted May 6 in 7-inch rows with a powder inoculant. Seed density was about 180,000 per acre. The plants per acre at harvest was about 160,000. Total soybean acreage averaged about 64 bushels per acre.

For weed control, the preemergent application of Squadron proved best at taking care of an assortment of problem grasses and pigweeds in addition to velvetleaf and some lambsquarter.

One of the reasons Hoffman uses minimum tillage, he said, is because he gets better control of weeds with less expense over no-till.

"I had no idea I'd really be close to the top for yields," said Hoffman.

He said there are many good farmers who have field and soil conditions that were right and could experience similar or even higher yields.

This year, "the Good Lord allowed enough rain and good weather," said Hoffman, to grow the soybeans. While much of the southeastern portion of the state was subjected to drought stress, the Berks/Montgomery County region had enough rain to carry the crop.

"It's really an honor to be the first in the state," he said.

Hoffman, who went into farming after a career as a Philadelphia Suburban Water Company utility maintenance worker until the mid-1970s, attributes much of the success he's had with growing crops to his father, Chester, a dairyman. "He played a big part in

Strong Families Become Involved In Community

ROBESONIA (Berks Co.) — With nine children and 17 grandchildren, Dorothy Stricker knows a lot about family living. She places value on the importance of family for happiness, for making the world a better place, and for enduring relationships.

It's her strong belief in the importance of family that influenced Dorothy, as president of the state Society of Farm Women, to chose the theme "Strengthen Your Family," on which the 3,148 members will focus their energies during the first of her three-year term.

Dottie, as she prefers to be called, is full of ideas to strenghten families. But those who know her best realize that she is not merely an idea person. She is an action person — one who works diligently behind the scenes because she sees needs.

Experts: Pasturing Is Agronomic Art

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pasturing has been given a lot of attention in the past several years, and testimony has held that it can help the family farmer survive, but from the latest accounts of the practice, it's not merely a matter of opening the gate to livestock to graze a parcel of land otherwise unsuitable for crop production.

According to reports from experts at Penn State University and with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, pasturing, as a field of

RANDY WELLS
Indiana Co. Correspondent

INDIANA (Indiana Co.) — Each day thousands of people, including young children and senior citizens, go to work at the most dangerous job site in Pennsylvania — the family farm.

Indiana County dairy farmer Dan Griffith knows the dangers firsthand. He's suffered a hyperextended knee and the expected cuts and bruises from working every day around big equipment and big animals.

Once he thought he had pesticide poisoning.

For the past 13 years, Dan and his wife, Leanne, have been working to make farms a safer place — especially for children. And their safety tips are now spreading statewide.

"Farming is the most dangerous occupation in the state of Pennsylvania," Leanne said. "Coal mining is second. None of us would consider sending a child into a deep mine, but farm families daily send their children out to help with the farm work, more often than not because of economic necessity."

In his family's videotaped testimony, 5-year-old Christopher Griffith demonstrates how a child can be suffocated in a gravity box wagon.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer Market

Wednesday, March 23, 1994

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was slow to fair and insufficient to clear current offerings. Live supplies were moderate to heavy. Weights were mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules remained very heavy; however, several plants were planning reduced operations in advance of the upcoming Easter holiday. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 51 to 63 cents, but most sellers were willing to negotiate to stimulate additional movement. Trade sentiment was weak. In the parts complex, supplies were generally noted as fully adequate or available, and slow in clearing.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, March 23, 1994

Trucklot buying interest was irregular and ranged very light to fair. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts with tenders were at least adequate.

Most trading was reported at prices that reflect a little weakness with buyers trying to talk the market lower for late week. However, the trade sentiment is generally steady. Line run breasts are ample to burdensome. New trades were at lower prices and additional product was offered. Buyers were in the market looking for product to ship early next week. Dark meat items were available and slow to clear but prices were unchanged. Wings were in fairly good shape but demand was light.

PRICES PAID PER POUND, ICE PACKED AND CO2 PACKED BROILER/FRYER PARTS, DELIVERED TO FIRST RECEIVERS IN POOL TRUCKLOT AND TRUCKLOT QUANTITIES. National Egg Market

Wednesday, March 23, 1994

NATIONAL EGG MARKET-AT A GLANCE: Prices were unchanged. The market tone was mostly steady. Demand was fair to good, with holiday purchasing improved or expected to improve at the end of the week. Supplies were adequate to ample or available, and heavy floor stocks were maintained for the holidays. Breaking stock prices trended lower in the Central States region, and supplies were adequate for the unaggressive demand. Light type hen supplies were adequate to ample for the light to moderate demand, and the trade sentiment was steady at best.

Eastern PA & NJ Poultry Report

New York & Philadelphia Egg Report

Tuesday, March 22, 1994

Prices were unchanged. Trade sentiment, though cautious, was improving. Trading activity was light with most sellers asking more for finished product as costs continue to rise. Raw materials were confidently held. Most breakers continued to operate limited schedules. Floor stocks were usually more than sufficient for current buyer interest.

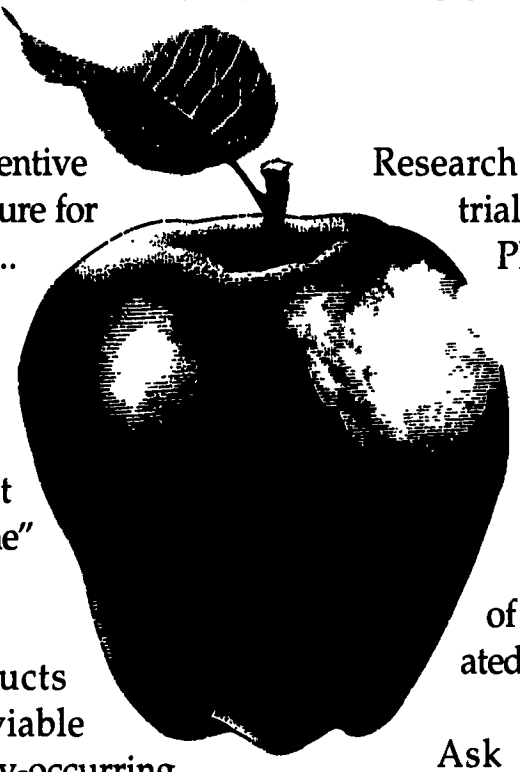
SPECIAL DAIRY SALE MARCH 31 AT 1:30 P.M.

Think of it as "an apple a day" for cows and calves



Experts say "preventive medicine" IS the future for the dairy industry... and dairymen across the country say the line of PROBIOS® brand Microbial Products is the best "preventive medicine" of today.

Research and performance trials have shown that PROBIOS Microbial Products may:

- ◆ Stimulate appetite in freshening cows
- ◆ Reduce incidence of scours and associated treatment costs

PROBIOS Products contain selected, viable cultures of naturally-occurring lactic acid-producing bacteria... micro-organisms known for their beneficial activity in the digestive tract of animals. These bacteria are essential for proper digestive tract function and lead to better performance.

Ask about PROBIOS Products and start a prevention program for pennies a day.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

MARCH 28-APRIL 3, 1994

ALL FOOLS DAY, APRIL 1.

SPRING FORWARD AND FALL BACK

Each year we hear the same questions When do we change the clocks, and which way do we move them? Daylight Saving Time begins the first Sunday in April and ends the last Sunday in October We move the clocks ahead one hour in the spring and back one hour in the fall, hence the popular adage, "Spring forward and fall back " The official time of the change is always 2 A M Ben Franklin is credited with first suggesting the idea in a 1784 essay, but it was not implemented until this century During times of crisis and war, many countries use year-round deviations from standard time Nowadays, adjusting clock time to take advantage of summertime daylight hours is common throughout the world.

Counting time is not so important as making time count.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ A mixture of equal parts vinegar and baking soda makes a great metal polish. Apply with a clean, soft cloth.

EARTHWISE

Is natural-fiber clothing "better" than synthetic clothing? Most man-made fibers are petroleum based, consuming non-renewable resources and requiring high-energy and often polluting processing. However, cotton, a great natural alternative, is also one of the most pesticide intensive crops in the world. Luckily, organic cotton is beginning to appear in stores and catalogs. Although it's just beginning to make an impact, if we support this fledgling industry, availability will increase and prices will drop. That's good for us and the Earth

BUNNY AND CHICK CUTOUTS

1 cup butter, softened
1 cup sugar
1 egg
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 tablespoon vanilla
2¼ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder

Cream butter and sugar. Add egg, juice, vanilla, and mix well. Add flour and baking powder Chill for 2 or 3 hours. Roll out portions of the dough to ¼-inch thick, keeping the rest chilled. Cut out with bunny or chick cookie cutters Bake on ungreased sheets at 375° F for about 8 minutes until lightly browned. Cool completely before frosting.

Makes about 4 dozen.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST: Freezing rain, snow north, clearing and cold, stormy with heavy rain west, rain and snow north.

SOUTHEAST: Clear and mild then showers and colder; heavy rain and cool.

MIDWEST: Cold, rain, snow north; clearing, seasonable, then rain, snow, and colder.

NORTHWEST: Sunny and warm, some showers; rain and snow, turning cold.

OPINION

FFA Builds Individuality

Change in every aspect of life today is vast and overwhelming. And today, change seems to be happening at a breakneck pace.

Just since the 1960s, so much unexpected change: urban sprawl, a surge in the human population, no more national "enemy" to hold us all together, new medicine, new disease, new norms of acceptable social behavior, new forms of entertainment, new farming practices, the economy, international relations, neighborly relations, new dinner foods, new ways to shop, etc.

We have people with portable computers in dairy barns entering data and sending it by telephone to a processing company in another state.

We no longer need decades of selective breeding to manipulate the genetics in plants and animals. Now it can be done in the laboratory in one generation or so.

People talk on telephones while driving in their cars.

People are serious when they talk about supporting a world effort to go to Mars and send people to live out in space.

Some days it gets dizzying, disorienting and disgusting.

Doesn't anything stay the same?

There are many of us who have chosen to pick a moment that we enjoyed during all of this change and just stay there.

There are others of us who have specialized into a particular field and no longer care to try to take the rest in and make sense of it.

Others revel in the financial opportunities created in a world of confusion.

But there are some among us who have come to the conclusion that the greatest power we have as individuals in a world of continual change and challenge is to be an individual.

It means opinions and knowledge are worked for and earned. It means education is constantly sought out. It means caution is taken, out of respect for others, that personally held views and opinions are not thrust dogmatically upon others.

Being an individual means thinking for ourselves, solving our own problems, and creating our own solutions.

Being an individual means that, to an extent, we can choose which changes we will accept and which ones we will discard.

It means judging ourselves, our abilities and our actions honestly, not through the eyes of others.

It means that we try to use the gift of being made in the image of God to the best of our ability.

This week has been declared by our state and federal governments to be periods of recognition for FFA and agriculture.

It seems especially poignant that it is also the week of the vernal equinox — the coming of spring, a time for hope, for growth, for birth.

Agriculture is the nuturing of life. FFA is the nuturing of individuals.

This organization deserves to be recognized and supported because it is good. It helps give young people a chance at being individuals — a chance at being strong and independent and successful, and it gives them an opportunity to bloom to potential.

That's what we want for ourselves. That's what we want for our children.

Some things do not change.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Be Patient

The record snowfall has caused spring work to be delayed.

We are now seeing nice spring weather with very wet fields. This is very frustrating for farmers itching to start field work.

It is very important for farmers to be patient during the next several weeks and wait until soil conditions are ready for planting. We still have plenty of time to get things done if we plan ahead.

Make sure all equipment is serviced and ready to go. Have a good inventory of parts that you will need for repairs and replacement. Check fields for winter damage. However, allow a little time for sunshine and warm weather to promote plant growth before making decisions on need to replant.

By being patient, you will prevent problems associated with soil compaction, rutting up fields, and getting stuck. We still have plenty of time to do spring chores if we plan ahead and be ready when soil conditions and weather allow us to plant.

To Rotate Crops

Growing several different crops on a farm and rotating the fields which are used to grow each crop has many advantages for the farmer.

Rotation of crops has been shown to increase yields by 10 to 15 percent. Rotation of crops helps to break insect and disease cycles. Rotation helps to improve soil tilth and soil structure, which makes soil management easier.

Improved tilth will improve water infiltration into the soil. Rotations which have a legume in them could reduce the need for nitrogen fertilizers or help to mine phosphorus and potassium from soils.

Rotation also helps break weed problems by using different herbicides and management techniques for the various crops.

To Increase Milk Protein

Milk of higher protein is more nutritious, yields more cheese, and is worth more at the farm.

The easiest and surest way to increase the protein content of milk is through genetic selection. Breeders have been selecting for higher milk protein when the market started paying more for this trait.

The protein content of milk may be influenced slightly by feeding practices. Cows that are in good energy balanced and well-fleshed usually have a slightly higher milk protein tests.

Rations that are properly balanced for undegradable protein and amino acids will generally increase milk protein tests. Excess fat or cottonseed in the ration may depress milk protein tests.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "You can work miracles by having faith in others."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

ARE YOU SELF-EMPLOYED?
March 27, 1994

Background Scripture:
Romans 6
Devotional Reading:
Colossians 3:1-4, 5-11, 12-15b

A few days ago I sent to the IRS my fourth quarter estimated income tax payment for 1993. Like many of you out there, my wife and I are both "self-employed," so we are responsible for seeing that our income and self-employment tax are both estimated and paid. For some reason that partly escapes me, clergy who elect Social Security are legally regarded by IRS as self-employed, even though they are actually employed by a church or denomination.

So, my vocational self-employment over the years has been more a legal fiction than a practical reality. In reading Romans 6, it occurred to me that we are often similarly deluded when we assume that we are in sole control of our own lives. I like to think of myself as being rather independent and self-sufficient, but that picture is no more accurate than my legal designation by the U.S. government as "self-employed."

As children and youth, many of us can hardly wait until there is no one who is able to tell us what to do and we can make our own decisions. We yearn for the freedom of adult life. While there is no doubt that there is a lot of freedom that we enjoy as adults, it is not so complete and unlimited as we might have once assumed.

FREE AT LAST?

One of the friends of my youth was a young man who especially looked forward to the day when his parents could no longer forbid him to drink. Actually, he didn't exactly wait for adulthood to exercise that freedom and by the time he was 21 he was already on his way to a life of an alcoholic. So, is he free? No, not really. He is now free to drink, but he is not free not to drink. He has exchanged obedience to his parents for obedience to a habit that has made a slave of him. He is even less in control of his own life than he was as a teenager.

Thus, Paul writes: "Do you not know that if you yield yourself to any one as obedient slaves, you are slaves of the one whom you obey, either of sin, which leads to death, or of obedience, which leads to righteousness?" (6:16). If we permit ourselves to be governed by anything or anyone, we are likely to let ourselves be enslaved — even while believing that we are quite free. Absolute freedom is an absolute delusion.

TWO OPTIONS

So, when we think about being in control of our lives, to which self do we give the control? Will we turn it over to our worst self, the self that lives only for indulgence, that asks and expects the very least of us, or to our highest self, the self that God created us to be? Will we be governed by the power of our own reason or by our basic appetites and drives? Will Christian love motivate and guide us, or will we allow ourselves to be dominated by our fears and prejudices?

Actually, there are only two choices open to us: to be employed by God or to be employed against God. The so-called neutral ground between these two choices is another of our delusions. If we give ourselves over to something or someone other than God, what are the wages of that employment? Paul asks, "But then what return did you get from the things of which you are now ashamed?... For the wages of sin is death..." (5:21,23a). That "death" is not just the death that is pronounced by the medical examiner, but a condition of the soul which is much more tragic than biological death.

Paul concludes: "...but the free gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord."

So, who is your employer and what are the wages you are earning?

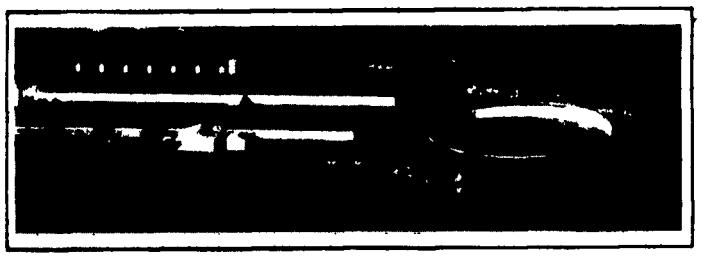
NEW FOR 94

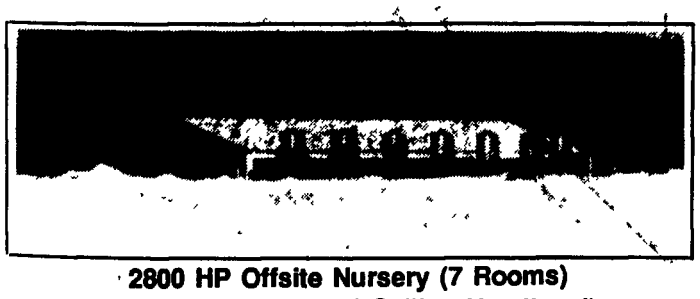
Tri-County "DUTCH CRATE" Pig Saver with Complex New Sow Feeder and Head Gate

300 Sow Farrow - Feeder Pig Unit

CONFINEMENT STALLS
Developed recently in our R&D farm. Our goals were convenience, safety and durability. The low back and flat top rails are easy to reach over with no sharp edges. Stainless steel rear legs and front feet along with solid steel horizontal rods through punched uprights provide the strongest, most durable stall ever produced by Tri-County (21"-24" O.C. x 86")

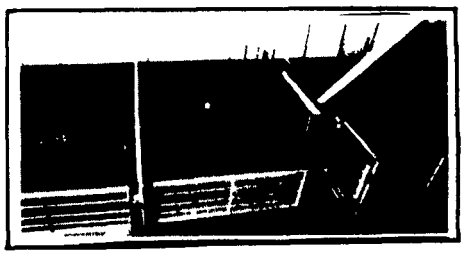


1200 Sow Farrow-Feeder Pig Unit



2800 HP Offsite Nursery (7 Rooms)
(Pull Plug, Preferated Ceiling Ventilated)

NURSERY PENNING
Nursery penning has been improved by the use of an optional solid stainless steel panel on the front gates which keeps walkways clean. Stainless steel verticals on penning eliminate corrosion where penning attaches to the floor. Stainless steel drinker pipes & mounting brackets also increase durability.



2000 Head Finisher (2 Rooms)
(Deep Pit, Tunnel Ventilated)

FINISHING PENNING
Optional stainless steel verticals and fasteners offer improved durability over other similar types of penning. Loop and flapper latch arrangement eliminates the use of drop pins. Stainless steel fence line feeders provide excellent durability and a minimum of waste.

Quality Star

Star shaped core optimizes RFV.

With the new 4800 Series Round Balers, you'll be baling hay earlier.

You'll put more high-protein leaves in the bale for higher relative feed value (RFV). And, the star-shaped core allows the bale to breath, optimizing RFV at feeding time, too.

Best of all, the new 4800 Round Balers are easy to use.

Select the best size for your operation: 700, 900, or 2000 pounds. Then ask to see one at your White-New Idea dealer or call 1 800 767-3221.

Md. Adopts Pesticide Regs

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) Secretary Robert L. Walker recently issued a reminder that pesticide applicators and pest control firms must comply with recently revised regulations relating to the Pesticide Applicators Law.

"These revised regulations will affect farmers, commercial pesticide applicators and pesticide dealers operating in the state. I am pleased to report that the regulation changes were recommended and approved by the Governor's Pesticide Council," said Walker.

"There are many new requirements added to the regulations that will improve storage, use, and management of pesticides in Maryland," Walker said.

New pesticide storage and transport regulations include requirements for posting the storage area with a warning sign; keeping the storage area secured or locked to prevent unauthorized access; separating pesticides from food, feed, fertilizer, seed and safety equipment; maintaining a clean, dry, ventilated storage areas with absorbent material for spills; and storing pesticides at least 50 feet from any water well.

Private applicators (farmers certified to apply restricted use pesticides) will be required to keep records for each application of a general use or a restricted use pesticide.

Records must be maintained for two years and must include the name and address of certified applicator; location of treated area; date of application; brand or common name of pesticide applied; application rate and total amount applied; acreage or size of area treated; and crop or site treated.

Federal requirements under the Food, Agriculture, Conservation and Trade Act of 1990 (Farm Bill) that became effective May 10, 1993 require private applicators to keep records for each restricted use pesticide application.

However, the new state regulations will preempt the federal requirements and will be enforced by the Maryland Department of Agriculture instead of United States Department of Agriculture.

Prenotification by the certified applicator will be required before application of any soil fumigant. Residents within 300 feet of the application must be notified at least 24 hours before the fumigant application occurs.

Copies of the revised regulations can be obtained by contacting Mary Ellen Setting, Chief, Pesticide Regulation Section, Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, Maryland 21401, 410-841-5710.

ABC Honors Extension Agent Duncan

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Atlantic Breeders Cooperative held its annual business meeting Wednesday at the Eden Resort and Convention Center in Lancaster, honoring Cumberland County Extension Agent Duane Duncan for his support and 35 years of service.

The group held its business meeting during a morning session and, in the afternoon, board President James Kreider presented Duncan a plaque in appreciation of his efforts toward cooperative education.

Duncan said he and his wife Donna, who has helped him greatly over the years, were also appreciative of the cooperative for its consistent support of Extension programs.

"I always looked to Atlantic as a key sponsor of Extension programs," Duncan said. "When I think of statewide programs or state judging contests over the years, Atlantic has always been there and I'm thankful for the opportunity to work with the Young Cooperator program."

Duncan is a native of Erie County, who started working in Extension in 1958 in Adams County as an assistant agent after receiving a degree in agricultural education from Penn State that year.

In 1967, he moved to fill the position in Cumberland County. He also has been secretary of the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show almost every year since 1973. Further, he developed and is currently superintendent of the All-American Dairy Judging Forum, held during the annual All-American Dairy Show in Harrisburg.

"Duane has provided Cumberland County farmers with opportunities to participate in educational in-depth programs, such as milking schools and nutrition schools for dairymen, as well as programs, such as milking schools and nutrition schools for dairymen, as well as programs for veterinarians, and ag business personnel," Kreider said.

"He has also organized dairy breeding and reproductive management clinics and workshops in DHIA records and dairy farm business analysis. His activity in the 4-H program has been exceptional, with the development of a strong county program and with major activities at the state level," Kreider said.

Kreider also mentioned Duncan's numerous professional honors, and state regional and national awards from the National Association of County Agricultural Agents specifically in the areas of public relations, communications, and for distinguished service.

Duncan and his wife also act as coordinators for the county dairy princess group and other counties in statewide functions.

Kreider also praised Duncan, "... for his exceptional dedication to the cooperative way of doing business, and cooperative education. He has taken a very active role in local cooperative education program for teenagers and young farmers.

"Likewise, Duane and his wife Donna have been instrumental in the development and ongoing programming for the Young Cooperative Leaders Conference sponsored by the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives."

In addressing the group, Duncan joked that he was a 100-percent ABC user, because when he was growing up he used ABC service for his one and only heifer.

In other business, cooperative chief executive officer Harry Roth told the group that, while the cooperative had a better year financially last year than the previous year, and that exports of semen and nonmember business was increased, the cooperative faces a number of challanges in understanding its role in the future.

Roth said that in his time with the cooperative, there have been very few years that didn't present change. He said 1993, with the extremes of weather and natural disaster in every region of the country, " ... certainly was an exceptional year in many respects.

"We are seeing a continual shift of cow numbers from one area to another and again have seen a reduction of cows in the Northeast with approximately 12,000 less cows in Pennsylvania than a year ago. In spite of this loss, we have again seen an increase of technician services, but a slight decrease in direct herd units.

"As cows continue to shift into more concentrated areas, we will see larger herds and more challenges in dealing with the environmental constraints."

According to Roth, cooperative members selected bulls rated 25 percent above the average of active sires. "This is making genetic improvements at an unprecendented pace," he said.

Furthermore, employees of the cooperative all have been participating in training programs to better their skills in service, genetics, reproduction and sales.

"We maximized efficiencies of operations this year in every way possible. Technician units were consolidated in central and western Pennsylvania to adjust to member market changes and in order to improve labor efficiency by breeding more cows per technician," Roth said.

He said that specifically, a pilot program of once-a-day breeding services, as compared to twice-a-day, seems to be providing similar reproductive successes, as well as reducing member costs for service.

He also discussed the new programs offered this year, including a computer record service, and a heifer mating service.

The cooperative realized a higher profit in 1993 over 1992, Roth reported. He said that total net for 1992 was $396,343, while it was $434,656 for 1993. He also said that changes in taxes paid was reflected in this difference, as well as a substantial increase in nonmember sales.

In international sales, Roth said that sales have been doing well, and that the Federated Council, of which ABC is a partner with other A.I. cooperatives, is " ... closely monitoring the activity in the international marketing to insure our best position for the immediate- and long-term needs."

Related to this, he said there are some major issues to consider.

"The global scene is changing. In the near future, we will be involved with European countries marketing their genetics in our member area. Our decision will need to determine how this will be accomplished. The world is getting smaller.

"Other countries who have purchased semen from us over the years, and have improved their herds, have also learned about our technology and service programs. This is little differences between U.S. cooperative A.I. programs and programs in other parts of the globe," he said.

Closer to home, Roth talked about the technological changes to dairying, and the competitive differences.

"Yes, the family farm is being challenged as we have known it. Size and efficiency seem to be the words today that tend to push farmers into doing things out of their comfort zone and into methods of operation never before considered.

"Many reasons are causing this change in the rural scene, and no doubt will continue to move us until other pressures take over.

"All of this change in the dynamics of a farmer's life will cause him, without a doubt, to view the services he purchases for his operation from a changing perspective. We have already seen a very dramatic change in a member's view toward a cooperative from the time I was a boy back in Northampton County.

"Then farmers were eager to make a cooperative survive. Now the cooperative has the responsibility to deliver the product at a price and in a package to fit the member's need today."

However, Roth said there is no question in his mind that the cooperative can continue to provide it purpose as long as its leaders are cognizant of its members' needs.

"This requires leadership that is in touch with reality," he said.

While praising the existing leadership, Roth said future leaders must be "highly ethical people who are well grounded in cooperative philosophy in order to reach the first pinnacle of success. They must be trustworthy and willing to agree with the 'members-first' principle."

He also outlined a number of characteristics of what he considered to be good leadership qualities.

Eastern Milk Delegates Approve $274.9 Million Budget

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Some 200 delegates and officers representing the 3,200 member farm families of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative unanimously approved an operating budget calling for $262.4 million in milk sales and nearly half a million dollars in profits after payouts to members.

The budget is for the 1994-95 fiscal year which starts April 1. Approval came at Eastern's March Delegate Meeting in Corning, N.Y.

The 71-year-old, Syracuse-based dairy cooperative expects to market nearly 2 billion pounds of milk in the new fiscal year, noted Eastern General Manager Michael Donovan.

Board President Lewis Gardner said the budget also called for an additional $12.5 million in revenues through subsidiary sales and other income, bringing total projected revenues to $274.9 million.

Gardner said the farmers heard reports on the co-op's two wholly owned subsidiaries, Eastern Best Products and Eastern Laboratory Services; and voted to reinforce the co-op's neutral stance on bovine somatotropin (BST), the protein hormone used to increase milk production in lactating cows.

EASTERN BELT PRODUCTS: With a new general manager at the helm, Eastern Best spent the last three months evaluating its service and products.

The subsidiary, after surveying customers, installed a toll free line to take orders, and decided to focus on its "mainstay — quality agricultural products", including farm supplies, and dairy and other food items, Eastern Best General Manager Fred Greenfield reported.

"We've implemented a program of a commitment to quality," he said, "and a slogan of 'it's a matter of pride'."

"Pride," Greenfield said, "is a two-way street. We want members and employees to be proud of Eastern Best, just as Eastern Best is proud to be part of Eastern Milk and proud to serve members and other customers."

Eastern Best is a Canton, Pa.-based bulk-buying service bringing over 200 products to some 30,000 rural customers in a dozen states.

Headquartered in Waverly, N.Y., Eastern Lab was started nearly a decade ago as a milk testing facility serving the cheese plant owned by Eastern Milk and operated by Leprino Foods. After experiencing steady growth in dairy and food testing, the lab branched out into environmental testing about three years ago.

In 1993, environmental sales took off like a rocket, General Manager Sherry Perry reported. For the first time, environmental sales outpaced its dairy and food testing business, she said. Overall sales more than doubled in 1993, she said, due mostly to environmental testing involving drinking water, waste water, and solid and hazardous waste.

The lab positioned itself for growth and competitive pricing, she noted, by purchasing the highly specialized equipment and other assets of Reading Environmental Lab. Eastern Lab has maintained a solid and hazardous waste testing facility in Reading, Pa., since June.

In other business, delegates:

--Voted to reinforce Eastern's neutral policy on the farm use of BST. "Our policy neither encourages nor discourages its use," President Gardner told delegates. "I think it's a responsible policy... Otherwise, we're sending the wrong message to consumers at a time when dairy products already are the most strictly tested and regulated products in the supermarket."

--Encouraged the board and management to pursue and support a multiple component pricing system for Federal Orders 1 and 2 (New England, New York, New Jersey and part of Pennsylvania).

--Approved a change in the dues and equity structure which results in a net decrease of one cent per hundredweight that farmers pay to be members of the co-op.

--Endorsed the policy of penalizing members who contribute to the loss of a U.S. Public Health rating for a unit of farmers.

--Asked the board to consider redeeming old $500 special equity certificates.

--Endorsed the practice of bloc voting by the co-op.

--Welcomed Ethel Paulhamus as a newly elected member of the board and expressed sympathy for the loss of her husband, Dale, who died earlier this year.

Prior to the start of the business portion of the two-day Delegate Meeting, delegates and their families toured the mozzarella cheese plant in Waverly, N.Y., which is operated by Leprino Foods and owned by Eastern Milk under a joint venture arrangement. The plant can consume up to 2 million pounds of milk a day as it produces Italian cheeses for a significant portion of the nation's pizza eateries and other restaurants. Then the farmers visited the Eastern Laboratory across the street from the plant. After the tours, they were treated to a giant pizza party at the Guthrie Inn in nearby Sayre, Pa.,

Top Honors Awarded In Carroll County 4-H

LOIS SZYMANSKI
Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md. — The Carroll County Maryland 4-H Achievement and Volunteer Recognition banquet was held recently at Martin's in Westminster, Md., with top honors going to the new 1994 Mr. and Miss 4-H, Jonathon Gibson and Katie Painter.

The 1993 Mr. and Mrs. 4-H Jim Woods of Sykesville and Ginger Hull of Westminster handed down their titles with words of reflection and advice and many thahks to their supporters.

Winner Jonathon Gibson is a 15-year-old Frizzellburg resident and a sophomore at Westminster High School. Living on a 49-acre farm, he has been an active 4-H member for seven years, raising hogs and chickens and showing his Dalmatian dog.

The 1994 Miss 4-H, Katie Painter, is a 15-year-old sophomore at North Carroll High School and a Hampstead resident. She has participated in the project areas of rabbit, fashion, crafts, and foods in her eight years as a 4-H member.

Extension Agent Bob Shirley said, "Mr. and Miss 4-H will promote 4-H at public gatherings at service clubs and with youth groups. They will also have an important part in planning the county fair and next year's achievement banquet. Their role is very heavy on public relations work."

Presidential Tray Winner Ginger Hull was recognized for winning the Presidential Tray at the National 4-H Congress in December. The award is given in the name of the President of the United States of America and only 12 are awarded annually. Carroll County has won three times in the past four years.

The Carroll County Commissioners Tray was presented by Carroll County Commissioner, Donald Dell, to Amanda Boyd. "4-H work will follow you all of your life," Dell said.

Scores of 4-H members as well as volunteers were recognized for their efforts to promote 4-H in Carroll County, the largest participating 4-H county in the state of Maryland. Among the most notable were the Volunteer Of The Year Award to Illona Hull, mother of former Miss 4-H'ers Ginger and Heather Hull and nine-year volunteer.

Jo Mladjenovich won the Unsung Volunteer Award. The Outstanding 4-H Girl was Jessica Herbert and the Outstanding 4-H Boy was Ross Bair.

N.Y., N.J. February Milk $13.33

ALBANY, N.Y. — Dairy farmers who supplied regulated milk dealers (handlers) under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during February 1994 will be paid by handlers on the basis of a uniform price of $13.33 per hundredweight (28.7 cents per quart); the price for the corresponding month last year was $11.93 per hundredweight.

Market Administrator Ronald C. Pearce also stated that the price was $13.58 in January 1994. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

A total of 11,644 dairy farmers supplied handlers regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders with 864,929,184 pounds of milk during February 1994. This was a decrease of 2.6 percent (about 23 million pounds) from last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $116,374,647.25. This included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not premiums, deductions authorized by the farmer, or assessments.

Regulated handlers used 368,033,627 pounds of milk for Class I, 42.6 percent of the total. This milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low test, and skim milks. For February 1994, handlers paid $14.93 per hundredweight (32.1 cents per quart) for Class I milk compared with $13.76 a year ago.

Handlers used 135,176,562 pounds of milk for Class II products, 15.6 percent of the total. Class II products include fluid cream, eggnog, ricotta and cottage cheeses, ice cream, and yogurt. Handlers paid $12.26 per hundredweight for this milk.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received from farms in the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

Safety Should Be Top Concern

Dan and Leanne Griffith recommend special protective chaps that can stall a chain saw before it cuts into an operator's leg.

According to the Griffiths, 23,500 children in America each year receive farm-related injuries serious enough to require treatment by a doctor or hospital. About 5,000 farm youngsters are permanently disabled annually. And approximately 300 children — almost one each day — die each year in farming-related accidents.

Relying on their backgrounds as farmers and educators — Dan was a vo-ag teacher in the Marion Center Area School District and Leanne taught science at Indiana Area Junior High — the Griffiths years ago began preaching farm safety as two of the seven adult advisors of the Indiana County 4-H Safe Tractor Club.

Using a $520 grant from the National 4-H Council and a $2,500 grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, they created a series of farm safety minidemonstrations designed for youngsters. Their goal was to create educational workshops where the minidemonstrations could be used as training aids to spread the safety information as widely as possible.

"What we're trying to do is have the kids learn them, and go out and do them for other groups," Dan said.

The nine minidemonstrations cover the importance of wearing protective clothing when using pesticides, removing pesticide residue from clothing, what to have in a farm first-aid kit, preventing tractor rollovers, precautions to avoid getting caught in a corn picker, safety measures when working around gravity wagons, hearing protection, chain saw safety, and testing reaction time.

The Griffiths and the other advisors of the 4-H club presented their demonstrations to a large crowd for the first time last summer. Farm youth from 17 counties were invited to a 4-H Farm Safety Field day at Mack Park in Indiana, and more than 100 youth attended.

"Sadly, one farm family couldn't come that day," Leanne said, "They were at a funeral for a cousin who had been killed in a tractor rollover accident."

The Griffiths' 4-H work attracted the attention of state Rep. Sara Steelman, (D-62nd). Steelman asked the Griffiths to testify in Somerset before the Pennsylvania House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee in support of House Bill 2505 that she sponsored.

HB 2505 would allocate $250,000 a year for two years to be used for developing and staging farm safety education programs, particularly for youngsters and older farmers. Steelman said the proposed legislation would include a funding cap of $20,000 for any one program.

The Griffiths were scheduled to testify before the committee on Feb. 11, but a heavy snow forced them and several of the House members to cancel their travel plans to Somerset. So the Griffiths did the next best thing.

They videotaped their testimony for the committee members to view at their convenience.

When they taped their presentation, they did it not from the viewpoint of Dan's position as president of the Indiana County Farmers Association or his membership on the Penn State 4-H Ag Engineering Curriculum Committee.

Instead, they made their videotape from the standpoint of a farm family — and had their three children play roles in the testimony.

One of the most graphic exhibits on the videotape shows 5-year-old Christopher Griffith demonstrating the danger of working in a gravity box wagon. Christopher places a toy figure of a little girl on top of shelled corn in a model of a gravity wagon. When he opens the slide gate at the bottom of the wagon, the girl is sucked into the corn and covered.

Leanne said the exhibit was created by an Iowa farm mother whose 11-year-old child was suffocated in a gravity wagon accident.

The tape also stresses what Dan said is one of the most easily prevented farm accidents — having extra riders thrown from tractors. The demonstration emphasizes that tractors have only one seat, and so should only have one rider.

In their taped endorsement of HB 2505, the Griffiths urge legislators to specifically earmark some of the proposed funds for educating younger children.

"Unfortunately, we have very few materials to teach farm safety to younger children," Leanne said. "Most farm safety curriculum is designed for youngsters age 14 and older. We would encourage you to designate some funds in this bill for 6- to 13-year-old children."

The Griffiths also asked the committee members to include funds in the bill for a farm youth safety specialist. That person's job would be to coordinate safety programs and provide a clearing house for safety information, curriculum materials and available safety displays.

The Griffiths see the youth safety specialist as a resource person who could also travel throughout the state assisting volunteer groups like the Indiana County 4-H Safe Tractor Club that are trying to make farms safer.

The initial grant money the Griffiths received has been spent — well-spent, Leanne believes.

"We have worked with several hundred farm children over the last 12 years," she said. "Does safety education work? We have seen positive results. To our knowledge, no one who has been in our club has been permanently disabled or killed in a farm accident."

Young, Old At Risk

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — According to statistics compiled by Penn State University's Department of Agricultural and Biological Engineering, youngsters and older people are frequently most at risk in farm-related accidents. And tractors are involved in nearly two-thirds of all fatal accidents on Pennsylvania farms.

In 1991 and 1992 — the most recent years for which complete figures are available — there were at least 84 fatal accidents on the state's farms.

Twenty-eight of the people killed (33 percent) were age 65 or older.

Twelve of those killed (14 percent) were age 10 or younger.

Tractors were the common thread in many of the deaths. Fifty-two of the 84 fatalities (62 percent) involved tractors or the equipment attached to tractors. Thirty deaths resulted from tractor overturns, 15 people died when they were run over by a tractor or the machinery it was pulling, five were fatally injured when they were entangled in PTOs, and two were killed in falls from tractors.

The Penn State statistics also noted seven people drowned in farm ponds and seven died from injuries from horses, mules, and cows.

Among the other causes of accidental deaths listed were falls from barn roofs, fires, and carbon monoxide poisoning.

Brown Swiss Video Star

BELOIT, Wis. — The Brown Swiss Cattle Breeders' Association of America announced this week that is has made available a video tape extolling the virtues of the dairy cattle breed.

According to a news release, "The new informational video, 'Brown Swiss, the Ultimate Dairy Machine,' is now available. This 15-minute, full color video showcasing the attributes of the popular and profitable Brown Swiss cow is filled with testimony from top Brown Swiss breeders."

According to the news release, the video was designed to highlight breed attributes and provide answers that commercial and registered breeders may have.

"This is a perfect education tool for 4-H and FFA clubs, or any dairy businessman seeking information about Brown Swiss," according to the news release.

Member Input Critical For DHIA Success

Member Input Is Key To PA DHIA'S DRPC Plans

PAT TORETTI

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania DHIA Dairy Records Processing Center Advisory Committee has big plans for PaDHIA's DRPC, if the Advisory Committee meeting held in State College last week is any indication.

The advisory committee considered proposals to overhaul or improve a number of traditional paper reports, launch Pennsylvania DHIA more forcefully into desktop computing, and join the "information superhighway" concept that has become such a buzzword among politicians and computer industry insiders.

But recognizing the DHIA technician as the lynchpin in any DHIA program, the advisory committee gave careful consideration to such topics as how the DHIA processing center can improve employee support, education, and training, as well as what programs should be considered for test day reporting now that PaDHIA's laptop program for technicians is settling into a routine.

Calling this quarterly meeting "perhaps the most successful we've had since the inception of the DRPC Advisory Committee two years ago," committee co-chair George Cudoc had high praise for the group of mostly farmers who gathered March 10 to consider new directions for DHIA's processing center.

"Farmers are the backbone, and the most important contributors, to our advisory committee. I was glad to see so many brave the weather to get here."

Noting that the best programs in the world are worthless unless they are able to reach dairymen, the committee held an extended discussion on how the processing center, acting in concert with the field division, could improve communications and education for individual technicians.

After considerable debate that touched on all aspects of the DHIA business, the committee approved a resolution to make programming resources available to the field services director and to direct the Technician's Advisory Committee to measure employee retention by geography, age, key-employee status, and other demographics.

The committee also resolved to supply whatever resources would be necessary in order for the processing center to aid the field in improved computer support and records education.

As a direct result of resolutions passed at the state DHIA convention last month, the programming staff got instructions to develop a "Cull the Right Cow" guide, which would allow dairymen to select from a number of flexible options in deciding which animals to sell.

The emphasis will be on providing decisions, not just numbers.

Improving the basic nutrition system was also slated for implementation. Senior Project Leader Joe Hayes, a 25-year veteran of DHIA's processing center explains. "For a number of years we worked on a very powerful, flexible, and unfortunately complex nutrition program with the extension faculty at Penn State. What they delivered was an excellent program for in depth feed evaluation and recommendation. But too many DHIA members just aren't using it. That's not what we're looking for on this. What members asked for in the district resolution was a change to the more basic nutrition information we collect, that would still accommodate more modern feeding practices like rotational grazing, the use of very high TDN feeds, more feeds fed and more flexibility. Concentrates should be reportable in decimal amounts, and the feeds reported analyzed on a dry matter basis. We want to be able to handle 80 or 90% of what people are doing without making this so complex in the process." The KISS principle? "Exactly," says Hayes, who is canvassing interested farmers, practitioners, and nutritionists for a meeting later this month.

The advisory committee also considered a simplified DHIA reporting program first proposed by co-chair Don Duncan that would emphasize action lists and "management by exception". While many of these action lists are currently available as optional reports, the committee envisions pulling all of these together — again, to produce decisions — not just numbers.

The most immediate change noted by members will be color-coding of paper DHIA reports. The advisory committee recommended immediate adoption of colored paper for DHIA reports to address readability concerns that have been voiced by farmers ever since the adoption of laser printing three years ago. Some time early next week PaDHIA dairymen will see a more colorful report packet in their mailboxes.

In response to requests by LER (Labor Efficient Records program) and Sample Analysis herds, the processing center will soon implement an electronic bulletin board system for the DHIA lab. Processing center staffers anticipate that the new bulletin board will allow access to lab components and somatic cell results before the herds have even started to process through the DHIA mainframe. "Herds getting sample analysis only, or on LER programs using the DII format are anxious to get their component results into their farm management programs as quickly as possible, without additional retyping. We offer an option to receive this information on diskette, but providing a bulletin board cuts out the clerical middle-man, and will speed access." As an ancilliary benefit, Boyer also anticipates the bulletin board will be used to allow agricultural publications, county agents, and other processing centers more transparent access to DHIA date.

Turning to the question of test day reporting by DHIA technicians on farms, the advisory committee considered and will further study a number of alternatives. Although Pennsylvania DHIA had long planned to go forward with Valley Ag Software's "Dairy Comp 305" as its test day reporting offering, that may change. "We're looking at a number of possibilities," says Boyer, "Westfalia has made us a very attractive offer on the licensed use of its own management software, Dairy Plan. We may also decide to do something in-house. But there are a number of reasons to take a serious look at Dairy Plan. First, Westfalia's agreement for a license will save us money.

Second, Although Dairy Comp 305 has a larger following nationwide, our members seem to prefer the Westfalia product. Third, we have to consider ease of use. Dairy Comp 305 is very powerful. I still think it's the best farm management program for dairy herds available. But there's no doubt that Dairy Plan is easier to use. And the level of cooperation we've been getting from Bob Turner and his people is just outstanding."

"I need to stress that we aren't abandoning Dairy Comp 305," Boyer goes on, "It is, as I said, an excellent program. We'll continue to sell Dairy Comp 305. We'll continue to support it. And we'll continue to do whatever we can to make our system as comfortable with DC 305 as possible. We've done that with a number of popular PC programs our members use, including C-TAP (Current Test Day Analysis Program), Holstein's Cow Search and a number of others. And I'd be remiss if I didn't mention how patiently Bill England over in Blair County has been in getting communications with deLeval's Herdmaster Galaxy up and running. What we're talking about here is what's going to be the most suitable program for our technicians to use. Our main emphasis has been to get the traditional DHIA data into the system via the laptops. Beyond that we're going to evaluate our options carefully."

Finally, the DRPC Advisory Committee considered new business opportunities raised in an increasingly competitive national environment. Earlier this month Pennsylvania DHIA began processing dairy records for a number of herds in New Jersey, a territory that has traditionally belonged to Cornell University and Northeast DHIA. Interest in Pennsylvania's processing center was also raised by several states and independent DHIA service providers in the Mid- and upper Mid-West at this month's National DHIA Convention. Possible modes of operation could include sales to these entities as customers, or might include cooperative joint ventures. "What we need to keep in mind when we talk about competition are the unique strengths that Pennsylvania DHIA has to offer," noted PaDHIA General Manager Dave Schlusser. "We know all aspects of the DHIA business here in Pennsylvania: the field, the lab, and of course processing.

And it's also important for farmers and potential new members to know that we're a farmer owned DRPC. There's only one other state in the country that can make that claim. Our farmers can propose resolutions in their district meetings, through their state board, or by writing directly to use here to have their ideas considered and acted on. Dairymen in prospective joint ventures, and customers, need to know that they're dealing with a processing center and a DHIA service provider owned by dairymen, not just buying a service from somebody who's out to make a buck. The trust is important."

Carroll County Holds Holstein Sale

LOIS SZYMANSKI
Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md. — The Carroll County Holstein Club held its annual calf sale on Wednesday night, March 16, at the Carroll County Agricultural Center. Thirty-one Holstein calves were sold at an average sale price of $1,546.

The highest selling calf was a 6-month-old heifer calf offered by the Myers' family of New Windsor, Md., and purchased by the Meyers Brothers of Franklin County, Pennsylvania, for $3,850. The calf was sired by "Broker" and had three generations of excellent dams with the first dam making 22,250 pounds of milk as a 2-year-old. The second dam made 27,320 pounds as a 3-year-old and third dam made 29,300 pounds as a 4-year-old.

The Schwartzbeck family of Peace and Plenty Farm in Union Bridge, Maryland offered the second highest selling calf. At a selling price of $3,500, the 6-month-old heifer calf was a "Roy Brook Vintage" with an "Astro Jet" daughter who made 26,820 pounds of milk (with 1,055 in fat) as a 3-year-old. The calf was purchased by Anthony Caruthers of Rising Sun, Md.

The third highest selling calf at the Carroll County Holstein Club Calf Sale was a yearling calf offered by Chip Savage of Maryland. It was purchased by Kenny and Kevin Ehrhardt of Baldwin, Md., for $3,300.

During the evening, a separate auction offered many items for sale. A cookie jar sold for $100 as did a cow shaped cake, baked and decorated by Missy Starner of Westminster, Md.

Patsy and Tom Wiles of Taneytown, Md. purchased a calf, then donated it back to the sale in memory of their son, the late Alan Wiles who died this past year in a traffic accident at the age of 23. He was an active 4-H member and a member of the Carroll County Holstein Club. The calf sold back for $1,200.

Club President Cam Davis said a 12 percent commission was charged. He declared the sale a success, saying, "It was the highest averaging sale the club has ever had."

Eastern Milk Local Elects New Officers

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — The Lebanon Valley local of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative Association Inc., held its local annual meeting recently in Lebanon, electing new officers to represent the cooperative's dairy farmers.

Samuel Forrey, of Rehrersburg, was named president; Jonathon Summy, of Myerstown, was elected vice president; Jeff Zuck, Lebanon, secretary; Nelson Brubaker, of Womelsdorf, treasurer; Robert Bollinger, Lebanon, delegate; and Joseph Meily, of Lebanon, delegate.

The delegate and alternate delegate represent the local at the cooperative's business meetings at their Syracuse headquarters.

In other business, Director Bob Gale discussed district activities.

Wayne Holstein Plans Bus Tour

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — An April 9 bus trip to two dairy operations is scheduled by the Wayne County Holstein Club, but it isn't restricted to club members.

The deadline for reservations is Thursday, March 31. Call the county Extension office at (717) 253-5970, extension 239; or call Gerarda Burleigh at (717) 448-2950.

The cost of the bus trip is $12 per adult and $6 per youth, aged 21 or fewer years old.

The bus trip is to feature visits to Hillside Farms, in Shavertown, one of the oldest established registered Holstein farms inthe United States, and Pen-Col Farms, noted for their work with embryo transfer and freezing.

The bus is to pickup passengers at two locations: at 9 a.m. at the Wayne County Courthouse in Honesdale, and at 9:30 a.m. in the Hamlin-Mt. Cobb area.

The first stop is to be at the Hillside Farms, from about 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

The second stop is to be at Pen-Col Farms at about 1:30 p.m.. In addition to the farms' ET work, they also claim a number of bulls which went into artificial insemination and export embryos and cattle.

The bus is tentatively scheduled to return to the courthouse at 4:30 p.m.

Carroll County Holstein Association Presents Awards

LOIS SZYMANSKI
Carroll Co. Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md. — The 1993 Carroll County Holstein Association Awards Banquet was held March 13 at the Pleasant Valley Fire Hall, near Westminster, Maryland.

Dinner was followed by a toast given by current Carroll County Dairy Princess, Mary Ellen Seraydian. She spoke of the increased quality and effort toward developing better cattle in Carroll County through genetics. She also thanked the association for promoting the breed and keeping the industry alive.

Maryland state secretary and treasurer of the Holstein Association, Anita Hill was on hand to talk about the success of Carroll County dairymen at the recent Holstein convention, held in Hagerstown on March 11.

She said that the state awards given to Carroll County people for type and production included the Joe Schwartzbeck family and Miriam and Dwayne Dell. Eight Carroll County juniors won record book awards.

The next show will be held the State Holstein Show on April 9 on Timonium, Maryland with judges Ron Long of Ohio and Harold Smith of Monkton, Maryland.

Next year, the Maryland state Holstein convention is to be held in Carroll County on March 3 and 4.

The National Convention is to be held in Seattle, in July.

Ms. Hill also announced the newest president of the Maryland State Holstein Association, Charles Iager. Jason Myers from Carroll County is the new vice president.

Gary Dell discussed the Holstein calf sale held at the Carroll County Agricultural Center on Wednesday, March 15. "We have a fine group of calves this year," he said. "Thirteen calves are out of excellent dams or grand-dams and 22 calves are out dams or grand-dams that are over $30,000 pounds in milk production."

Tom Dum of the National Holstein Association congratulated Maryland on a nice convention, then went on to remind the audience that the backbone of finances comes from registrations. (Although it may be rising from $10 per cow to $25 per cow in the near future, to be decided by vote at the nationals.)

Carroll County 4-H member, Marie Speak gave a slide presentation at the banquet. The Carroll County Holstein Association had helped fund her trip to Eur pe as part of the Carroll County cattle judging team. The slide show proved that their money was well-spent.

While in Edinburgh, Scotland, Miss Speak saw a cattle show at the Royal Highland Centre and helped judge two classes of Holsteins and two classes of Ayrshires. After the show, she saw the parade of champions which was led by the show's grand champion, "which was, of course," Miss Speak said, "a Holstein!"

Slides included pictures of the Scottish Milk Marketing Board, dairy farms in England, Germany, Belgium with high technology, milking parlors, and Switzerland where less technology was evident.

Awards also were presented at the Carroll County Holstein Association's annual banquet.

Junior All Maryland awards winners were Sam Muller, with the Junior All Maryland senior calf; Jason Watt, with the Jr. All Maryland summer yearling; Justin Watt, Jr. All Maryland junior, 2-year-old; Kristin Myers, with the reserve Jr. All Maryland junior yearling and reserve jr. Bradford Chemsweep Deadline March 31

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) — All agricultural producers in Bradford County will have a one-shot opportunity to dispose of any unwanted pesticides free of charge during 1994. Farmers will have this opportunity through Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's (PDA's) Chemsweep Program and will have until March 31 to sign up.

The program will give growers of agricultural products a means to dispose of canceled, suspended, or deteriorated pesticide products. Homeowners and commercial pesticide dealers will not be included in this program.

Growers who have stored products that deteriorated or were suspended or canceled are invited to participate in this free program. Since storage of these materials was the only safe and legal option prior to disposal, growers have stored these waste pesticides, often for many years. By participating in Chemsweep, a grower can legally dispose of waste pesticides.

Which products will be accepted? Any pesticide with an EPA registration number or prior USDA I.D. number will be accepted. Materials labeled for homeowner use will not be eligible for the program. With unidentified pesticides PDA will accept any product that can be identified as a pesticide.

If a grower has an unknown material, check the containers for label information and collect information on what crop or pest the material may have been used for. Cropping history may often narrow the scope of historical uses and help in identification. Provide all this information to the PDA personnel. They will sample all unknowns for identification and tag each container. Materials not identified as pesticides by PDA may not be accepted.

Agricultural producers who want to take advantage of this opportunity will need to list all of the pesticides that they wish to dispose of on an inventory form which they should have received in January. Inventory forms are available at the extension office. Call Tom Maloney, (717) 265-2896, if you have questions or if you need forms.

study, is still wide open for new findings.

As a practice, pasturing is closer to a form of art, and in the end may require more mental energy and attention than more widely practiced methods of livestock production.

On Tuesday, during an all-day seminar of pasturing held in a meeting room at the Farm Show building in Harrisburg, four professional agronomic experts working for Penn State University or the USDA provided a basic framework for understanding the basics of pasturing.

In addition, two dairymen who practice pasturing as a controlled form of supplemental feeding of cattle, presented their views and opinions on the practice and how it fits into their individual operations. They were Forrest Stricker, of Berks County, who has milks about 60 Holsteins and has been pasturing for a year to provide fresh forages, and Tom Williams of Dauphin County, who has been pasturing his Jersey herd for eight years.

If anything was concluded at the end of the seminar, it was that pasturing has the potential to reduce overhead costs in a number of areas of animal husbandry, and raise net gain, but the extent to which the practice can be used is farm and farmer specific.

The seminar was sponsored jointly by the Penn State University Extension, the USDA Soil Conservation Service, and the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council.

Speakers included Paul Craig, an agronomist who serves as Dauphin County Extension agent; Dr. Marvin Hall, an assistant professor and forage agronomist at Penn State University; Dr. Jerry Jung, a senior researcher with the USDA Pasture Research Laboratory at State College; and Duane Pysher, a grassland management specialist with the USDA Soil and Conservation Service, in Harrisburg.

Craig began the seminar with a talk stating that his specialty is the agronomics of soils and crop production and how he and Pysher, after attending one of several other grazing seminars offered to farmers over the course of the past several years, decided to focus on the basics of forage production in pastures, such as considering soil fertility and weed control.

Of the estimated 100 people who attended the seminar, about a dozen indicated they already practice pasturing as a part of their operation. Attendees came from all over the state and Maryland.

And while the seminar wasn't intended to focus on any specific livestock production, the most common use and interest of pasturing locally has been in the dairy industry.

Craig said that in checking with the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service, there are about 1.5 million acres in pasture in Pennsylvania. About 800,000 acres of that is classified as suitable for cropland. Another 400,000 acres are suitable for nothing but pasture, and the remainder is classified as woodland.

About half of the acres considered pasture are not being maximized for production, he said.

Craig said that poor soil fertility, weed problems and erosion are some of the major concerns with pastures, but it's a Catch-22, he said. Poor soil fertility leads to weed problems, which leads to poor ground cover, which leads to erosion, which leads to poor soil fertility, etc.

The way to break the cycle is to understand the components of the pasture, and possible components of a pasture, before entering into a serious program of using pasture forages as a dependable source of nutrition for livestock.

"If there is one thing you could do, it is to put a fence down the middle (of a pasture) and flip-flop," he said.

"I see farmers who know how to grow soybeans, corn, alfalfa, but have forgotten how to grow grass," he said.

"Timing is key. It's (a matter of knowing) why it happens and when it happens," Craig said.

According to Craig, key to understanding the potential of pasturing, is to understand the plants themselves — what time of year and how often they can be grazed.

It is also key that a farmer considering increasing the use of pastureland must be realistic, Craig said. "Instead of trying to make things grow where they're not supposed to grow," Craig said, producers should concentrate on areas where forage production is possible.

In his preview, Craig said that three things have to come together in order for pasturing to work — the needs of the plant being foraged, the needs of the animal, and the abilities of the producer.

"By understanding the basics, you get an understanding of everything else," he said.

Pysher, in trying to make a point that pastures need to be cultivated in order for them to provide the types of returns and dependability that is needed to support livestock production, joked that he was sure that pastureland was sacred ground — it had to be, he said, "... because the lime and fertilizer truck are never allowed anywhere near it."

The major goal of prescribed pasturing is to provide quality forage for grazing animals throughout the growing season. Also, he reiterated what Craig said about effective pasturing being a combination of meeting the needs of the animal with the needs of the plant.

The key, according to all speakers, was the farmer himself — the farmer's ability to keep records, his efforts to learn about the plants that may work into a program on his specific farm, and his ability to realistically analyze his land's potential.

The end result is not an isolated practice, but an integral practice, if pasturing is to be done correctly. The end result is a grazing system.

Pysher reviewed the basics of plant growth, but emphasized the difference between managing plant growth for continous grazing stand production, and managing plant growth for fall harvest.

The difference is in understanding how plants operate.

Of the sunlight, water and carbon that plants combine into growth, a certain portion of the carbohydrates manufactured during photosynthisis is stored in the root system as reserves.

It is these reserves that an established plant uses to generate new growth, once the stems and leaves have been lost, either through season-end die-back, or through removal by grazing or cutting.

If the plant is grazed too often, the root reserves are drained, resulting in plant death or poor performance. If the plant is grazed too far down to the ground, the growth zone is removed and further growth must come from the base of the plant, or the root, which requires more energy by the plant.

If the plant is not grazed soon enough, it will go into its reproductive stage and lose its feed qualities.

Balancing the management of the animals, with the management of the forage plants is the role of the producer.

Pysher talked briefly about a couple of different types of forage plants most commonly in use, such as Kentucky Bluegrass, and he described its reserve energy storage in shallow roots called rhizomes.

He compared that with Orchard Grass, which typically stores its regrowth energy above the soil line, in the first three inches. If a producer allows an animal to graze the plant below that point, there is no reserve for regrowth.

"You have to understand the morphological differences," he also said, between a plant in its vegetative stage and its reproductive stage.

Although, none of the experts used the analogy, anyone who has raised and harvest aspargus, knows that the edible part is the shoot, and a single plant can send up a number of shoots during a season, allowing for a relatively long harvest period.

If the asparagus plant's shoots aren't cut off, and the shoot is allow to grow, the plant goes into its reproductive stage, which resemebles a green leafy bush, and eventually goes into seed production.

Similarly, the grasses, legumes, brassicas, and other plants which can be used to establish a productive pasture are used for forage while in the vegetative stage, when moisture, energy, palatibility, and digestability are high in quality, and yield is still good.

There is more yield in allowing a plant to go into the reproductive stage, but the quality for forage is low, and the plant isn't as likely to respond well.

The balancing act comes at trying to graze a particular plant after it has reached a height that is protective of its regenerative abilities near the soil, but not yet mature enough to begin developing tough structural matter.

Dr. Hall, who has published much of the findings of Dr. Jung's 35 years of work with pasture research for Extension use, discussed improving pasture productivity, specifically as to the fundamentals of cool season forage crops.

According to Hall, generally through a season, there are two periods of growth — in the spring into early summer, and again from the fall into early winter. The summer slump, when there is no growth, is something producers have to learn to live with.

While Hall doesn't necessarily recommend that beginning pasturers concern themselves with some of the plants which can be also raised in a pasture to provide summer forage, he said there is potential using warm season grasses and brassicas to extend pasture use longer into summer and fall.

Hall outlined the fundementals of timing with grazing, talking about the quick regrowth of spring and the shorter intervals of rest required for a pasture between grazings during that time.

He said that cool season perennials are the backbone of pasturing in Pennsylvania, and they need to be nurtured just as well.

He suggested taking soil tests, sampling no deeper than three inches.

He also talked about identifying existing plants, and techniques for creating an established pasture. Fertilization, grazing and haying, and weed control are issues to be concerned with, he said.

Poor fertilization results in weeds outcompeting desired plants. The timing of grazing and haying is as critical as though alfalfa was being harvested for maximum protein and energy.

He gave a number of specific tips on management, all of which are available through Extension services. He warned against puting manure on young legumes, which actually helps the grasses and weeds to growth, not the legumes; applying fertilyzer after first grazing, or an August grazing; and redefining the term, "weed."

For example, a variety of chickory, commonly considered a weed, and which previously required a permit to raise, can now be grown because of its nutritional value as livestock feed.

Hall calls them forage weeds.

"Generally, weeds do not influences a pasture persistance, once the pasture is established," he said, adding that, like other established stands of plants, eventually pests, poor soil fertility, or poor grazing management can destroy the stand and allow an opportunity for weeds to become established.

In his talk, Jung discussed the variety of plants which can and perhaps should be found in a pasture, because of the animal benefits. He said there are a number of different plants which can provide minerals in good quantities, in addition to plants which provide energy and protein.

He also talked about some varieties of plants, such as the brassicas, which can be used for late fall grazing, and switch grass, a native grass, which has demonstrated some remarkable abilities to provide forage.

In fact, he said that in Switzerland, producers were trying to imitate American dairy production and reduced the number of varities of plants in pasture to one or two. They experienced a number of animal health and nutrition problems, he said.

USDA Seeks Comment

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is inviting dairy farmers, milk cooperative associations, milk handlers (shippers) and consumers to testify at a hearing on proposals to amend the Middle Atlantic federal milk marketing order.

The hearing will begin on May 2 at 9 a.m., at the Holiday Inn-Independence Mall, 400 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Lon Hatamiya, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said a federation of dairy producer cooperatives, which requested the hearing, proposes to amend the order's "pooling" provisions. At issue are the rules for amounts of milk its members must deliver or distribute under the order to be eligible to receive the order's benefits, he said.

The Middle Atlantic milk marketing order affects northern Virginia, eastern Maryland, southeastern Pennsylvania, Delaware, southern New Jersey, and the District of Columbia.

Details of the hearing were published as a notice in the March 4 Federal Register. Copies of the notice are available from Rex F. Lothrop, Market Administrator, Suite 200 Essex Building, 333 N. Fairfax Street, Alexandria, VA. 22314, or USDA, AMS, Dairy Division, Order Formulation Branch, Rm. 2971-So. Bldg., P.O. Box 96456, Washington, D.C. 20090-6456, tel. Nozzle Damage From Improper Cleaning Can Cause Sprayer Problems

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

EAST EARL (Lancaster Co.) — Improperly cleaning a sprayer nozzle can cost a lot of money in misapplied pesticide applications, according to a recent demonstration provided as part of an afternoon series of workshops conducted midweek at various Lancaster County sites.

In one case, a few seconds spent cleaning debris out of a brass flat fan nozzle with a nail caused a 25 percent disparity in distribution of spray material, according to a demonstration at the John Zimmerman farm in East Earl. The demonstration was provided Wednesday afternoon to 16 farmers by Jeff Stoltzfus, adult farmer instructor for the Eastern Lancaster County School District.

The workshops, sponsored by the Lancaster County Conservation District, showed the workings of an array of different types of nozzles and some of the important steps applicators can take to ensure their nozzles are proper for the application and are clean and ready to use.

Sprayer testing should be conducted after nozzle inspection. According to Stoltzfus, applicators should use either pressurized air to clean the nozzles or a simple toothbrush. Using a piece of wire or nail, according to Stoltzfus, can damage the nozzle and effect the spray rate significantly.

Applicators have a wide range of nozzle types to choose from, including brass, stainless steel, plastic, or ceramic. On most applications, the stainless steel, which costs a little more, will last longer. But the ceramic will last up to 20 times longer under normal applications, according to a sprayer manufacturer representative at the meeting.

Sprayer calibration is necessary and vital, especially in light of new herbicides that have applications down to the fraction of the ounces per acre. In all cases, when calibrating the sprayer, applicants should use only water to determine accuracy of delivery (speed of sprayer) and pressure.

Appicators need to ensure that the pattern of spray is uniform and overlaps about 40-50 percent. Also, the nozzle should be set 10 degrees off the boom in order to ensure no heavy streaks where the two sprays come together. Inspect the spray delivery on asphalt or fine gravel.

The heighth of the sprayer is significant. For foliar application with smaller droplets, the sprayer needs to be positioned at a lower height. For applications requiring a larger droplet, the boom can be set a little higher if there is no worry about wind and sprayer drift, according to Stoltzfus.

Stoltzfus and applicator John Zimmerman provided a demonstration of how to check sprayer calibration. A 14-row boom spray calibration was done. "There are a number of different ways to calibrate sprayers," said Stoltzfus.

Stoltzfus said that, according to a recent survey, 70 percent of sprayers had some form of application problem. A high percentage showed great variability across the boom for whatever reason, he said.

To calibrate a sprayer, first mark a straight line measuring 204 feet. The boom sprayer, with nozzles on 20-inch centers, is towed by tractor at full throttle at a speed of 5 miles per hour. If the sprayer is set right, and the speed is maintained for that distance, about 16 ounces should be collected at exactly 26 seconds of flow time. This works out to a 16-gallon-per-acre application rate.

To measure flow, a simple measuring cup can be used, or bottles can be placed under each nozzle to determine volume. Another method would be to use a tip flow meter, also called a tip tester, which measures flow from the nozzles in gallons per minute.

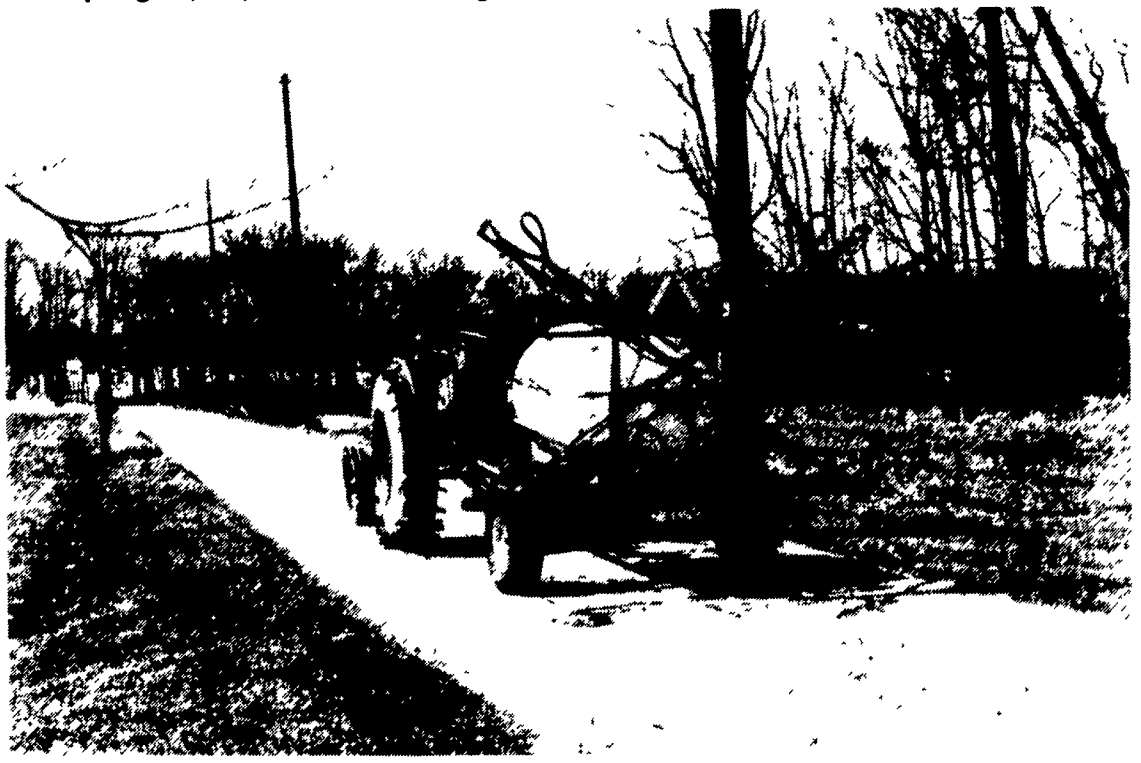
Applicators should keep in mind that if calibrating for liquid nitrogen, flow rates should be adjusted because of the greater density of liquid nitrogen compared to water.

Applicators should check for blocked, cracked, or otherwise damaged hoses. Pressure should be consistent up and down the line, said Stoltzfus.

(Turn to Page A33)

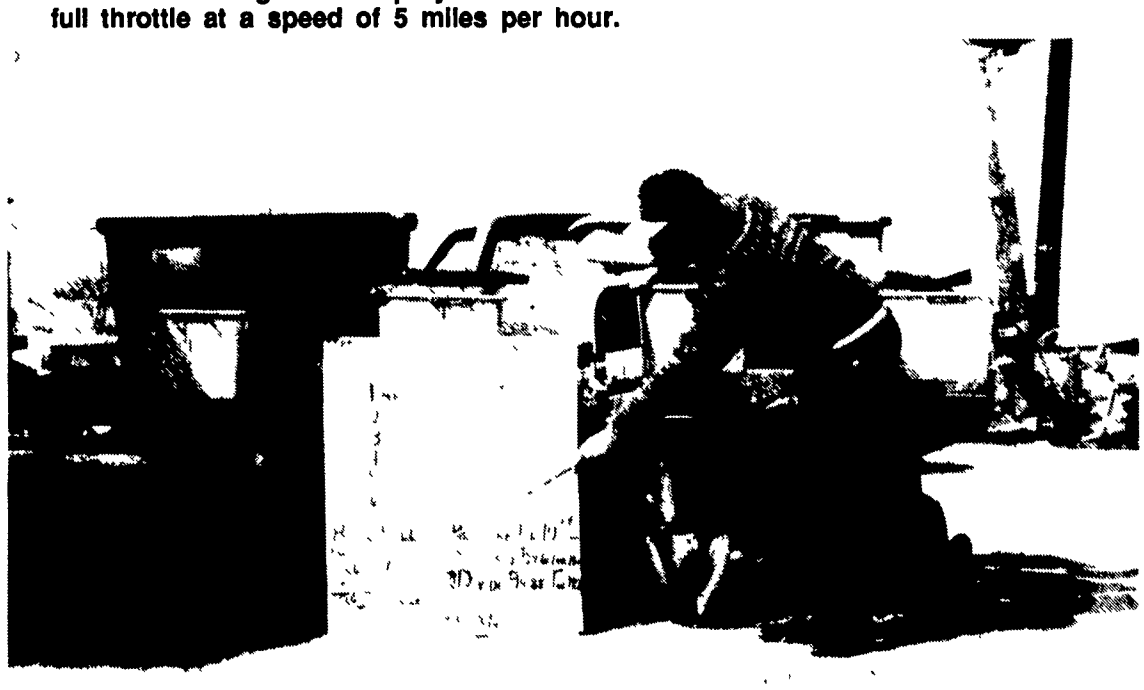
For backpack sprayers, the same applies for checking nozzle spray area (10 inches recommended) and hoses for even pressure and flow rate. Bob Anderson, Lancaster crops agent, left, checks the starting time for Travis Martin, conservation technician.

Jeff Stoltzfus, center, helps applicators check volume of spray to determine correct calibration. "There are a number of different ways to calibrate sprayers," said Stoltzfus.



To calibrate a sprayer, a straight line is marked at 204 feet. John Zimmerman is on the tractor driving a boom sprayer with nozzles on 20-inch centers. The tractor is in full throttle at a speed of 5 miles per hour.

To measure flow, a simple measuring cup can be used, or bottles can be placed under each nozzle to determine volume. Here, applicators hold measuring cups underneath the boom.



Dan Marini, Zeneca technical sales representative, provided information on calibrating pesticide hoppers. Marini emphasized the importance of taking the right steps to ensure safety when applying pesticides.

Susquehanna County Holds Dairy Day

RONALD D. CLARK
Susquehanna Co. Correspondent

ELK LAKE (Susquehanna Co.) — Two "hot" topics getting a lot of attention by dairy farmers, plus a third which is always of interest, were the highlights of the Dairy Day sessions held at the Elk Lake High School.

The event was sponsored by the Susquehanna County Penn State Cooperative Extension and area organizations and suppliers.

More than 50 exhibitors and sponsors were present and contributed door prizes. They also arranged for and provided a catered roast beef dinner to those in attendance.

Scott Harrison, Penn State specialist on pest control, led off the sessions by giving a description of the worker protection standards which were introduced two years ago, and which go into effect on April 15 of this year. Some dairy farmers will be affected, in cases where their employees handle pesticides or in the course of their duties go into treated areas which are restricted.

Harrison emphasized the importance of directions which must appear on the labels of pesticides. To be in compliance with the law, these directions must be observed by commercial applicators and users who employ persons who may come in contact with the substances.

Very important are the restricted-entry intervals which must appear on the labels. Such intervals range upward from 12 hours, and if restricted substances are used, employees must be trained on safe and proper ways in which they should be handled.

Any area treated by pesticides with stated restricted entry intervals must be posted with a warning "Do not enter." Sometimes it may be necessary to enter such areas during the restricted interval. When this is the case, instructions will be on the labels regarding protective equipment or clothing, and these instructions also have the force of law. Labeling is the responsibility of the manufacturer, and while existing stocks may be sold to users, all new materials must be properly labeled.

Harrison also pointed out the importance of keeping records on the use of all pesticides. If hazardous materials are kept, notice must be posted in a place apparent to hired workers, along with instructions for prevention of injury and safe use of the materials. Enforcement will be by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA), and noncompliance will subject farmers to penalties. Further information on the standards may be obtained from county extension offices or from PDA.

Dairy farmers appear to be less affected by the standards than are fruit and vegetable growers, as the standards do not apply to use of substances directly on livestock. However, as further rules may be promulgated by the EPA where soil and water quality may be affected by pesticides, it is important that dairy farmers keep alert to any requirements which may apply to them.

Pesticide credit may be awarded for this program.

Nick Place, Susquehanna County extension director, made a presentation on the issues of BST use. BST, or bovine somatotropin, is a hormone which is naturally produced in a cow's system. It has been used for some years in its natural form to enhance growth in cattle and to try to increase milk production. The natural form was obtained from the pituitary gland of cull cows. Naturally, this limited the supply and did not provide enough of the substance to be an economic factor.

However, during the 1970s, a recombinant form was developed, using a host bacteria to provide the hormone in quantity. During the 1980s, tests on dairy herds were conducted. Based on these tests, BST was declared safe by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and approved for use in producing herds in mid-February 1994.

When BST is injected in cows, it acts on the liver to stimulate growth, milk production, and other body functions. Because the FDA has made the determination that no adverse effects result from its use, no labeling is required for products produced through its use.

Place showed a short videotape which showed how recombinant BST was developed, how it is used, and how it was tested prior to its FDA approval. He noted that it would add another management tool to dairy husbandry, and through its use milk could be produced at less cost, thereby making dairy products more competitive on the world market.

The video presentation showed how more feed would be needed to maintain cows' conditions with the added production, and also that high production, no matter how achieved, tended to bring on a greater incidence of mastitis. Also, high production goes hand in hand with a delay in settling cows with calf, and this phenomenon has been evident in the animals in the tests.

Susquehanna County Dairy Princess Jennie Ann Shamro and Dairy Ambassador Michael Kowalewski were introduced, and each gave a brief rundown on their activities during their period of service thus far. They were emphatic in stating the self-confidence they have gained and the new contacts and friends they have made as they carry out their promotional activities for the dairy industry. Most impressive is the enthusiasm with which they are received by school children and by residents of homes for the aged.

Following dinner served in the high school cafeteria, Harrison returned to continue his presentation on pesticide management. Since there is always a potential for contamination when these substances are transported and used, care must be constant, and at least rudimentary preparation must be taken. It is wise to carry a shovel and a substance similar to cat litter to contain any spillage if it occurs.

Proper storage is also vital. Ideally, storage areas should be separated from other areas of activity. Structures should be in good shape with solid roofs and floors that are waterproof. Any pesticide should be kept apart from stock feeds, seeds, and fertilizers. There is always a concern about ground and water contamination, and mixing areas and equipment cleaning sites should be built and managed to insure that no pesticides pollute any area.

Ideally, when a pesticide is applied, there should be no material left over. If there is, it should be diluted and the weak solution applied to a treated field. Empty containers must be cleaned thoroughly by triple rinsing. Some landfills accept this, and it is possible to have plastic containers recycled. Outdated substances and those which should be disposed of should be carefully stored until arrangements are made to dispose of them. The state conducts a one-time disposal system called Cleansweep, and your county agent will tell you when this service will be available.

Dr. Larry Muller, professor of dairy science at Penn State, gave his thoughts on what the dairy industry in this country will be like 10 years hence. He foresees my success," said Hoffman. "In his time, I considered him one of the top farmers."

'Waist-High' Soybeans Create Award Opportunity For Berks Farmer

Hoffman works about 350 acres, including rented ground, and grows about 125 acres of soybeans and 125 acres of corn. The balance is in wheat and hay.

In 1974, Hoffman quit his job at Philadelphia Suburban Water and went into full-time farming, raising about 1,000 head of beef per year. In 1980, he sold the farm and purchased the current farm, moving in to the farmstead (constructed about 1832) in 1984.

Hoffman farms with his wife, Carolyn. Occasionally, his sons and daughters — Stephen, 31; Wilson C., 26; Christina, 30; and Sarah, 27 — help on the farm.

Hoffman no longer raises beef. His entire operation is cash-cropped.

He attributes the current success to good management and some suppliers, including the work of Bill Cribbs at Moyer and Sons, Souderton; Jeff Patton, the marketing extension agent in Lehigh county; and John Yocum, contest manager. They helped the soybean grower with soil test recommendations and measuring the yields.

Also, Hoffman recently went on tour of the soybean growing operations in Brazil, where land can be purchased at about $20 per acre in 10,000-acre plots. He said farmers in this country often find it hard to compete with the Brazilian soybean crop in a country where labor is about $2 a day.

Hoffman went on the tour through the auspices of the Men For Missions International in January 1993. Hoffman said he learned a great deal about the management practices with the South America growers. Also, he learned a great deal from speaking to tour members from various states, including Colorado, Iowa, Wisconsin, Indiana, and others.

Hoffman, to help him in his marketing, also subscribes to a satellite commodity price service. He has already marketed 100 percent of his wheat and 50 percent of his soybeans for 1994.

Hoffman uses a combination of tillage practices, including about 75 percent minimum tillage (chisel plow and disc) and 25 percent no-till. He said he waits until the soil is dry enough before going into the fields to prevent compaction. Here, he inspects a Vermeer soybean planter.

Wayne County To Start Tractor Club

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — The 1994 Wayne County 4-H Tractor and Farm Machinery Safety Certification Program will begin on Tuesday, April 5, at 8 p.m. at the Wayne County Cooperative Extension, Courthouse in Honesdale. Other meeting dates are April 12, April 19, April 26 and May 3.

This 4-H program is designed mainly for 14- to 16-year-old youths who intend to work on area farms this spring and summer. It can also be valuable safety training for others currently operating or working with farm tractors or other farm equipment.

A total of five classroom-type meetings are scheduled for this year's program.

Every 4-H member who completes this project will also receive a "4-H Tractor and Machinery Maintenance and Safety Completion Certificate."

Please contact the Wayne County 4-H Office for additional information. The number to call is 253-5970, ext. 239.

Nozzle Damage From Improper Cleaning

For backpack sprayers, the same applies for checking nozzle spray area (10 inches recommended) and hoses for even pressure and flow rate.

Most importantly, according to Stoltzfus, applicators should read the label carefully to determine rates. Also, safety precautions, including wearing gloves and eye and lung protection, are necessary when applying any types of pesticides.

Dan Marini, Zeneca technical sales representative, and Ty Brininger, Zeneca intern, were on hand to provide information on calibrating pesticide hoppers. Marini emphasized the importance of taking the right steps to ensure safety when applying pesticides. There are also some companies working on completely "closed systems" that will ensure farmers are kept out of contact with pesticide material.

A demonstration on the free streambank fencing program offered through the district was presented by Travis Martin, conservation technician.

According to Jim Shirk, conservation technician, the three-day workshop provided four core pesticide applicator credits.

Bob Anderson, county crops agent, spoke about a recent pesticide container survey which indicated a few applicators were using discarded pesticide containers for other uses. "That's not the proper thing to do," he said. While many farmers burn the containers, a new program allows farmers to bring the containers to a site for recycling. More details about the program will be available in a few months.

The tour was also conducted at the farms operated by Don Welk in Strasburg Township and at the Ken Zurin farm in Salunga. Next Wednesday, March 30, will be the last time credits will be offered in the county at a Wheat Production Management meeting to be held from 8:30 a.m.-10 a.m. in Lancaster at the Farm and Home Center, according to Anderson.

Strong Families Become Involved In Community

For her, family strength is not merely having an ingrown family unit, but a strong family that reaches out to meet the needs of the community.

Dottie said that her philosophy has always been "To establish reasonable balance in outside activities, work schedules, and family."

Her solution for simultaneously caring for children and becoming involved in outside activities was to involve the children in whatever she did.

That meant that when the children joined 4-H, she became a 4-H leader by teaching cooking and sewing. Later she joined the 4-H Development Board and became a clothing and textile master. She branched out into other extension services by become a board member of the Family Life Advisory Committee, and for the past 18 years, she has taught crafts at the Homemaker's Camp, sponsored by the extension.

Church activities also fills a big slot in family life. Now that the children are grown, Dottie is pleased that her grandchildren take an interest in getting involved. Recently, a daughter and a seven-year-old grandson joined Dottie and the Women's Fellowship at the Hain's United Church of Christ in Wernersville to make more than 200 pounds of candy as a fundraiser. It's something that Dottie and other family members have been doing for 30 years.

"I think it is important to involve family members to do things with your friends," Dottie said.

Dottie grew up in a family of seven children.

"My father was very strict. We worked all time," Dottie said.

There was no differential treatment between the boys and girls in the family. Dottie was expected to load and unload hay as fast as her brothers.

Unlike her older siblings, Dottie wanted to graduate from high school. When she approached her dad, he agreed to allow her to do so if she was willing to walk two miles every day to the bus stop. She did.

"My father eventually bought me a bicycle to ride back and forth," Dottie said.

Situations such as this instilled the belief within Dottie that goals often require sacrifice.

After high school graduation, Dottie took over the housekeeping duties because her mother had health problems. A few years later, she married Wilbur, with whom she recently celebrated 50 years of marriage.

The couple moved on Wilbur's family's 113-acre farm. Starting off with a few cows, chickens, and pigs, the couple soon added another 78-acre farm, a full-size dairy, and did custom combining on the side.

Dottie worked side by side with her husband until the boys of their nine-children family were old enough to help outside.

Dottie concentrated her efforts in household, sewing, and cooking chores.

"Housework can be fun. I always enjoyed it," Dottie said.

Being a speedy worker, Dottie was able to whiz through the housework and find other outlets for her energy.

Church activities have included Sunday school teaching and being superintendent, overseeing the Mother's Club and Guild, and Women's Fellowship.

Dottie became a member of Farm Women 28 years ago when she first heard about it and started Group #7 because there wasn't a group established nearby. Since then she has served on many county and state office and committees for the organization.

This year, as state president, Dottie looks forward to attending all the county conventions. She especially enjoys overnight stays in the homes of other Farm Women members. It was that enjoyment that gave her the idea for the tour that Farm Women organize every year. During the next two years, members will tour Pennsylvania, concentrating especially on those counties that have Farm Women groups. The tours will focus on culture craft shops and villages.

For 30 years, Dottie has been making Easter candy at her church. The importance of doing things with extended family members and with friends is continually emphasised in Dottie's conversations. With her are a daughter Jane Bezner, a sister Esther Groff, and grandson Michael.

Members who cannot participate in the two-week long tours can join the group for one-day excursions to become better acquainted with other members.

Theoretically, Dottie and her husband retired six years ago. That meant they sold their farm to a neighboring farmer. But work hasn't stopped. Dottie is up at 7 a.m. and busy until 11 or 12 at night. She watches little T.V. because she prefers to sew or do things.

"I can always find something to do," she said.

Her daughter agreed.

> "My mother has boundless energy. She is always doing something for someone and some organization. She is always strong, faithful, and committed to people."

"My mother has boundless energy," daughter Jane Bezner said. "She is always doing something for someone and some organization. She is always strong, faithful, and committed to people. No matter what happens, she keeps working."

Recently Dottie sewed 50 sleeping bags for the homeless, and two dozen wheelchair tote bags and lap robes for those in nursing homes because someone had given her boxes of material and she saw the need. She collects food for the Berks County Emergency Shelter and delivers it on a weekly basis.

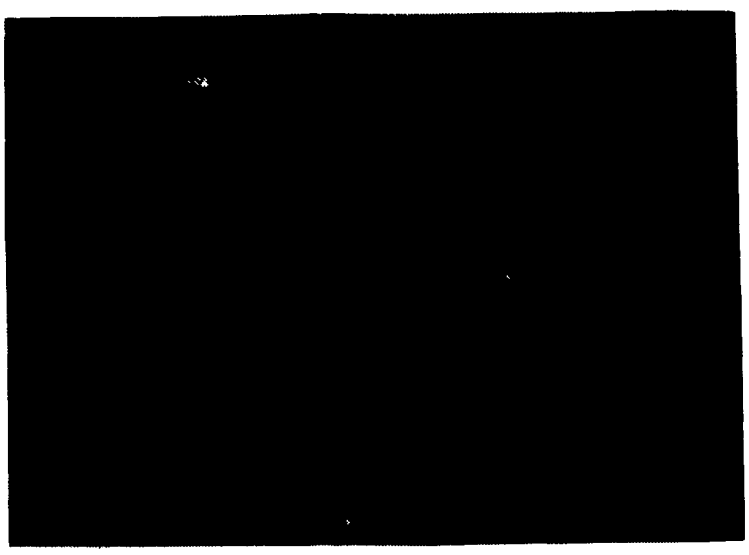
She sews throw pillows and quillows for all her children's and in-law's homes.

Dottie and her husband now participate in activities at three senior centers and are pinocle club members.

Profuse flower beds surround the Stricker home. "Last year not one weed could be found in all my flower beds, and I have a dozen of them," she said.

She uses her own flowers to make corsages for guests at church banquets and other special ocassions.

It's just like Dottie to find something that will strengthen family, church, and community ties.



Dottie is known as a person who is always doing something for someone and some organization. No matter what happens, she keeps working.

Here is one the 50 sleeping bags that Dottie recently completed for the homeless. She said that her philosophy has always been "to establish reasonable balance in outside activities, work schedules and family." From left, Jane and Michael Bezner, Dottie Stricker, and Esther Groff.

A Dozen Ways To Strengthen Family

—Penn State Cooperative Extension

Millions of Americans, young and old, are doing things to make their families stronger.

They're working to strengthen family ties because they feel stress is upsetting to the family.

Everyday stress piles up as family members worry about many seemingly unavoidable problems.

Family members can help each other deal with everyday tensions and strains.

Building a strong family is the best insurance against the devastating effects of family stress.

Every family, including yours, has its strong points. What are your family's strong points?

To find out more about strengthening your family and how to do it, contact the Cooperative Extension Service office in your county.

1. Spend time with each other, do things together as a family.
2. Plan ahead with your family so things will happen and not just happen.
3. Establish a reasonable balance between outside activities, work schedules, and your family.

Getting Cows Off To A Good Start In Lactation

Most dairy producers want their cows to peak well, have good persistency of production, and breed back well. Getting cows off to a good start in their next lactation requires attention to several areas of management: the heifer program, late lactation cows, the dry-cow group, close-up cows and cows in early lactation.

Heifer Program

Heifers should calve at around 22 to 24 months of age at a weight of about 1300 pounds before calving. That means they need to gain an average of 1.7 to 1.8 pounds per day. Heifers that make most of their growth before calving generally have fewer calving problems, produce better in their first lactation, and gain flesh back more rapidly.

Avoid getting calves and heifers too fat; feed them for growth. Getting heifers too fat before breeding age can impair udder development and conception rates. Fat heifers also are more sluggish at calving time triggering a higher incidence of difficult births plus all the problems associated with calving difficulties.

Pushing heifers for rapid growth on rations that are too rich in energy and improperly balanced can cause foundering at a very young age, a problem which can become real pronounced early in their first lactation.

Late Lactation Cows

Cows should be dried off at a body score of about 3.5. This can be accomplished by regulating rations in late lactation, but give yourself ample time to get the job done. Remember, one body condition score is equivalent to about 125 pounds, or about 10% of a cow's body weight. If a cow needs to improve her flesh by 1 body score, and if you can get her to gain 2 pounds per day while she is still trying to produce milk, you'll need at least 2 months to get the job done. You may want to body score your cows about 3 weeks before dry off to get an idea of what adjustments in feeding and grouping are necessary.

Late lactation is also a good time to culture and treat cows to determine types of infections and to reduce udder infections before dry-off time. Both of these practices can help make a dry treatment program more effective.

The Dry Group

These cows should be grouped separately so they can be properly managed. You may also want to include heifers in this group so they can receive similar care.

Give cows an adequate dry period so they have time to repair and rebuild udder tissue. This requires about 60 days for heifers and high producing cows, and 50-55 days for other cows.

Dry treat all quarters of all cows.

Aim to dry cows off at a uniform body score of about 3.5. Remember, a group of dry cows with similar body scores is much easier to manage properly, than a group of cows that vary in flesh condition. Maintain this level of flesh up to calving time. Don't try to take weight off fat cows during the dry period; it forces them to dip into their body's reserve supply of nutrients, which is the last thing we want to do as we approach the stressful times of calving and early lactation.

Feed dry cows a specially-prepared dry-cow ration. They need it! Their needs are quite different from those of lactating cows. Some things to focus on are vitamin and mineral levels. In addition to selenium, vitamin E, calcium and phosphorus, also be concerned about potassium and magnesium. Many of our feeds, grown on well-manured and well-fertilized fields are high in potassium levels. Because of this, you may want to purchase grass hay grown under different conditions, or consider feeding, and anionic mineral mix to cows in the close-up group. Many of the fresh cow problems dairymen observe could be related to high levels of potash in feeds grown on heavily manured and heavily fields. It's something to discuss with your nutritionist.

Feed dry cows bulky, long-stemmed forages that stimulate good rumen function, and the development of a more capacious rumen. This will help to heal the gut lining and encourage greater dry matter intakes soon after calving.

The dry period is also a good time to let cows get off concrete and let them get more exercise. It's also a good time to trim feet and to boost cows' immune status. Vaccination programs can vary, and you may want to consult your veterinarian for advice.

Close-Up Cows And Springtime Heifers

About 3 weeks before calving, start increasing grain feeding rates gradually to a maximum of about 0.7% of body weight (about 8 lbs. for larger breeds). This encourages the growth and development of papillae on the gut wall. The greater the papillae development the more nutrients a cow can absorb, which is very crucial at calving time and in early lactation. The gut needs to be ready to absorb nutrients efficiently at calving time, not at 2-3 weeks after calving.

KEEP COWS ON FEED! This is so important! One day off feed, either before or after calving, can cause cows to mobilize a lot of body fat rapidly, which can result in fatty livers. Cows with fatty livers are more apt to become ketotic, go off feed, get twisted stomachs, and they are more susceptible to infections because of a suppressed immune system. As feed intakes drop, think of ways you can increase the nutrient density of the ration. This might be accomplished by top dressing the dry-cow ration with special supplements, by feeding them a few pounds of the high-group TMR or concentrate mix, etc. Again, this is something to discuss with your nutritionist.

Remember all those "dumb" heifers that don't adapt to stalls, herdmates, and work routines after calving? Besides being a real nuisance, these heifers also are more apt to have more hock and leg ailments. The dry period is a good time to help them adjust to their milking herdmates, to dairy workers, to changes in the feeding program, to concrete, to new facilities and surroundings, etc. Get them acclimated before calving, so they don't have to make them at a time when we expect them to maximize feed intake and milk production. Remember, one way to reduce cows feed intake and dry them off is to change their feed, put them in a new stall or in a pen with a different group of cows, change their daily routine, etc. Are we doing these same things to heifers when we bring them into the milking string for their first lactation?

Provide cows and heifers with a clean, dry, sanitary maternity area, so they have a better chance of starting their lactation free from the additional stress of udder and uterine infections. Cows with infections don't feel well, don't eat well, and consequently do not get off to as good a start. Observe cows closely, and act fast to prevent little problems from turning into larger, costlier problems.

Early Lactation

After calving, the big challenge again is to KEEP COWS ON FEED, doing whatever it takes to stimulate their appetites. Consider feeding some buffers, niacin, yeast, etc. Keep feeds fresh and palatable. Feed frequently or push feeds up frequently. Keep bunks and waterers clean and provide at least 2 feet of bunk space per cow.

Creating a separate group for first-calf heifers can be very beneficial, not because they need a different ration, but because of their inability to adjust socially.

Weigh the amount of feeds fed and the amount refused to accurately determine the amount actually consumed. Equally important, test moisture content of feeds regularly. Then reformulate the ration and adjust feeding rates accordingly.

As soon as cows are on feed, start increasing grain feeding rates gradually, being sure to observe intakes and being careful not to throw cows off feed.

As you feed more grain, and perhaps some fat too, be sure cows are consuming their forages and getting a sufficient amount of effective fiber to maintain good cud chewing activity, good saliva production, good rumen function and good rumen health. At least 40-45% of the total dry matter intake should come from forage — more if grain is fed separate from forages, if feeding finely-chopped forages, or if silages are high in moisture. Neutral detergent fiber intake from forages should be about 0.95% of body weight.

Feed early lactation cows high quality feeds. Feed no more than about 6-8 lbs. of grain at any one feeding, and try to offer cows some forage before feeding grain.

Over the years, we've been taught to feed cows according to milk production. With high producing cows it may be more appropriate to formulate rations on the basis of a certain level of milk production, but then feed cows according to their flesh condition. This means feeding cows all the feed they want to eat and then enticing them to eat a little more in order to maximize dry matter intakes, to minimize the loss of flesh and to encourage rapid recovery of flesh. If we do this, production will automatically follow. Once cows are back to proper flesh, feeding rates can be brought back in line with production.

As you can see, a lot of things affect a cow's lactation curve. Getting cows off to a good start requires a lot of attention to details and timely action.

EAYFA Sponsors Political Debate

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — The Ephrata Area Young Farmers Association (EAYFA) is sponsoring a political debate of five candidates for the seat of state representative of the 99th District, set for 7:30 p.m., April 5, at the Foxchase Golf Club, in Stevens.

According to a news release, five candidates — four registered Republican and one Democrat — are seeking the seat that is being vacated by incumbant Rep. Terry Scheetz, who announced he will not seek reelection.

The debate is to be held in the Palmer Room of the golf club, and is open to the public at not cost.

For more information, call Karen Becker at (717) 859-3276.

Eleven Year High

If you're looking for something to cheer you up during a record snowfall, here it is — the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series hit an 11-year high of $12.41 for February.

That wasn't any better than last month but it was $1.67 better than last year.

This may very well mean that, for the next three or four months, the trend will be higher rather than lower, as expected for this time of the year.

It appears that milk production has peaked in the Southeast, is still going up in the West, and is lower in the Midwest and Northeast.

This means a continuing trend of what we have seen the last seven months and one that may not change until we grow new forage particularly in the north central states.

Winter weather is still taking its toll on milk production, but feed supply and quality may be even more limiting.

Product Price

Lower milk production, or the threat of continued lower production, is moving up dairy product prices counter-seasonally.

Cheese prices had the largest weekly increase last Friday, since September.

In the last four weeks, block prices are up nearly 3 cents and barrels are up nearly 4 cents.

And it isn't only cheese. Butter prices that haven't seen an increase in months were up 3 cents. Powder markets are "steady to firm" with small but steady increases.

History Lesson

So, what's so great about an 11-year high in the M-W price?

Isn't everything priced higher than it was 11 years ago? But milk pricing is different than many other things including other farm products. So, how come we go back 11 years? Why not five or 15 or 20 years? That's where the history lesson starts.

It was back in 1983 that the M-W was $12.59 in February and those with good memories, or records, will remember the early 1980's as the years of the highest support prices.

The support price then was $12.80 but even with government help, the M-W only made $12.59 in February.

Those were the days when dairy support prices were linked to the Index of Prices Paid and adjustments were made every six months.

That finally ended when the support price went from $10.51 to $12.80, so Congress stopped all further increases and President Reagan signed the bill in his hospital room after an attempted assassination.

By 1983, Commodity Credit Corporation purchases were nearly 17 billion pounds of milk equivalent, or 12 percent of total milk production.

Government Prices Or Market Prices

A lot of changes have taken place in dairy price support legislation since then, including some attempts at voluntary supply management.

Nothing seemed to work for long and now we're at the other extreme of support prices.

In February 1983, the support price was $12.80 and the M-W $12.59, or 21 cents lower.

In February 1994, the support price is $10 and the M-W is $12.41, or $2.41 higher.

Now CCC purchases for 1994 are estimated at five billion pounds or about three percent of total milk production.

We've come full circle from government prices to market prices. You may have ended up at the same price, but this time no one can pass a bill to take it away from you.

Md. Holds 'Elite' Jersey Sale

LOIS SZYMANSKI
Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md. — The Maryland "Elite" Jersey Heifer Sale II, sponsored by the Maryland Jersey Cattle Club, was held last Saturday here at Maryland Sunset View Farm.

Sixty head of some of the best Jersey heifers in North America were auctioned off at an average price of $2,173 per head, with a 15 percent commission going to the sponsoring club.

The high mark for the sale was a summer yearling, "Curtsey Imperial Jenny," which went for $6,500 to buyer Lorne Ella of Rock-Ella Farm in Canada.

The heifer, out of "Valleystream Title June EX-92," was of Curtsey Farms, Hubbardstown, Maine. Her pedigree contains a background of all "excellent" ratings.

Show Clerk, Chris Forsythe said, "All of the heifers in the sale were approved by sale committee before the sale." Sale organizers included Micheal Heath, Wayne Stiles, Jim Stonesifer (owner of Maryland Sunset View Farm), Jack Kahler, Mike Birch, and Mike Heath. Cattle came in from Canada, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio, New York, Virginia, Kentucky, and Maine. The Maryland State Jersey Queen, Miss Katie Norman of Fulton, Maryland was on hand to help with the clerking.

Auctioneer Chris Hill pressed for top prices with the aid of Canadian Russell Gammon who read pedigrees and outlined each heifer, relating the dams top pounds of milk production and protein counts as well as show history.

The second highest selling heifer was a summer yearling which came out of Star Point and Clay Bank Farm in Quarryville, Pa. The heifer, "SMS-CBS Hermitage Quiz Et," sold for $6,350 to George Debam of Terra View Farm, Worton, Md.

The heifer came from a prestigious background. Its dam was sold for $13,000 two years ago at the All American Sale and had a record of 57 pounds of protein, while the sire boasts sperm sales to Argentina, Canada, and Australia.

The third highest price brought at the Maryland Jersey Heifer Sale was $6,200 for an unborn first choice male or female calf out of "Gaywinds Duncan Cris-Et EX" owned by Ed and Carol Kahler of Keymar, Md. The buyer was Bernie Way of Patch Farms. An oil portrait of the dam was displayed in the ring to show the calf's potential.

Clerk Chris Forsythe said everyone involved was pleased with the outcome of the sale. "It was a success!"

Outstanding Cooperators Keen About Education, Conservation

ANDY ANDREWS

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — By exhibiting a keen interest in educating the public about farming and the values of conservation, Rapho Valley Farm, operated by Jere and Bonnie Swarr, Manheim, was honored as the 1994 Outstanding Cooperator at the Lancaster County Conservation District banquet Thursday night at Yoder's Restaurant.

In one example, the Swarrs invited Millersville University students in to learn about raising livestock and to "experience what conservation is all about," said Gerald Heistand, assistant administrator, Chesapeake Bay Program.

Rapho Valley Farm, which consists of 167 acres, is located in Rapho Township near Rt. 283. With the rented land from three other farms, the Swarrs have about 300 acres of tillable land, according to Heistand.

In addition to his own farm work, Jere custom plants between 900 and 1,200 acres of corn and soybeans. The Swarrs raise 500 beef cattle and 2,500 hogs each year.

In 1948 Earl Swarr, Jere's father, purchased a farm that needed a conservation plan. According to the district, the farm was being plowed up and down the hill. There were basically three large fields in the operation.

Earl Swarr began by taking a steep hillside out of production and transforming it into a wildlife cover. Jere started making some of the management decisions in 1977, and took over the farm in 1981, when a conservation plan was written stressing minimum tillage on the contour with heavy residue.

Heistand showed the more than 100 attending the banquet that large amounts of residue are left on the land in a series of slides. "Some people have trouble getting 30 percent (coverage)," he said, to meet requirements. "Here, we might ask, can we see 30 percent of bare area?"

During the six years Swarr has been working with the district, he has done a considerable amount of conservation work, according to the district. Even though he has been planting his corn no-till, some waterway and terrace work had to be done since he did not have a large amount of hay.

Some tile drainage was installed to help get more infiltration, leaving less water available for runoff. He signed up with the Chesapeake Bay Program in 1987 to help with installation of a diversion and manure storage structure. After improving the manure situation, Swarr used ASCS cost-share programs to help with the installation of some pipe-outleted terraces.

Various practices installed on the farm include 800 feet of waterway, 2,350 feet of subsurface drainage, 1,225 feet of pipe outlet terrace, 635 feet of underground outlet, 1,650 feet of diversion, and a manure waste structure.

Swarr cites several challenges that farmers need to address. The first challenge is to get manure incorporated and at the same time keep adequate residue on the surface for erosion control. Second is how to deal with compaction on long term no-till situations. Third is how to relate to the urban community.

Swarr is tackling some of these challenges by getting involved. He is one of the township supervisors in Rapho township. This gives him an opportunity to become involved in decision-making that affects landowners.

To work at the second challenge, he plants 90 foot strips of rye cover crop which allow him to drive on alternate fields and shoot the manure onto the planted rye. Then the rye can be no-tilled and the field that may have been compacted with the manure spreader can be minimum tilled.

To meet the third challenge, the Swarrs keep the lines of communication open with their neighbors. When it's time to apply manure next to the trailer park, they call the park owner to inform him as to when it will happen, and what is being done to keep the odor down.

The Swarrs have been doing conservation tillage, strip cropping, and cover cropping for more than 15 years. Swarr learned about conservation through his father and by doing custom work on farms that had terraces already installed, according to the district.

There are two wildlife areas on the farm. One contains a wetland which they believe adds character to the farm. A farm pond was build in 1951 and was reconditioned in 1991. It has proved useful for irrigation purposes in five of the past 11 years.

Swarr practices conservation on the land which he rents. District records show that these acres are located on 12 different tracts, some of which are next to urban areas.

A nutrient management plan was written that uses the pig and cow manure on both the owned and rented land. When yield checks were done eight years ago, Swarr was unable to find a yield response, so he stopped using starter fertilizer.

On the home farm the following crops are cultivated: 130 acres of corn; five acres of soybeans; eight acres of tobacco; eight acres of wheat; and five acres of meadow.

Only the tobacco ground gets plowed. Some of the other ground is minimum tilled with straight teeth on a chisel and about 40 percent of the ground is cover cropped in strips.

Jere Swarr said that farmers have to educate themselves "to understand the importance of what we do, and the long-term importance of our actions. If farmers would keep that in the back of their minds, conservation will just happen automatically."

Swarr and Bonnie have two sons, Eric, 9 and Tyler, 7. The Swarrs attend Bethel Mennonite Church.

Also honored at the banquet were Shirley Chrobot, for her contributions to the Youth Conservation School, and Don Robinson, district administrator, for contributions to the district.

that there will be "megadairies" with 1,000 to 5,000 cows. He believes that the family farm will have 200 to 600 head of cows, and that small family farms with 60 to 120 cows can remain in business only if they are well managed, with low debt.

Along with continued improvement in dairy stock, there will be a continuing move toward maximum pasturing. This will lessen labor needs, and with the cows doing the harvesting the largest economy can be achieved.

Muller described conditions in New Zealand, where year-around pasturing is possible, and showed that maximum production did not always maximize profits. But the New Zealand system uses a great deal less labor, uses less feed except from pastures, and has lower mastitis than U.S. dairying. Some of their practices might be useful here.

The day's program ended with the drawing of the door prizes provided by the exhibitors. These ranged from hats to motor oil to baler twine and a $50 gift certificate. The big prize for the day, however, was a calf sired by Madawaska Aerostar and born on Jan. 4. The dam is a Plushanski Buckeye daughter. The calf was won by Tom Champluluvier.

Optional programs were held concurrently with the main program. Topics covered were herd evaluation, with DHIA representative Pat Toretti in charge, and computerized farm financial packages, presented by Lehan Power, multicounty agent. Mark Madden, Penn State extension, discussed ways of controlling perennial weeds.

Before, during, and after the formal programs, the large crowd of farmers had the opportunity to visit with exhibitors and to learn of any materials which would help them in their operations.

February Milk Down

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Milk production in Pennsylvania during February totaled 789 million pounds, 1 percent below last year's production, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS).

The number of milk cows in the state during the month averaged 647,000 head, down 3,000 from January, and 4,000 fewer than February 1993.

Production per cow averaged 1,220 pounds in February, 100 pounds less than January's production per cow of 1,320 pounds, and unchanged from February 1993.

Milk production in the 21 states surveyed during February totaled 9.79 billion pounds, down 1 percent compared to production during February 1993.

The number of milk cows averaged 8.02 million head, down 175,000 head from a year earlier, and production per cow averaged 1,221 pounds, 12 pounds more than February of last year.

Yes, John Houser is smiling!

John (left) of Spring Mills, PA, recently purchased his third Penn Jersey reman-ufactured Goliath™ unloader. His three original unloaders lasted 18, 23 and 29½ years! According to John, part of the reason for the long life of his unloaders is the quality service and advice he receives from Penn Jersey serviceman John Yoder, pictured with him.

Zieglers Go Whole Hog In Catering

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LITITZ (LANCASTER Co.) — From the outside, one would never guess that inside the two-story frame house at 112 Fairland Road in Lititz, dinner for 500 people is being prepared.

It's home for Dean and Carole Ziegler and their three children. It's also the location for Country Home Catering, where food for 50 to 500 is prepared before transporting to all corners of Lancaster and York counties and even some spots beyond.

The Zieglers' catering business evolved about eight years ago. That was when the Zieglers learned to roast a pig in a 55-gallon drum. Another caterer was too busy to meet the demand for pig roasts and asked the Zieglers to roast several for picnics.

They did. They learned the idiosyncrasies of roasting a 170- to 300-pound porker for about 20 hours, transporting it by truck, and carving it at the picnic site. They learned that the grease from a pig is highly flamable and can easily burst into flames when being transferred to the table. After one disasterous attempt to douse the flames with water, the Zieglers learned to be prepared to beat out the flames.

"We tried roasting pigs with and without the skin and learned that roasting it with the skin on keeps it more moist and better tasting," Carole said.

After the Zieglers perfected their pig roasting technique, they began offering other picnic-type foods. Word-of-mouth soon established the Zieglers' reputation as "offering good home cooking." It wasn't long before the Zieglers decided to go "whole hog" in the catering business.

Now the family-run business offers buffet and sit-down catering in addition to the outdoor dinners.

The Zieglers turned their two-story garage into a commercial kitchen and added an addition to house the restaurant-style appliances.

It was a hefty decision for the Zeiglers, who first needed to pay $1,000 for a water test to "check every possible mineral" in order to pass government inspection, Carole said.

The original quote of $25,000 for the refrigerator, stove, sinks, and equipment was greatly reduced by the Zieglers who attended restaurant auctions to pick up used equipment.

The business name, Country Home Catering, was selected because it exemplified that the food is homemade.

"My wife has always been a great cook," Dean said.

She also received some tidbits of advice on cooking for a crowd from her grandmother, who was head cook for Brethren Village, a retirement community. Carole's mother and three sisters have often helped out with waitressing and some food preparation. An Amish neighbor makes yeast rolls and pies for the meals.

In addition to pig roastings, the Zieglers also serve roast beef that has been marinated in spices and roasted in a barrel. Some other entrees include barbecued chicken, delmonica steak, ham loaf, meat loaf, turkey with filling, boneless stuffed breast of chicken, breaded baked chicken, baked ham with pineapple glaze, baked stuffed flounder, chicken cordon bleu, baked stuffed pork chops, and pork and sauerkraut.

Carole estimates that the most popular choices are roast pork or marinated chicken breast with baked corn.

While some people are inclined to believe that catering for small groups is easier, Carole disagrees.

She doesn't think it takes that much more time to prepare the food. She said, "I prefer large groups, which are mainly drop-in so serving the group is spread out over a period of hours instead of serving 100 people an hour."

A stove is installed in a cube van used for catering purposes. Having the stove on the truck usually works really well except on rainy days, when running back and forth between the truck and pavilion can be a drenching experience.

Summer months are the busiest for catering. Often, the Zeiglers have two and three catering dinners on a Saturday. Dean works full time for White Oak Mills hauling pigs. It is not unusual for his schedule to prevent him from returning home in time to assist Carole. Nonplussed, Carole is known to roast a pig herself in addition to doing additional food preparations.

"You learn to make do," said Carole, who presents a calm steadiness to the many demands of running the business. "In this business, you've got to be prepared for anything to happen."

Heather said that she likes to help her mother peel cooked potatoes and eggs. Her brothers help with wrapping and serving barbecued chicken.

When the family returns from a catering appointment, it is not unusual for neighboring children to come over to help eat up the leftovers and help with cleaning up.

Brandon and Corby have an ulterior incentive for helping with the catering business. Their dad promises that they may buy more sheep for their 4-H projects. Last season, Brandon took the championship market lamb placing at the Manheim Community Farm Show.

The sons' love for sheep was instilled in them by their father, who learned to shear sheep when he was an FFA student at Manheim Central High School. For three summers after graduation, Dean quit his full-time job for three months to travel around the state to shear sheep.

The boys raise the sheep on a neighboring farm, where they built a ramp and hurdles to exercise the sheep.

It is not unusual for Carole to help out with the sheep. In the first week of training, the sheep are often stubborn and Carole loads them on a wagon when they refuse to cooperate.

"I'm not animal person," Carole said.

But put her in the kitchen, and life takes on a whole new perspective — one that the whole family shares. They sometimes daydream of building a banquet hall or opening a restaurant so that more people can enjoy the good taste of Country Home Catering.

For more information, call the Zieglers at (717) 664-4254.

Dean, Carole, and Heather Ziegler stand in front of the truck used to transport food for their business, Country Home Catering.

Homestead Notes

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Okay, let's run down the list one more time.

Glue? Check. Two kinds. Tape? Check. Two kinds. Patching plastic? Check. One kind, but heavy and strong.

Satisfied that the necessary items were gathered, I paid the hardware bill and headed home. Now I could begin to replenish our household fix-n-repair stash that had suddenly turned up severely depleted of inventory.

Days before, I'd squished and squeezed the last few drops of silicone repair glue out of a crinkled tube. The tube of contact-type cement was likewise running dry.

And when I discovered my carefully-guarded roll of gray duct tape was missing, my fix-it frustration needle registered in the high range. What was going to hold the house together?

Well, it's not quite that bad. But when you live in one of those houses that the real estate people might label a "fixer-upper," the fix-n-repair stash fills an important spot in your life.

Most houses are probably fixer-uppers to some degree. Aging homes are like aging bodies, beset with little aches and pains that can quickly turn serious if not kept after, but possessing all sorts of character.

This latest character flaw in our century-plus aged farmhouse was a loose small window pane in the basement door. Earlier, a battering south wind had ripped the plastic on the outside of the storm door away, then pounded at the inside door until it had partially separated one pane of glass from the frame.

It was just one more miniscule symptom in an epidemic of storm-stirred minor and major damage that has clobbered properties up and down the whole East Coast. Outside in the yard lay a large section of crinkled and bent rainspouting that once securely hung from a lower edge of our house roof. The rainspouting was a victim of the avalanche of a thick layer of snow and ice that tumbled from the house roof on a rare, warming morning weeks before.

That same avalanche had knocked out parts of a few panes of greenhouse glass, even though we'd covered the end of the little structure toward the roof's edge with protective wood and cardboard. A large icicle that had formed along the upper edge of the greenhouse's outer glass had also crashed down onto the slanted solar section, knocking out another pane.

Not to mention the section of heifer housing that had crumpled when a similar avalanche of snow slid off the high, sloped bank-barn roof and dumped several tons of icy stuff on one corner of our old, flat-roofed, freestall addition.

Still, compared to many winter-weather victims, our damages are relatively minor. One livestock-raising friend had three separate barn facilities collapse under snow. And as piles of snow and ice melt away in welcome warming weather, repairs and rebuilds will have to fit in by farmers already behind schedule with manure hauling and field work.

A few minutes with the staple gun and long staples reattached the wind-blown plastic to the outside door. Sections of the heavy, clear plastic material, taped down the broken sections of greenhouse glass, temporarily patch those holes until more permanent glass replacement can be made.

And a few dabs of sticky silicone had been enough to fasten the loose window back in place.

Wish all the winter damage across the region was that easyh to patch.....

Fishing Derby Needs Support

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — The Milton Grove Sportsmen Club and the Elizabethtown Area Services for the Retarded would like to hold a fishing derby for physically and mentally handicapped people in the Elizabethtown area.

Al Martin, chairperson, said, "We need financial support from service clubs, individuals, businesses, and industry to make this activity happen."

The fishing derby will be followed by a picnic for the participants, aids, and sponsors. Initially funds are needed to purchase fish, fishing bait, picnic supplies, prizes for the participants, and possibly for fishing equipment, if needed.

Any remaining money could be used to make a permanent area at the lake for accessibility for the handicapped.

If everything falls into place, the derby will take place on June 5 from 12 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the Milton Grove Sportsmen Club lake.

Any organization or individual wishing to help in this very worthwhile cause can call Al Martin at (717) 367-2380 or 1-951-0768 (portable).

Finding Help For New Beginnings

The March winds are finally ushering in a hint of spring. The spring season often inspires the search for new beginnings. Many people long for renewal, for the opportunity to begin again or make changes in their lives, but often they don't know where to go to find help with the process. Being able to find help when you need it is a valuable skill.

Several months ago, I was able to link a friend to a vital health service. Her mother-in-law had been diagnosed with terminal cancer, and I put her in touch with the local hospice services. Last month a single mom in one of my parenting groups desperately needed support from others, and I linked her to some group meetings for herself and her young daughter.

Connecting people to assistance is an important task. Many people really don't know where to go for help and information. They are unaware of community systems designed to do the connecting. Information and referral organizations keep directories of community services and resources. In the Lehigh Valley, Valley Wide Help - a division of the American Red Cross - helps put people in touch with needed support. Another option open to employees of larger companies is the corporate Employee Assistance Program (EAP). Many industries and corporations provide a counseling service for their employees. In most cases, assistance for employees' family members is also included in this benefit. EAP counselors don't only provide access to therapy, they can also help families adjust to relocation, deal with stresses related to work overload, and guide a teen who is having difficulties in school.

Knowing where to go for help is a challenge. Phone directories list many vital human service support numbers in the blue pages. Families should familiarize themselves with the range of help available. The key to new beginnings is seeking help. If you are struggling with decisions, need greater information, or need a shoulder to cry on, let others know. "Helping professionals" - counselors, clergy, social workers, physicians - can link you to the support you need. Even neighbors may have experience of information to share. Ask.

If you receive a call for help, here are a few ways to be supportive:

Be available for a long talk.

Offer an arm on a troubled shoulder.

Buy groceries.

Stop by and put the kids to bed (offer to read a story or sing with them).

Drive with the friend to the hospital.

Take a walk together.

As a helper, avoid providing false assurances. Often people want to be heard. Issuing a quick "everything will be okay" may actually be a disservice, making an adult feel weak. It is appropriate to communicate your faith in the person. Share your commitment to walk with them through the change. Blaming others for the situation is also unhelpful. Most importantly, each helper should know his or her limitations. Serious problems need professional and experienced attention. If you become involved with someone who you think may need more help than you can provide, you can become the connecting link.

Putting people in touch with supportive services and information in a time of need may be just the lift they need to begin a new phase of their lives. What a wonderful salute to spring.

E.Coli Under The Microscope

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — The dangers of E. coli 0157:H7 were magnified this past winter when outbreaks in Washington State and elsewhere around the country were attributed to this rare but extremely virulent bacteria. Since 1982, E. coli has been responsible for at least 16 major U.S. food-borne outbreaks and 22 deaths. Young children, the elderly and immune-compromised individuals are at particular risk.

E. coli is found in the intestinal tract of both animals and man, and can be transmitted by numerous routes: from animal to animal, animal to man, animal to man on food, and person to person through close contact. Unlike other bacteria, it can survive refrigeration and freezing.

Although undercooked ground beef represents one of the greatest risks of E. coli due to its handling and preparation, outbreaks also have been traced to undercooked roast beef, raw milk, improperly processed cider, contaminated water and mayonnaise, and vegetables grown in cow manure. The best defense against E. coli is thorough cooking.

According to FIND/SVP, a marketing research firm based in New York, total retail sales of packaged frozen yogurt were $742 million in 1991. Still, an estimated 30 percent of the U.S. population hasn't even tried frozen yogurt.

WORK WATCH

The Work Watch Is Back!

In the mid-1980's we sold hundreds of work watches to hard-working individuals like yourself who needed an accurate, dependable timepiece. They needed a watch that would withstand the dust, moisture, bumps, and temperatures encountered on the farm, in the orchard, and in the woods. Many who bought the work watch told us it was the best watch they had ever owned. Now, due to the past success and the present need, we are again offering the work watch through Lancaster Farming.

Our work watch has all the features needed to endure the punishment you will put it through. The WATER RESISTANT seal will protect your watch when you irrigate fields, fix broken water systems, get milk splashed on your arm while feeding calves, or walk the fence in the rain, to find out where your cattle are getting out Being SHOCK RESISTANT, your work watch will continue to work when it is slapped by a cow's tail, a falling board, or the belt shield that your arm slams against when your wrench slips off the bolt. While your watch is scraped by branches, rubbed against walls, and knocked against machinery, the low profile, SCRATCH RESISTANT, glass crystal will resist the scratches and cracks that render watches unreadable. Finally, the BATTERY POWERED QUARTZ movement of your work watch is accurate to within 2 minutes per year, and does not need to be wound, meaning that your watch will be on time, all the time, without any effort on your part.

A final proof of the strength of this watch and of its suitability to your needs is the warranty If your work watch stops running within FIVE YEARS of the date of purchase, the manufacturer will repair or replace your watch at no charge. This is one of the longest warranties in the watch industry. The manufacturer's confidence in this watch means that you can have confidence in its durability and can know that this is the only work watch you will need to buy for the next five years.

This watch is available in both men's and women's styles To receive your new work watch, read and complete the coupon below, and send it with your payment to:

Consuming Thoughts

Did you ever wonder how ham became the traditional meat for Easter dinner? Back in the days before refrigeration, hogs were traditionally butchered in the fall. This was done so that the meat could be cured over the cold winter months. The first hams, therefore, were ready in early spring, often making ham the cook'c choice for the Easter menu.

Ham, for all its fine and high nutritive value, is a delicate meat and requires care. Cooked hams can be stored in the refrigerator safely for a week. Hams can be frozen, but should be used within two months. Freezing is not recommended as a routine procedure because of possible flavor and texture changes.

Canned hams should not be frozen. Most should be stored in the refrigerator and may be kept unopened up to six months. Some smaller hams may be kept at room temperature if unopened. These will be labeled accordingly. Check each label for storage instructions.

Many shoppers are confused about the term "water added" on ham labels. When hams are processed, a curing solution is forced under pressure into the meat. After a curing period, the hams are heated and smoked, evaporating most of the moisture of curing solution. If the hams are heated to the point when all the curing is evaporated and the ham weighs the same as it did before curing, then the term "water added" is not required.

Generally, these hams are too dry for most consumers. Hams that retain up to 10 percent moisture must be labeled "water added," a term which may be a little misleading. If more than 10 percent moisture is retained in the ham after processing, it must be labeled "imitation ham" because it does not meet regulations of minimum standards.

Some shoppers are concerned about excessive fat in canned hams. These shoppers are generally mistaking gelatin for fat. Canned hams have gelatin added to help hold the boned ham together during shipping, storing, and slicing. Gelatin is added in dry form just before the can is vacuum-sealed and cooked. It will fill all the air-spaces and form a cushion.

The old-fashioned, dry-cured country hams are still very popular. Country ham or country-style ham is processed by the dry-cure method, as was done in the days before refrigeration. A dry mixture of curing ingredients, mostly salt, is rubbed onto the ham in an amount sufficient to ensure complete penetration of the curing mixture.

Federal regulations require at least 45 days of cure penetration and additional minimum of 25 days for the drying period. Many hams are cured for longer periods than the minimum requirements.

If these hams are labeled Smithfield, Virginia, Kentucky, etc. they must have been produced in the geographical area indicated. Otherwise they must have the word "style" in the name, for example, "Kentucky-style" or Country-style" ham.

In the smoking and drying process much of the original moisture is lost producing a firm-textured ham. These dry-cured hams take special preparation before they are ready to place in the oven for baking. Consult a good cookbook or reference for instruction in proper handling.

Easter Favorites

Traditionally, Easter is a time for families to gather in celebration. For dinner, families usually prefer their favorites such as ham or lamb, candied yams, yeast breads, and delectable desserts.

While preparing the meal can be hectic for cooks who also attend Easter church services, this year calls for even more planning strategy, for daylight savings time begins on Easter Sunday.

Here are some tips to rid the pressure that goes along with Easter entertaining.

- Plan your menu early. Select easy-to-prepare recipes that make use of readily available foods and appliances you have on hand.
- Combine attractive, contrasting colors and textures in foods.
- Rely on a well-planned shopping list.
- Consider the presentation of foods. Do you have the necessary serving pieces?
- For the centerpiece, showcase seasonal flowers and dyed eggs.
- Complete as many advance preparation steps as possible so you can enjoy spending time with your guests.

BUTTERFLIED LEG OF LAMB

1 boneless leg of lamb (3-4 pounds)

Marinade:

½ cup red currant jelly, melted
½ cup fresh lemon juice
3 tablespoons olive oil
1½ tablespoons salt
4-5 cloves garlic, crushed
1 teaspoon black pepper
4 teaspoons ground coriander

Trim visible fat from lamb and butterfly. Mix marinade ingredients in a large bowl. Add lamb. Cover bowl and marinate in refrigerator for 8 hours or 2 days, turnning several times.

Remove lamb, discard marinade. Grill or broil 4-6 inches from heat source for 10-15 minutes per side. Meat thermometer should register 140 degrees when inserted in the thickest part.

Contributor writes: This is a favorite of ours for Easter dinner. Preparing the lamb is time-consuming but can be done well in advance. Send the entree with your husband to grill, saving on cleanup and freeing your hands to prepare the remainder of the meal.

HONEY GLAZED HAM

3 to 4-pound boneless fully-cooked smoked ham half
¼ cup packed light brown sugar
1 tablespoon honey
¼ teaspoon ground allspice

Place ham on rack in open roasting pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so bulb is centered in the thickest part. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in 325 degree oven until thermometer registers 130 to 140 degrees. Allow approximately 18 to 25 minutes per pound. Meanwhile combine brown sugar, honey, and allspice with fork; mixture will be dry and crumbly. Carefully spread mixture over ham 15 minutes before end of cooking time.

CREAMY HERBED POTATOES

6 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons flour
¼ cup freshly snipped chives
2 teaspoons crushed rosemary
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 quart light cream or half-and-half
2 pounds pototoes, peeled and thinly sliced
½ cup grated parmesan cheese

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Melt butter in 3-quart heavy saucepan. Stir in flour, herbs, and seasonings until smooth. Remove from heat. Gradually stir in light cream. Bring to boiling over medium heat. Boil and stir 1 minute; set aside. Layer half the potatoes in well-buttered, 3-quart rectangular baking dish. Cover with half the onions. Sprinkle with half the parmesan cheese. Pour half the cream sauce over all. Repeat layers. Bake 55 to 60 minutes or until potatoes are tender and top is golden. Remove from oven and let set 10 minutes before serving.

American Dairy Association

YAM AND CORN CASSEROLE

17-ounce yams, drained, sliced
¼ cup flour
8¾ -ounce can cream-style corn
3 eggs, beaten
1½ cups milk
½ cup flaked coconut
¼ cup butter, melted
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg

Toss yams with flour. Place in greased 10x6-inch baking dish. Combine remaining ingredients; pour over yams. Bake at 325 degrees for 40 to 45 mintues. Cool 5 minutes.

Serving guests Easter dinner requires planning ahead, especially this year since the day also marks the beginning of daylight savings time.

LAMB CASSEROLE

2 cups diced cooked lamb
10½ -ounces condensed cream of celery soup
4-ounce can sliced mushrooms
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon lamb herbs (rosemary, mint, grated orange peel)
Salt and pepper, to taste
3 cups shell macaroni
⅓ cup grated parmesan cheese

Combine lamb, soup, mushrooms, milk, herbs, salt and pepper; mix well.

QUICHE IN PEPPER POTS

8 medium sweet green, red or yellow peppers
2 cups frozen vegetable blend, thawed
8 eggs
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon garlic sal
1 teaspoon Italian seasoning, crushed

Cut tops off peppers and remove seeds. Sawtooth or scallop pepper edges, if desired. Stand peppers upright in custard cups or muffin-pan cups. Spoon ¼ cup vegetables into each pepper. In large bowl, beat together eggs, milk, garlic salt, and Italian seasoning until well blended. Pour about ⅓ cup of the egg mixture over vegetables in each pepper. Bake in preheated 325 degree oven until knife inserted near center comes out clean, about 60 to 70 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes before serving. Makes 8 servings.

Carole is an excellent cook. Here is one of her great-tasting recipes that is certain to top your hors d' oeuvres list.

HOT SPINACH DIP

Loaf of round bread
10-ounces frozen chopped spinach, thawed, drained, and blotted dry
1 cup sour cream
1 cup mayonnaise
½ cup chopped green onion
1 teaspoon parsley flakes
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon seasoned salt

Put spinach, sour cream, and mayonnaise in bowl. Stir. Add onion, parsley, lemon juice and seasoned salt. Mix together. Chill. Heat before serving.

Cut off top from round loaf of bread. Remove bread from inside leaving a shell about 1-inch thick. (Reserve removed bread for dipping. Fill with dip. Double recipe if loaf is large. Wrap in foil. Heat in 300 degree oven for 2 hours. Remove from oven and turn back foil. Use reserved bread, cut into pieces for dipping. After dip is finished, break off pieces of shell and enjoy best part.

Farmers Select Ag Day Baby

In recognition of National Ag Day on March 20, the Lancaster County Farmers Association bestowed a basket of locally-grown and processed products to the first baby born at Lancaster General Hospital on that day. Brandon Michael, son of Anne and Greg Schuman of Pequea, weighed in 8 pounds 7 ounces. Another son 4-year-old Ryan is eager to help devour the goodies presented by Ruth Ann Yost, left, and Bonnie Rohrer, co-chairwomen of the women's committee of the Farmers Association.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Auctions can be addictive as once you start going you often keep on going most every Saturday. Lancaster Councy has several Auction Centers and many auctioneers.

In the first few years after I was married, I went to quite a few sales in the neighborhood. It was a necessity as we needed so many things to start housekeeping. The walnut drop-leaf table that I bought for our dining room is now in our kitchen as in later years an aunt gave a large oak extension table. Many of my end tables are still in use even though I got them long ago. Then there are odd lamps and dishes that came from local auctions. As there were no cabinets in our kitchen we got a Hoosier kitchen cabinet which we later sold too cheaply. It had a flour bin and sifter, spice rack, and a pull-out counter top.

One day I sat on a porch railing for hours to buy a wrought iron candle stand and a hanging wall mirror with towel bars. It was intricately carved and even had a cow that was missing an ear. So, I carved one out of an old shingle to match the other and you'd never know.

Local sales are often social gatherings and you can go home in a good mood even if you bought nothing. The good food that is sold there is also an attraction. They say there is an art to bidding and I have missed a few things that I wanted. It takes close attention to what is being said or you might buy one chair for the price you expected to pay for six of them. And, when you get a box-lot there can be surprises — buttons, cups, caps, yarn or even a sterling silver spoon.

Sometimes auctions are sad affairs as all the collections of a lifetime are spread out for the world to see. But as years go by, it is often necessary to dispose of household items, especially if there are no children who want the things. Even so, there will be lots of merchandise to sell as I have found out when I helped to empty three houses for relatives.

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — Bette Lawrence, Honesdale, would like a recipe for pear jam or pear jelly that uses green tomatoes as an ingredient.

QUESTION — Mimi Stoltzfus, Lewisburg, would like a recipe for honey-mustard pretzels such as those sold by Snyders.

QUESTION — Ruth Cantello, Somerset, N.J., would like a recipe for apple cider donuts like those served at Apple Cider Mills.

QUESTION — M. Sauder, Mohnton, asks if anyone has a recipe for the waffle cones served at ice cream stands.

QUESTION — Helen Kofran would like a recipe for Amish shredded roast beef salad.

QUESTION — A reader from Kutztown would like recipes using self-rising flour.

QUESTION — Vicky Mitchell, Fairbanks, Alaska, would like a recipe for extra sour rye bread with caraway seeds (not the dark rye made with molasses).

QUESTION — Grace Ikeler, Bloomsburg, would like a recipe for stuffed shells.

QUESTION — Grace Ikeler, Bloomsburg, would like a recipe for English walnut cake.

QUESTION — Lisa Miller, New Hope, wrote that she and her grandmother found a recipe that called for died apples. She wanted to know how to do it. This sounds like a typographical error to me. It probably should read diced or perhaps dried apples. However, if anyone heard of such a thing as died apples, send the information.

QUESTION — Kendra Hilt, Canisteo, N.Y., would like a recipe for sophapias, a flat dough that puffs when deep fried, much like elephant ears but smaller and much lighter. It is served with maple syrup for breakfast.

QUESTION — Fay Werner, Tevoli, N.Y., would like a rice pudding recipe like one that she lost. She remembers that the sugar and beaten eggs were combined and set aside while the milk was heated and the rice cooked about 15 minutes. Then the two mixtures are combined and simmer until thickened.

QUESTION — Gerri Rottkamp, West Hempstead, N.Y., would like a recipe to can sweet and sour red cabbage.

QUESTION — Gerri Rottkamp, West Hempstead, N.Y., asks why her canned crushed tomatoes and sauce are very acid tasting this year. What did she do wrong?

QUESTION — Dorothy Golembieski, Gettysburg, would like a recipe for pineapple jam made with fresh crushed pineapple and Kiefer pears.

QUESTION — Dorothy Golembieski, Gettysburg, would like a recipe for O' Henry candy made with a fondant, rice crispy cereal, and a layer of chocolate on top.

QUESTION — Amanda Lantz, Lititz, would like a recipe for lemon shoo-fly pie.

QUESTION — M. Hart, Newton, N.J., wrote that she heard a program on TV where a Pennsylvania Dutch lady gave pie crust recipes for a hot water pie crust that used beaten egg whites and one cup boiling water. She said a Mack truck could drive over the crust and it would not hurt it. The other was a recipe for a pie crust in a pan. All the ingredients were put in the pie plate, mixed, patted into place, and baked. M. Hart missed the measurements. Do any of our readers have these recipes?

QUESTION — Julianne Medaglia, Birdsboro, would like a recipe for chewy granola bars.

QUESTION — Julie Filler, Bethlehem, would like a recipe for Montgomery Pie. She writes that she enjoys the wide range of recipes readers submit. Because of this column, she writes, "Being a novice cook, I have begun an interesting, educational hobby."

QUESTION — Faye Detter, Mechanicsburg, requests a recipe for schmeircase cheese.

QUESTION — Evelyn Snooks would like a recipe for sweet cauliflower pickles.

QUESTION — Kathy Szarko, Landisville, purchased a pound of chestnut flour in an Italian Market about a year ago. After a diligent search through cookbooks and asking relatives, she is unable to find any recipes requesting chestnut flour. She vaguely remembers hearing a TV cooking show say that the flour is naturally sweet tasting and can be used in pastry recipes.

QUESTION — Evelyn Snooks would like Thai recipes for sticky rice and a soybean custard to scoop on the sticky rice.

QUESTION — Mrs. Robert Wagner, Bloomsburg, would like a recipe for bean and barley soup, the variety that is brown in color.

QUESTION — David Akins, Blairsville, would like to know where to purchase monosodium glutamate.

ANSWER — A reader from Kutztown wanted a recipe to make suet cakes for the birds. Thanks to Elaine Young, Quakertown; Ida Swartzentruber, Oakland, Md.; Cathy Heagy, and Naomi Blank, Kinzers, for sending recipes.

Bird Cake

1 cup cornmeal
1 cup oatmeal
1 cup flour
½ cup bacon drippings
3 teaspoons powdered milk
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ cup bread crumbs

Suet Cakes For Birds

Grind or finely chop suet. Melt in frying pan or broiler. Cool and remelt, which produces a firmer cake, pour a mixture of the following into the hot fat: dry dog food, peanut butter, seeds, cracked corn, cornmeal, and similar items.

Slice enough fat to fill two cups. Slowly melt. Remove gristle and add two cups peanut butter and about 12 cups cornmeal while fat is still hot. Stir mixture until well blended. Spoon into cans or cupcake forms. Store in refrigerator until ready to place outside for the birds.

Chickadee Pudding

1½ cups melted suet
1 cup cornmeal
½ cup sugar
1 cup bread crumbs
3 tablespoons peanut butter

Add sunflower and bird seed. Melt suet in double boiler, let cool. Add remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly. Don't let mixture get too dry or it will crumble. Pack in paper cups or any other small container that can easily be removed.

Suet Cakes

2 pounds suet or grease drippings from fat cut off meat
2 cups cornmeal
1 tablespoon salt
1 cup bread crumbs
¼ cup peanut butter
Handfuls of mixed seeds

Grind large pieces of suet in blender and melt. Stir in remaining ingredients. Fill up plastic containers (butter containers or trays for frozen dinners work well). Store in freezer until needed.

ANSWER — Ada Mothes, Renick, W.Va., wanted a recipe for Maryland Crab Soup. Thanks to Mary Jane Heidlebaugh, Stewartstown and Carroll Boyer for sending recipes.

Crab Soup

1 dozen craps, steamed in a steamer using Old Bay or Wye River Spice seasoning.

Carefully pick off your crab meat to eliminate all shells, reserve the whole crab claws and the back-cleaned shells, include all spice from the steaming.

In a large pot, place crabmeat, whole claws, and cleaned back shells using all the meat stored in the shell points. Add enough water to fill pot one third full. Bring to a simmer. Add:

1 can cut okra
1 can whole peeled tomatoes
1-pound can crushed tomatoes
1 cup diced celery
1 cup diced red cabbage

Use enough frozen soup vegetables to bring pot to ¾ full. Add water to bring the soup to consistency desired. Add:

1 teaspoon celery seed
1 pinch garlic powder

Simmer for three hours and taste. Add Old Bay seasoning until it reaches desired flavor.

When serving, use large soup bowls and make sure everyone gets a back shell and a couple of claws. The shells are for appearance, but the claws are super eating when opened.

Carrol Boyer said that this recipe has been in the family for

MASHED SWEET POTATOES

Mash together 3 medium cooked fresh sweet potatoes or 18-ounce can sweet potatoes

Whip together:

1 egg
¼ cup melted butter
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Add:

¾ cup light brown sugar

Spoon in 8¾ -ounce can crushed pineapple, drained

Bake uncovered at 375 degrees about 30 minutes. Sprinkle with

½ cup chopped nuts
½ cup mini marshmallows

SPRINGTIME TORTE

Cake:

15 ounces whole milk ricotta cheese
¼ cup confectioners' sugar
1 cup diced fresh pineapple, well drained
¼ cup chopped almonds
½ teaspoon almond extract
1 frozen pound cake

Sauce:

½ cup prepared fudge topping
1 tablespoon almond flavored liqueur

For cake, combine cheese and sugar in small mixer bowl. Beat on high speed of mixer until smooth and fluffy. Stir in pineapple, almonds, and extract. Cut cake horizontally into three layers. Spread one-third of cheese mixture on one side of each layer. Stack layers one on top of the other. Place on serving plate. Refrigerate until serving time, up to three hours. Just before serving, combine fudge topping and liqueur. Heat until warm. Drizzle chocolate sauce over each slice of torte. Serve immediately.

LAMB MEATBALLS

1 egg
¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 tablespoon dried minced onion
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 pound ground lamb
10¾ -ounce can condensed cream of chicken or mushroom soup
¼ cup milk
1 tablespoon dried mixed vegetables or dried minced onion

In a medium mixing bowl, combine egg, bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon onion, salt and pepper. Add lamb; mix well.

With wet hands, shape meat mixture into 20 1-inch meatballs. Place meatballs in a 15x10x1-inch baking pan. Bake 375 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes or until done. Drain. Meanwhile, in a small saucepan, combine soup, milk, and dried vegetables or onion. Heat thoroughly.

Serve over meatballs and noodles.

HAM BALLS

1½ pounds ground ham
½ pound ground pork
2 eggs
½ cup milk
1 cup cornflakes
1½ cups brown sugar
½ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon mustard
½ cup pineapple juice

Combine first 5 ingredients mixing well. Shape into balls. Place in 10-inch square baking dish. Blend remaining ingredients in saucepan. Heat until blended. Pour over ham balls. Bake covered at 375 degrees for 2½ hours. Serves 8.

more than 150 years and is an old southern method of making crab soup. Over the years, the family has modified the recipe to adapt to modern methods of cooking.

Maryland Crab Soup

Cook together:
3 medium potatoes, diced
1 chopped onion
8 slices bacon cut in 1-inch pieces
½ pound claw crabmeat
Salt, to taste, cook until vegetables are tender. Add:
1 can whole kernel corn
1 small can peas
1 can tomato sauce
¼ cup butter
Pepper
Red pepper
Worcestershire sauce, to taste
3 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
Mary Jane writes that beef soup bones can be used for flavoring instead of bacon.

ANSWER — Beatrice Weight, Duncannon, wanted a recipe for oatmeal pie that tastes like those served at Yoder's in Mifflinburg. Thanks to a Port Treverton reader for sending the following recipe.

Oatmeal Pie

¾ cup granulated sugar
1 cup molasses
4 eggs, beaten
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup oatmeal
1 cup coconut
Bake in unbaked pie shell. Makes 1 pie. Beat eggs, add sugar syrup, and oatmeal. Bake at 425 for 10 minutes and reduce temperature to 350 for 35 minutes.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 8

Lancaster Society of Farm Women No. 8 met on March 16 at the home of Kathryn Hess in Mount Joy. Catherine Aument gave devotions. An enjoyable slide presentation on a trip to Alaska was given by Paul Smith. Members planned a work day at the Mennonite Central Committee in Ephrata on March 31. The April 13 meeting will be held at the Lutheran Church in Maytown. It will be a covered dish luncheon at noon. They will entertain Society No. 14.

Lancaster Society 24

Lancaster Farm Women Society #24 met at the home of Lydia Ann Bentzel, Bird-in-Hand, on February 25, with 17 members present. Roll call was "Share a Valentine Old or New". Pres. Mary Ann Greiner presided with State Convention reports given by Mary Martin and Cinty Yingling. Farm Women By-laws were red, sharing partners were chosen for the Welsh Mountain Samaritan Home - New Holland. Following the meeting a "Pound Auction" was held with Mary Martin as auctioneer. Dues were also payable at this meeting. Refreshments werew served by Lydia Ann Bentzel.

March 29th meeting will be held at Carolyn Groff, Leola, at which time a "Safety" program will be featured.

Berks Executive Board

The Berks County Executive Board meeting was held recently in the auditorium at the Ag Center building. Pres. Fern Phillipy presided, opening the meeting with a poem "One Tick at a Time". Roll call question: When is your birthday and what is your weight? was answered by 16 members present.

Thank you notes were received by Herb Wetzel and state president, Dorothy Stricker.

Janet Schlegel reported on the food bank collection.

Berks County convention will be held October 1, 1994.

Bingo at the Berks Heim is April 7, the volunteer banquet is April 20, and the Heim Fest September 11, 1994.

The spring rally will be at the York Fairgrounds on May 11, cost for the meal $19.25 and Berks County will have a Klein bus available if enough people are interested.

Another quilt is being made by the Berks County Farm women as a fund raiser.

Dorothy Stricker, state president, announced people and their committees: song leader, Joyce Shott, chaplein, Betty Boyer, historian, Fern Phillipy, by-law books and seals, Janet Schlegel, and jewelry, Kathryn Fry. A piano player is needed.

Mary Hertzog from Group #3, passed away February 20, 1994.

Time For Kids To Plant Seeds

BETH MILLER
Cumberland Co. Correspondent

WILLIAMS GROVE (Cumberland Co.) — Now that spring finally is here, it is time to plant the seeds that will give us the flowers and vegetables we can enjoy this summer.

Linda Green is an expert at that. She is the person who plants all the seeds at Ashcombe's Greenhouses.

Green has some tips for you to use when you plant seeds at home.

First, she said, you should go to your garden store or local greenhouse and buy a seed planting germination mixture made up of peatmoss, perlite, and vermiculite.

Green said you can plant your seeds in almost any container that is at least 2 inches deep. The container also must have holes in it to give drainage when you water your seeds.

To start, you should fill most of the container with the planting mix and then moisten that mix. Then you should place the seeds on the surface of the mix and cover them with a layer of dry planting mixture.

The dry mix can then be moistened with a spray bottle. The next step is to cover the containers with clear plastic wrap to keep the seeds warm while they start to sprout.

The plastic wrap also keeps the moisture in to help the seeds grow.

Once the seeds are planted, they should be placed at a light source, like a sunny window. The plastic wrap should be removed as soon as the plants pop up through the soil.

The soil has to be kept moist so the seeds should be checked at least once a day to make sure they have enough moisture.

Label each pot so you know what type of seeds you planted in the container.

Some plants are easier to grow than others, she said. Your local nursery will be able to tell you what kinds of seeds will be the easiest for your children to grow.

Although almost any container can be used to plant seeds. Peat pots are good to use if you are growing plants that do not like to have their roots disturbed when the time comes to plant them outside. The plants can be transplanted right in the peat pots because the pots will decompose and become part of the soil.

Green said you can get more sophisticated with your seed planting by using heat trays and fluorescent lights. Garden stores sell all kinds of seed planting kits you might like to try.

Green gets mighty fancy when she plants thousands of seeds each year at Ashcombe's where she has worked for 20 years.

She showed her process at a special display at the front of the store. The display is called "It's Spring, Let's Sow Some Seeds."

She said she plants most of the seeds for Ashcombe's with a machine that is called an EZ Seeder. Most commercial greenhouses use those machines, she said.

Green uses the EZ Seeder to plant the seeds in small plug trays. When the plants are big enough, they are transplanted to larger cellpacks. The cellpacks are the containers that people buy the plants in.

But there is a lot of work to be done to make the plants grow so they can be sold. Right after the seeds are planted, they are placed in a temperature-controlled chamber where the temperature always is kept at 70 degrees.

As the seeds sprout they are gradually moved to the greenhouses.

Green cautions that people should not be too eager to plant the plants they grow themselves or the ones they buy at their local greenhouses.

Even if the temperature in the daytime is warm, the cold nights in early spring still can hurt or kill plants that are planted outdoors too soon in the year, she said.

Green said that in this area she does not recommend that any plants be planted outdoors before May 10 when all the danger of frost is past.

Saddle Busters 4-H

On March 24 Warriors Mark Saddle Busters 4-H members are scheduled to gather together to learn with other county members how to be better officers.. They will meet at 7:00 p.m. at the Huntingdon Middle School. The Saddle Busters have 4 new members: Matt and Courtney Babb of Port Matilda, Marie DelBaggio of Tyrone, and Scott Ingram also from Tyrone.

Matt was previously involved in the Centre County 4-H program. Matt's project animal is the mare Marion's Poco Te. Courtney's project animal is the gelding Joe. Scott will be riding the mare Ann's Blue Angel.

Emily Dietrich of Newburg was the winner of the Outstanding 4-H Dairy Member award and the 4-H Achievement Award. Chris Renner of Farm Credit Association presented the awards.

Matthew Day, Shippensburg, was the winner of the Merle Miller Award.

The Outstanding First Year Member of the Cumberland Co. 4-H Dairy Club was Aaron Cornman, Boiling Springs. Presenting the award was Rene Lavoie of the Cumberland Valley Cooperative.

Cumberland County 4-H'ers Receive Awards

BETH MILLER
Cumberland Co. Correspondent

NEWBURG (Cumberland Co.) — A lot of well-deserved awards were given out during the 38th annual Cumberland County 4-H Dairy Banquet held at the New Hope Church in Newburg.

The Outstanding First-Year-Member Award was won by Aaron Cornman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Cornman of Boiling Springs.

Some of Aaron's accomplishments during his first year were perfect attendance at the club meetings, giving a dairy demonstration at the County Speak-Out night and participating in the Dairy Bowl and dairy judging activities. He competed in the county, district, and state dairy shows and exhibited the reserve champion Brown Swiss at the 4-H Roundup. Aaron also served as social chairman of the dairy club during this first year.

Emily Dietrich, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dietrich of Newburg, won the Outstanding 4-H Dairy Member Award.

Emily just completed her eighth year in the Blue Mountain Dairy Club, where she was the treasurer. She competed in the county, district, and state dairy shows, exhibited the reserve grand champion Jersey at the 4-H Roundup, had the grand champion at the district dairy show and also qualified to go to the National Youth Show in Kentucky.

Emily also competed at State Achievement Days in the dairy judging contest, did an impromptu speech during county Speak-Out Night, and did a radio spot promoting 4-H. She was part of a 4-H exchange group to Texas and was a counselor at the 4-H Environmental Camp.

In addition to winning the Outstanding Member Award, Emily took home the 4-H Achievement Award for her high score in the county Achievement Record Judging.

Matthew Day, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Day, won the Merle Miller Memorial award.

Matthew just finished his seventh year in the county-wide dairy club, where he served as county council representative. He completed projects in dairy and teen leadership, is assistant social chairman for the county council, and played an important role in adding 4-H radio spots and promoting 4-H at Speak-Out Night.

He participated in the Penn State Dairy Judging Contest, State Achievement Days, the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Judging Contest, and was a member of the State 4-H Judging Team and competed at the national level in Madison, Wis.

Matthew also is coaching a team for the Penn State Judging Contest, is a member of the Senior Dairy Bowl team, and coached a junior team for the Junior Holstein Convention.

Among those who received first year leader recognition certificate was Tim Smith of Shippensburg, at the same time his father, Galen, was recognized for his 28 years as a leader.

FFA HAPPENINGS

Hans Herr FFA

Five Lancaster Mennonite High School students who are members of the school's Hans Herr FFA Chapter recently attended the National FFA Organizaiton's Made for Excellence (MFE) conference in Lancaster.

Students involved are junior Joleen Herbert, daughter of Luann Newswanger, Terre Hill; sophomore Marie Hurst, daughter of George and Mary Hurst, Lititz; sophomore Kurt Hershey, son of Glenn and Velma Hershey, Kinzers; sophomore Gary Landis, son of Earl and Evelyn Landis, Manheim; and sophomore Ryan Kurtz, son of Leon and Sarah Kurtz, Cochranville.

The two-day MFE personal development program helped students learn techniques for dealing with peer pressure and setting and achieving goals. The conference also featured a self-discovery workshop designed to help members find success in life. The theme was "Destination Success-The Flight of your LIfe."

MFE conferences, which began in 1987, will be held in 40 states during 1993-1994 for about 6,500 junior high and high school students.

Traditional African Textiles

Traditional African hand-woven fabrics are becoming quite popular. These fabrics are handmade using traditional weaving and dyeing techniques. There are a couple of different kinds of cloths that are commonly made. "Mud cloth" is created with cotton yarns that are spun on narrow looms to form strips. The strips are then hand stitched together to make 36 to 42-inch wide fabric. A combination of tree bark, roots, and mud is used to color the fabric. Designs are usually applied with sticks, feathers, or other natural objects. The color is set with mud and dried in the sun.

"Kente cloth," known as the "cloth of kings," was originally woven for wearing apparel. The fabric is woven with cotton on narrow looms and pieced together. The colors found on such traditional fabrics represent those found in nature — yellows, greens, and reds. The designs as well as the colors used on the fabric frequently have symbolic meanings.

In most cases, garments made from these fabrics are loose fitting or are worn only on special occasions and do not need to be cleaned as often as other garments. Household items usually accumulate loose soil on exposed surfaces. However, spills or contact with various staining substances many require special spotting or cleaning procedures.

If absolutely necessary, hand wash in mild detergent, soaking for only three to five minutes, since dyes are water soluble and excessive color loss may occur. Loose soil should be vacuumed or lightly brushed from surfaces, especially on household items. Proceed with local spotting only after testing for colorfastness of the fabrics to the spotting agents. Each color in the fabric should be tested. If the garment is taken to the dry cleaner, the customer may be asked to sign a release. The cleaner should explain possible risks.

County Agent Duane Duncan pointed out that all the dairy club leaders recognized at the banquet have a total of 187 years of service in the 4-H Dairy Club.

Melanie Dietrich, Emily's sister, was recognized as the Keystone Dairy Winner and represented Pennsylvania and Cumberland County in Chicago at the National 4-H Congress.

New officers for the country's two dairy clubs also were announced.

The officers of the countywide club are president, David Day; vice president, Amanda Naugle; recording secretary, Rebecca Comman; corresponding secretary, Patrick Snoke; treasurer, Betsy Walton; news reporter, Matthew Day; social chairman, Kendra Naugle; and county council representatives, Sandy Anderson, Matthew Day, and Craig Walton.

The Blue Mountain club officers are president, Ian Dietrich; vice president, Jason Mowery; secretary, Tristan Dietrich; news reporter, Julie Dyarman; treasurer, Steven Sites; and social chairmen, Emily Dietrich and Matt Sholley.

Other 4-H members recognized for achievements last year were Junior Dairy Bowl members, David and Sarah Day and Michelle Ocker; Senior Dairy Bowl members, Matthew Day, John Leib, and Heath Ocker; Juniior Dairy Judging members, Rebecca Comman and Sarah Day; Senior Dairy Judging members, Matthew Day, Emily Dietrich and Michael Hensel; and Junior Judging Forum members, Rebecca Cornman, David Day, Julie Dyarman, John Leib, and Dawn Ickes.

Those recognized as winners in the county Fitting and Showing Contest were Sarah Day and Scott Walton for 8 to 10-year-olds; David Day and Rebecca Comman for 11 to 13-year-olds; Melanie Dietrich and Betsy Walton for age 14 and over; and Betsy Walton in the winners class.

Blind Share Wonders Of Candy Making

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Whiffs of chocolate, chatter, and laughter recently drifted from the activities room at 244 North Queen St. Lancaster.

"I wouldn't miss this day for anything," Libby Nightingale said.

She is referring to the annual candymaking workshop for the vision impaired. This is the sixth year that Nancy Fasolt of Cake And Kandy Emporium of East Petersburg organized the candy making workshop.

If you think candy making creates a sticky mess, try closing your eyes and making it.

With lots of volunteers guiding a hand with verbal instructions such as "over, up, now to the right ..." the 18 adults attending the workshop were able to complete and take home a box of candy. The candy varieties included bird's nests, non-pareil lollipops, turtles, and peanut butter cups.

Minnie Lohr of Lancaster said of the bird nest variety, "I'm not sure if it's for wrens or starlings."

The chocolate with coconut is dropped by a spoonful unto a jelly bean nest. Minnie can't eat the candy because of diet restrictions so she gives it to friends.

"They tell me it tastes better than the candy they can buy," Minnie said.

Fred Flosser, Lancaster; Paul Brubaker, Ephrata; and Richard Bailey, Lancaster, couldn't resist nibbling on pecans while making turtles by layering pecans, caramel, and squeezing melted chocolate over the top. The three debated what variety of candy was the best between the turtles, non paril lollipops, peanut butter cups and bird's nests.

Although Minnie Lohr of Lancaster can not eat the candy, she loves making it and giving it to friends. They tell her that the candy tastes better than the kinds they purchase in the stores.

Brubaker summed up the groups' concensus by saying, "Anything chocolate — we like."

Dwight Stoltzfus, who coordinates the activities for the Lancaster County Blind Association, said, "Just about anything that a sighted person can do, one can learn to do if blind."

Attitude, Stoltzfus surmised, has almost everything to do with how a person adjusts to blindness. The problem is that often sighted people, while meaning to be helpful, actually do too much for the blind. A person who has a dependent personality is glad to let others do things for him or her, but an independent person will insist on learning to do things.

"Several of the clients go home and make their own candy," Stoltzfus said.

While Grace Miller of Lititz and Ms. Nightingale worked on the candy, they told how they adjusted to life without sight.

"We became good friends and started bowling in 1972," she said.

With ocassional scores above 150, the duo flew to Chicago and Pittsburgh for national competition.

Ms. Nightingale said that pregnancy complications caused her blindness.

"After I got over feeling sorry for myself, I got down to business," she said.

She found that it was more difficult to adjust to her husband's death three years ago than to blindness.

Tuck-A-Way Farm: Hidden Haven For Horses

MIRIAM WERT
Juniata Co. Correspondent

MIFFLINTOWN (Juniata Co.) — When speaking with Twila Pellman, wife of Greg and mother of eight-month-old Seth, it would be easy to mistake her for one of the girls she is instructing in horseback riding at TUCK-A-WAY Farm. She retains the youthful beauty that was hers when competing in 4-H riding on the local level and in the state competition in production some years ago.

When asked how she got started with horses, Twila replied, "Our parents had a couple of steers and some chickens. Although my sister, Teresa, and I had 22 rabbits, our real desire was to have horses. I was seven years old when we started asking for a pony," she condinued, "but we had to agree to give up our 22 rabbits first.

"We got Clover, a little Shetland pony, and that is when we really got interested in horses. When I was eight years old, our grandfather bought us a quarter horse Morgan cross, which we named Thunder. He was about four years old. I joined a 4-H Club when I was nine and rode Thunder. Teresa still had Clover."

Thunder learned really well, and the first show season he and Twila went undefeated in trail class (in 4-H and open shows). Through the years they won many awards, but Thunder is now 25 and can no longer be ridden because he has ringbone, which is calification of the bone around the upper part of the hoof and is very painful. He has been retired to another farm where he can be company for another older horse. After having had Thunder for 21 years, it is like losing one of the family, Twila said.

The girls had various horses through the years that did not work out. Then Twila got Casey, a horse for production competition which includes weanlings, yearlings, and two-year-olds. Weanings and foals just weaned from their mothers. Yearlings are one-year-olds. They can be shown in 4-H and so can the two-year-olds. Casey was a yearling, and Twila won third with him in state competition in production. She continued to train him to age two when she broke him to ride and then sold him.

In 1982, Twila's sister Teresa won a Bob Evans quarter horse by filling out forms as to why she wanted one, etc. This horse was named Precious, and both girls enjoyed riding her. She has been excellent in competing in Western Classes, and the girls won numbers of times with her.

When Tila and her sister were growing up, they did not have the opportunity to get paid lessons, and so basically they were self-taught by watching shows, reading books and studying experienced riders. This is why it is a real thrill for Twile to have children and youth come to her now so that she may teach them for her many years of experience.

Twila and Greg Pellman live in the farmhouse of Tuck-A-Way Farm.

Twila started to teach while living at home on the farm of her parents, Larry and Linda Whistler, and continued teaching there for two years after her marriage, because the place that she and her husband Greg rented had no place to keep or train horses. Then they moved to their present farm as tenants, and it is ideally suited for raising, boarding, and training horses, as well as for Twila to teach young people to ride and get ready for 4-H and other competition.

Twil and Greg both expressed that their landlord, George, from Lancaster County is a real blessing and an answer to prayer. When Greg first met Twila, she told him that one of her prayers was to be able some day to be part of a program like she has now, where she can have horses, be in competition, and be with the 4-H kids and other youth whom she trains. Because of her hopes and prayers for this, it became a part of Greg's prayers and desire also as they married.

Then they met George who had the farm for rent, but someone else was to come the next week to see about renting it. However, since Pellmans made a definite decision first, they became the renters.

They mentioned to George that they wanted to clean out the barn enough to place three horses, and Twila would give lessons in the pasture. George became interested and started buying horses and became excited and more involved. He had fences built, put up an outside riding/training arena, built nine stalls in the barn, and everything was go! (Eventually he even had a large indoor riding arena constsructed, thus fulfilling Twila's dream in an even greater way than she had ever expected).

During their first year at TUCK-A-Way, Twila found that she was overextending herself in wanting to fulfill her dreams. She was giving 25 lessons each week and was riding and training eight horses a day with Teresa's help. She had to cut back on her schedule and now rides and trains five each day, in addition to riding her own game horse every day as he needs to remain in shape. The number will increase from five to seven this spring which means an increase in riding hours from the five she now spends each day. She also gives three lessons three evenings a week in winter and on rainy days, the indoor riding arena is very important to riding and giving lessons. Of course there is always the feeding, cleaning stalls, and other duties to be done, all of which shows that horseback riding is not all glamour by any means.

Twila readily admits that she could not have her fulfilled dream without the help of her husband Greg who gets up to help with the chores before leaving for work and after returning. He also helps during the weekends and is supportive of Twila as she does much of her competing on weekends.

Twila stayed in 4-H for 10 years, winning many prizes in local and district 4-H and in open competition. She continues to win in open adult competition with her game horse named JJ. She also shows horses owned by George and others and has won ribbons for all-around championships as well as challenge trophies which are kept for three years.

In the barn at the time of the interview was a two-month-old foal named Reo. Twila advised that all new-borns are called foals until the first of the year following their birth. After the first of the year following a horse's birth, it becomes a yearling — a filly if female or a colt if male. The Pellmans try to have the mares bred to foal in January or February so they are much larger when they take them into the show ring than are the ones born in later months of the year but are classified as the same age as those born in earlier months.

The Pellmans are thankful for good neighbors and for their church family and physical family - parents, sister and brother - who have been of so much help. They are thankful that they have been able to use the farm for youth and other church activities.

The couple shared a dream and it has come true on TUCK-A-WAY farm located down a secluded lane from what is known locally as Licking Creek road, just a few miles from Mifflin.

Twila instructs two students while the horse trailer stands ready to transport horses to the next show.

Patchwork Festival

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — Kitchen Kettle Village will celebrate the rich heritage of quilting during the Special Patchwork Festival, April 1st through 9th. The event is part of the Lancaster County Quilt Festival and will feature an array of quilts, wall hangings, quilted pillows and other items. There will also be quilting demonstrations, exhibits of art work featuring quilts, and music presented by a barbershop quartet.

Food-lovers will savor the quilt-inspired treats, including quilt-decorated cookies.

Admission is free and there is plenty of free parking. At Kitchen Kettle Village, Route 340, Intercourse.

Baby Walker Dangers

Last year, over 27,000 baby walker injuries were treated in U.S. hospitals, most of which were caused by falling down stairs. Prevent baby walker accidents by blocking off access to stairs, exit doorways, areas with uneven carpet or flooring, stoves, space heaters and fireplaces (Consumer Product Safety Commission).

Easter Candy Recipes To Make

Peanut Butter Fudge

2 cups sugar
½ cup milk
2 tablespoons butter

Boil to soft ball or 235 degrees on candy thermometer.

Take from stove and add:
1 cup marshmallow
1 cup peanut butter
1 teaspoon vanilla

Spread in buttered pan. Let cool. If desired, you can add 2 tablespoons cocoa.

Mary Jane Heidlebaugh, Stewartstown

Buck-Eyes

1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese, room temp.
4½ cups sifted confectioners sugar (heaping)
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup peanut butter (creamy)
6 ounces coating chocolate

Blend ingredients and form into 1-inch balls. Cool on tray in refrigerator a few hours. Dip with toothpick ¾ of each ball into melted chocolate and cool again. Layer in a container with plastic wrap between each layer. These hold up nicely.

Joan Young, Lititz

Chocolate Easter Eggs

1 stick margarine
1 (16 oz.) jar chunky peanut butter
1 box confectioners' sugar
2 cups rice krispies cereal
1 large chocolate Hershey bar
6 oz. package chocolate chips

Combine margarine, peanut butter, sugar and rice krispies. Shape into eggs by using teaspoon as measure. Melt chocolate bar and chips on top of double boiler. Dip eggs in chocolate, then place on waxed paper to cool.

Stan's Peanut Butter Eggs

½ cup evaporated milk
2½ cups confectioners' sugar
2 pound coating chocolate
3 tablespoons butter
2 cups peanut butter

Combine milk and butter and cook for 5 minutes. Cook very slowly, stirring often. Stir in confectioners' sugar, continue stirring until mixture is smooth. Put in cold place and let cool for a few hours. Stir in peanut butter and let cool again. Shape in an egg and lay on a tray lined with wax paper. Set in a cool place again until cold enough to dip in chocolate. Put chocolate in top of double boiler. Warm until just melted or the chocolate will get hard.

Makes about 75 eggs.

Stan's Kitchen

Homemade Easter Eggs

1 tablespoon butter
2 cups granulated sugar
¼ cup water
1½ cup evaporated milk
2 teaspoon orange juice
¼ teaspoon grated orange rind
2 cups coconut, chopped

Melt butter, add sugar, milk and water. Boil to soft ball stage, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add flavoring and coconut. Beat until smooth and creamy. Drop by teaspoon on wax paper. When stiff, mold into egg shapes. Let stand overnight. Melt semi-sweet chocolate and coat each egg. To make different flavors: nuts, maraschino cherries or peanut butter can be used in place of orange flavoring.

Blind Share Wonders

But Ms. Nightingale learned to become proficient by using a cane, and she now lives alone. She bowls, travels across the U.S., and visits with a son and his family in Elizabethtown.

"I'm very independent," she said as she squirted melted chocolate on wax paper to form the lollipops.

"This is something I look forward to every year."

Never Too Late To Improve Bones With Calcium

Postmenopausal women who increase their calcium intake from a near-RDA level of 750 mg per day to 1750 mg per day for two years can reduce age-related bone loss by one-third to one-half in several bones, including the legs and spine.

Even women 69 to 106 years of age can benefit from dietary calcium according to a recent study conducted in France, older women who increase their calcium intake from 500 to 1700 mg per day and consume an additional 800 IU of vitamin D per day for 18 months increase their hip bone density and reduce their rate of hip fracture by 43%. Women who do not consume additional calcium and vitamin D continue to lose hip bone density with age.

Look Good, Feel Good Is Theme For Maryland Holstein Ladies

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — You drag yourself out of bed feeling like you could have slept another eight hours. On your way to the kitchen, you stub your toe on the Fisher-Price barn set your two-year-old had painstakingly arranged the evening before in the hallway, sending fences and cows flying in all directions. And then you realize you're out of coffee. Looks like its' going to be one of these days nothing you do will turn out right.

But, wait, ladies, maybe there is something you can do to turn a day like this around, if you follow the advice given by Jackie Leimbach, guest speaker at the ladies program of the Maryland Holstein Association Convention held recently in Hagerstown. Ms. Leimbach is a director of bales for Mary Kay Cosmetics. Her topic: Looking Good/ Feeling Good.

The ladies program for the annual convention offered a full day of lectures and hands-on makeovers, and was capped by the Association's evening banquet. Approximately 25 women participated in the day program, which was presented by Leimbach and Mary Martin, wife of dairy farmer Kenlin Martin, Smithsburg, who as chairman of the convention. Mary has been a Mary Kay representative for one year.

According to Ms. Leimbach, looking the part of someone who feels great can go a long way toward actually making you feel your best, even on those days when you would rather crawl back in bed and start the day over. Just think about it: have you ever run out of the house to pick up a loaf of bread wearing jeans and an old shirt, with no makeup on, not bothering to run a brush through your hair? And then you run into someone you know, one of those women who always seem to look lovely; face radiant, a casual but coordinated outfit, cute shoes. You want to melt away into the bakery display rack as you stare down at yoiur own dingy sneakers, the same ones you throw on to do your chores. By the same token, are you aware of days when you don't have a lot of energy, but you seem to "put yourself together" especially well, and end up feeling revitalized?

According to the principles of Looking Good/Feeling Bood, by taking charge of and enhancing your outward image, you provide positive reinforcement to your inner self. Ms. Leimbach suggested that the ladies "take time for yourselves every day" by applying some makeup, and putting thought into their outward appearances. "You are investing in yourselves," she gold the group.

After a break for lunch, the ladies program continued with a presentation on Color Logic, and then with makeovers. Swatches of various colored cloth were draped around volunteers' necklines, so that the group could see for themselves the degree to which different shades and intensities of color flattered certain skin, hair, and eye colors.

Fannie Bender, wife of outgoing Holstein Association president Oren Bender, Accident, was one of those who volunteered to "try on" different fabric swatches. As various fabrics were draped around Mrs. Bender, and others, the group had an opportunity to see examples of Color Logic. The subsequent makeovers also enhanced the fellowship of the day.

FPPF Polar Power
Keeps Your Diesel Running In The Worst Winter Cold!
Fuel filters, separators do nothing to keep diesel fuel from the waxing or gelling that blocks up and clogs fuel lines and filters.
FPPF Polar Power contains FPPF's Fuel Power and FPPF's Polarized Diesel Fuel Flow Improver, the industry's leaders. It will keep your diesel running in the worst winter cold: lowering the pour-point, totally dispersing water, eliminating gum/varnish...outperforming all other additives and at lower cost.

FARM POND OWNERS
AQUASHADE
AQUATIC PLANT GROWTH CONTROL
FOR ALL SEASONS
FOR CONTROL OF UNWANTED AQUATIC WEEDS AND ALGAE

The problem of suppressing unwanted Aquatic Growth has never had a simpler solution. AQUASHADE works on a basic scientific principle. THE LIGHT REDUCTION PRINCIPLE.

AQUASHADE IS:
- Economical, because it's long lasting.
- Non-toxic, no harm to humans, livestock, fish, wildlife and turf. (EPA Registered)
- Non-killing, because it controls growth by suppressing.
- Easy to use by just pouring
- Beautifying, by coloring water to a natural teal blue.

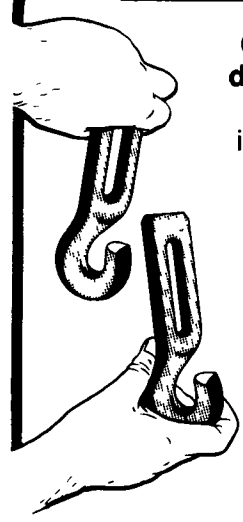
NEW LIFE FOR YOUR OLD BARN CLEANER

... with BERG chute and chain replacements



Getting all the extra working years you deserve from your old barn cleaner is a good way to save money! If your chute is worn, we'll replace it with a Berg, standard side-by-side or split-chute with rugged, box-beam construction or a Berg custom-built chute to fit your specific make of barn cleaner. All chutes are made of long-lasting, 10-gauge, copper-bearing steel. And, if you need a new gutter chain, you can't beat Berg's extra-strong, forged-alloy, hook-link chain with choice of flites to handle any manure.

Call us today for all the money-saving details!

Lancaster County To Conduct Sheep Shearing School

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Once again, the Lancaster County Sheep and Wool Grower's Association and Penn State Cooperative Extension will conduct a two-day Sheep Shearing School for area shepherds.

The school will be held on Friday, April 8 and Saturday, April 9 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days at the Rod Nissley Sheep Flock near Campbelltown, Lebanon County. Mike Fournier, Bucks County extension agent, will serve as instructor for the school.

Cost for the school is $15 for members of LCSWGA and $25 for non-members. Shearing equipment will be provided by Penn State University.

During the past seven years, 116 individuals have been instructed in the art of sheep shearing at the Lancaster County School.

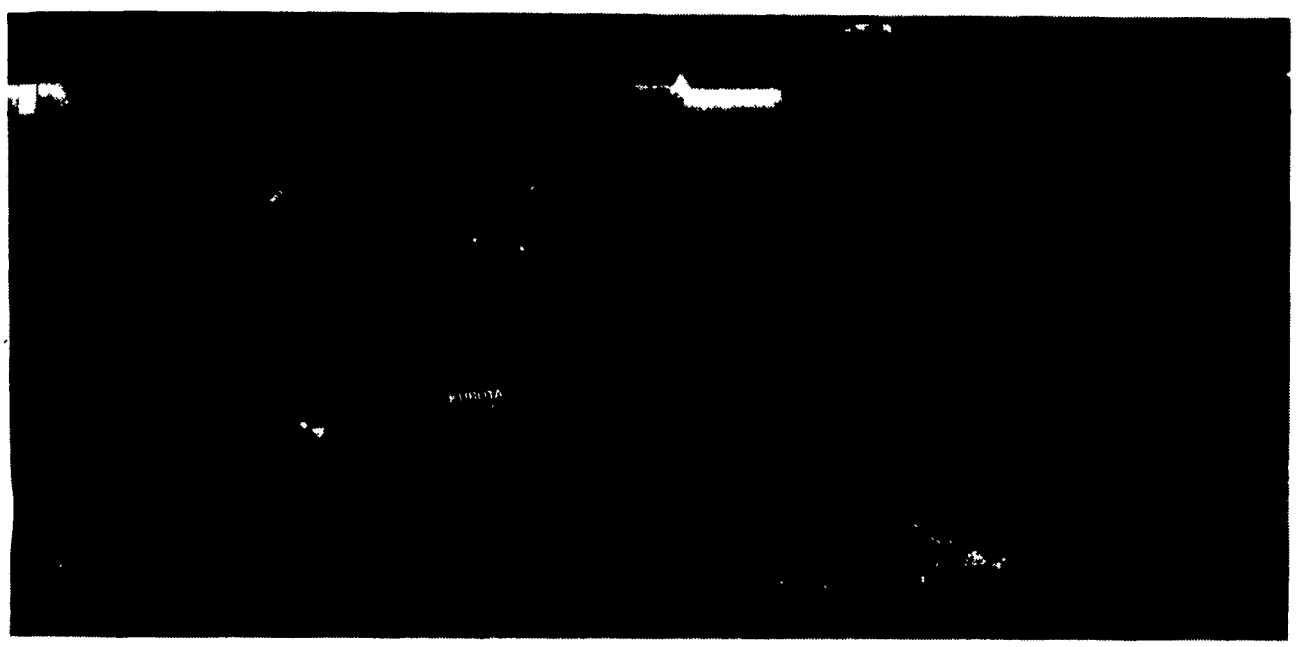
THE ONLY THING SHAKING IS THE COMPETITION



Introducing Kubota's new Grand L-Series diesel tractors. Four compact models with 25 to 37 PTO HP. Designed to take on any job that demands power and mobility.

Available in 2WD and 4WD, the Grand L-Series features Kubota's new ETVCS diesel engines that run quietly with cleaner emissions. Operator friendly with power steering, tilt wheel and enclosed muffler for greater visibility. The roomy flat operator's deck is ISO mounted to greatly reduce vibration.

The Grand L-Series has a choice of transmissions, the new fully synchronized main transmission with Synchro-shuttle allowing shifting-on-the-go through the 4 main gears, or the new GST (Glide Shift Transmission) which allows shifting-on-the-go through all 8 speeds. Both run smoothly and efficiently with the new larger diameter, larger capacity clutch.

The Grand L-Series powerful hydraulic system, independent rear PTO and 3-point hitch hook up to a wide range of quick-attach implements to handle any job.

Power and mobility: Kubota's Grand L-Series has it covered.

Kubota Tractor Corporation markets a full line of tractors through a nationwide network of over 1,000 dealers

Many manure storage pits have been constructed without providing for ventilation of the pit, particularly in buildings constructed several years ago when pit storage was first popular

A non-ventilated pit results in a build-up of harmful caustic gases, such as carbon dioxide, hydrogen sulfide, methane, ammonia and mercaptans

Hydrogen sulfide and carbon dioxide are heavier than air and, as the level of pit waste rises closer to the slats, the gases are forced closer to the animals

Results of inhaling these gases may be deep, fast breathing from CO^2 Hydrogen sulfide is one of the most toxic gases to animals and humans associated with liquid manure storage. This gas can cause severe irritation to the eyes and respiratory system and sometimes can result in death

DEDICATION DAY IS FAST APPROACHING

Dr. William D. Weaver, Jr.
Professor and Head
Department of Poultry Science

The dedication of the totally new Poultry Education and Research Center will take place on Thursday, May 19 on the Penn State Campus. This new facility consists of six separate buildings containing approximately 50,000 square feet and costing more than $6 million.

The day will start with a symposium program in the Agricultural Science and Industries Building. Drs. Roland Leach and Guy Barbato, members of the Department of Poultry Science faculty, will open with two short lectures on their research programs. Dr. Leach will address the evolution of research on skeletal development and Dr. Barbato will discuss genetic modification of growth and development.

The keynote address will be delivered by Dr. W. J. (Bill) Stadelman, who received both his master's and doctorate degrees from Penn State in the 1940s. After completing his degrees, Stadelman and his wife (also a Penn State alumnus) first moved to Washington State University and then to Purdue University. There, Stadelman embarked on an outstanding teaching and research career in poultry science and food science.

We at Penn State are extremely pleased and delighted to have Dr. Stadelman return to his alma mater to present the dedicatory keynote address.

Governor Robert Casey, Penn State President Joab Thomas, and College of Agricultural Sciences Dean Lamartine Hood will be taking part in the formal dedication ceremonies at the new Education and Research Center at 11 a.m. on May 19. Following comments by each, Governor Casey will cut the ribbon, officially opening the Center. Tours of the facilities will follow lunch, which will be served under tents on the site.

The new education and research center will provide the faculty in the Department of Poultry Science with an opportunity to train undergraduate and graduate students as well as conduct research in some of the best designed and equipped facilities in the country. Four state-of-the-art environmental chambers, capable of controlling temperature, relative humidity, light, ventilation, and large enough to hold 150 birds each will be the focal point in the Research Building. This building also contains a classroom, incubators, seven battery rooms, feed mixing, and a surgery suite.

The Meat Bird Building contains four quadrants with 24 pens each, providing a total of 96 pens. Each pen is equipped with nipple drinkers (a dome drinker for turkey poults), a pan feeder, and will hold 30 to 35 broilers or a like number of young turkey poults. The Pullet Building is equipped with two rows of commercial brood/grow cages and contains four large and six smaller rooms that can be used for either floor or battery studies. This building also contains the central feed mixing facility.

The Layer/Turkey Building is the largest structure on the Research Center and contains four rows of commercial layer cages, six smaller cage rooms, and a large egg processing area. Further, 24 market turkey pens are located in a separate wing of the building.

The Breeder Building is designed with four rows of artificial insemination cages. Forty-eight smaller floor pens that can be used for mating and other beha-

Sheep Shearing School

One thing is certain each year when it comes to raising sheep . . . shearing time!

Traditionally in Pennsylvania, the bulk of sheep are shorn in the spring and, as usual, extension agents get calls from flock owners searching for someone to perform the shearing task. Perhaps a way to solve this problem is for shepherds to learn the art themselves.

For the seventh time in eight years, the Lancaster County Sheep and Wool Grower's Association and Penn State Cooperative Extension will conduct a two-day sheep shearing school for area shepherds. During the past seven years, 116 individuals have been instructed in the art of sheep shearing at the Lancaster County school.

The school will be held on Friday, April 8 and Saturday, April 9 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days at the Rod Nissley sheep flock near Campbelltown, Lebanon County. Mike Fournier, Bucks County extension agent, will serve as instructor for the school.

Cost for the school is $15 for members of LSCWGA and $25 for non-members. Shearing equipment will be provided by Penn State University.

For more information and registration details, call Chester D. Hughes, Lancaster County extension livestock agent, at (717) 394-6851 before April 4.

Lamb Marketing Cooperative Meeting

The mission of the Pennsylvania Sheep and Lamb Marketing Program is to strengthen and support the state's sheep industry through market development and livestock research. An extensive study of retail, ethnic, and mail-order market opportunities for Pennsylvania lamb was conducted by the Program's Market Development Steering Committee.

From this, sufficient market demand was found to warrant further business planning for a cooperative marketing association and a statewide survey was conducted to determine production practices, number of lambs sold, and interest in being involved in a lamb marketing venture.

Survey results indicated that 69 producers that marketed 8,853 lambs are interested in a marketing cooperative by the apparent willingness to finance it with up-front initial investment. Survey respondents appeared willing to adjust lambing schedules and alter management practices to provide a consistent supply of lamb on a year-round basis.

Currently, the steering committee is conducting meetings across the state to discuss the marketing cooperative idea with sheep producers. A meeting for southeast Pennsylvania is being hosted by the Lancaster County Sheep and Wool Grower's Association and Penn State Cooperative Extension at 7 p.m. on April 11 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

This marketing alternative session entitled "Getting The Most From Your Lambs" will be conducted by Larry Yager, Penn State extension marketing specialist. His guests will be John Shoemaker, Allensville and Charlie Cathcart, Dry Run, members of the Green Valley Lamb Marketing Cooperative.

This is an important meeting for southeast sheep producers to attend if there is a true desire to organize a lamb marketing cooperative in Pennsylvania.

vioral trials or for growing various genetic stocks in preparation for moving into the cages are also located in this building.

The Processing Building is setup for slaughtering broilers and turkeys. Batch rather than in-line equipment will be used as relatively small numbers of birds will be processed at any one time, generally for determining yield and for collecting various tissues and organs for further analyses.

In addition to the above mentioned rooms and equipment, each building contains a laboratory where preliminary analyses can be conducted, as well as sample preparation for more involved studies to be performed in the departmental laboratories on campus.

The Poultry Science faculty is proud of its new facilities and is looking forward to showcasing them to the poultry industry and the public on Thursday, May 19. Therefore, if you have not already done so, make your plans now to be our guest on May 19 for the formal dedication ceremonies of the Penn State University Poultry Education and Research Center.

Using Swine Waste In Grazing Programs

By incorporating intensive grazing technology with a better agronomic use of animal waste, pork producers in North Carolina are becoming cattlemen with stocker grazing programs.

Working with extension agents in Sampson County, pork producers are irrigating pasture land with swine lagoon effluent and studying the performance of grazing beef calves. The results have been promising, with producers reporting return per acre in the $400-$420 range.

Benefits of low labor, less hay making, and a release from weather concerns are also positive aspects of this alternative to utilizing swine waste.

The North Carolina programs have mostly utilized coastal bermudagrass as the main forage, with fescue incorporated in some programs. Stocking rates on bermudagrass in the intensive rotational grazing system have reached 7-10 cavés per acre. Programs irrigating pearl millets, rye grass, watermelons, cucumbers, and bell peppers have also been researched.

Can we do this in Pennsylvania? There certainly is an opportunity to explore this technology, perhaps utilizing fescues, orchardgrass, brassicas and maybe even vegetables! Land values will remain a factor in the development of programs related to utilizing swine waste to graze cattle.

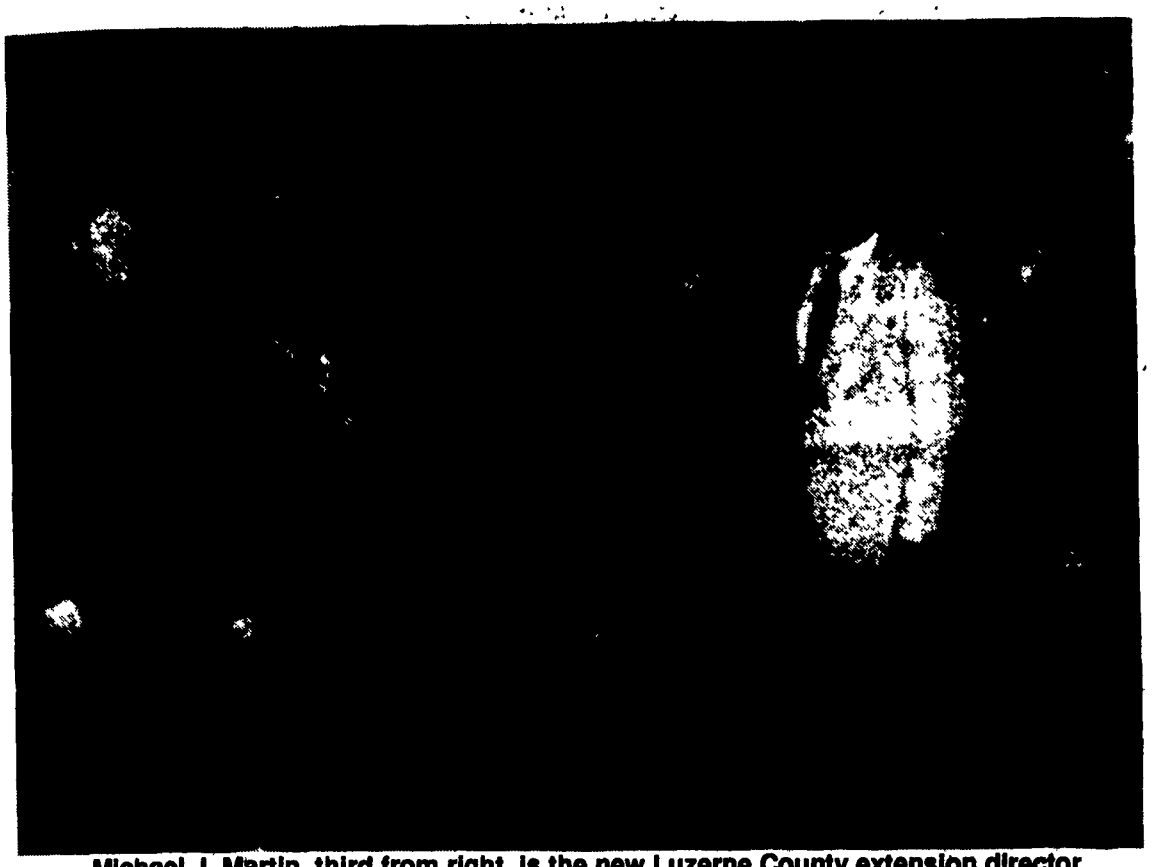
New Luzerne County Extension Director



Michael J. Martin, third from right, is the new Luzerne County extension director. From left, Eugene R. Klein, chief clerk/administrator; Rose Tucker, Luzerne County commissioner; Frank Crossin, Luzerne County commissioners chair; Michael J. Martin, Luzerne County extension director; Jim Phillips, Luzerne County commissioner; and James Brozena, trustee, Penn State Wilkes-Barre campus.

WILKES-BARRE (Luzerne Co.) — Michael J. Martin has been named county extension director for Penn State Cooperative Extension of Luzerne County.

Martin comes to Luzerne County from the University of Vermont Extension System, where he served as a regional extension specialist for 4-H youth and volunteer development. Martin also served as the state 4-H camping specialist and adviser to the statewide 4-H shooting program.

Martin earned an associate of arts degree in environmental science from Berkshire Community College, Pittsfield, Mass.; a bachelor's in communication studies from Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio; and a master's of education from Cambridge College, Cambridge, Mass. He also holds a certificate in management of volunteer programs from the Norwich University Center for Volunteer Administration.

Polled Hereford Sire Summary Available

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The spring Sire Summary of Polled Hereford bulls is available from the American Polled Hereford Association (APHA).

This seedstock selection tool lists nearly 1,600 progeny-proven sires. In the main listing are 816 sires with sufficient progeny proofs to insure accuracies of .6 and up. Sires with fewer progeny are listed in the young sire section.

"This edition contains not only expected progeny differences (EPDs) and accuracies, but also includes numbers of progeny and herds as well as numbers of daughters for each sire," said Dr. John Hough, APHA's vice president for education and research. "And for the first time, confidence intervals are included to describe the relative accuracy of each EPD."

EPDs and accuracies are published for birth weight, weaning weight, maternal milk, milk and growth, scrotal circumference, and yearling weight.

"EPDs in a sire summary are useful for purebred and commercial producers to use in minimizing genetic risk and improving profitability," Hough said. They describe the genetic value of an animal much like a feed tag describes the contents of a sack of feed."

The Polled Hereford Sire Summary carries complete explanations of EPDs, traits, and how to use the numbers. They're available at no charge from American Polled Hereford Association, 11020 NW Ambassador Dr., Kansas City, MO 64153, (816) 891-8400.

The Case International 5200 Series of Maxxum® tractors — recently named among the Agricultural Engineering 50 as one of 1993's most outstanding innovations — is available at Binkley & Hurst in Lititz.

Hay Tools Provide Efficient Harvest

COLUMBUS, Ind. — Claas of America introduces the Claas® Unifarm line of economical, low maintenance hay tools.

Ideal for use on small to mid-size acreage farms, the Claas Unifarm hay tools harvest cleanly and efficiently in virtually all field conditions.

The Unifarm line fits all Category I and II tractors and includes the CM 210 mower, the CW 440 tedder, and the CR 330 rotary rake.

Equipped with three drums, the CM 210 mower cuts fast and evenly. It maintains a ground level mowing height even at ±12° and features hydraulic lift. Working width is 6 feet 10 inches.

The CW 440 tedder is equipped with double tines which turn and spread hay and forage crops gently and smoothly, reducing loss of crop. It folds for transport and delivers a 14 feet 5 inches working width.

The Unifarm CR 330 rotary rake works at high speeds and adjusts to uneven ground conditions to provide a quick, thorough harvest. The 330 rake has a 10 feet 10 inches working width and folds to a 4 feet 10 inches width for easy transport and storage.

For more information, contact Claas of America, Inc., 3030 Norcross Drive, Woodside Business Center, Columbus, IN 47202, (812) 342-4441.

CattlePro Enhances Herd Management

CYNTHIANA, Ky. — After being thoroughly field tested by producers of both purebred and commercial beef cattle throughout the United States and several foreign countries, Bowman Farm Systems Inc. announces the immediate availability of CattlePro, the most comprehensive beef cattle records, management, and performance analysis software available for microcomputers.

CattlePro has the flexibility to keep the records that are important to your operation. Different herds, ranches, or pastures can be easily maintained in a single system.

CattlePro can handle records of an unlimited number of cows, bulls, and calves. Extensive error checking keeps you from making most common data entry errors.

From the typical records of sire, dam, birthdate, weaning and yearling weights to pelvic size, disposition, color, scrotal circumference and calving ease, CattlePro allows you to decide what records to keep.

CattlePro calculates adjusted weaning and yearling weights and indexes for contemporary groups as an aid in your selection program. You can keep track of average calving interval and your cows' weaning MPPAs (most probable producing abilities) and use this information to develop a more profitable cowherd. You can track EPDs if they are available in your breed and, if you are a purebred producer, CattlePro will keep track of registration information that can be printed out in any format you need to take the drudgery out of registration time.

For more information contact CattlePro, RR5, Box 25, Cynthiana, KY 41031.

Yeo Farms Sets Date For Competition, Sale

LOWELLVILLE, Ohio — Yeo Farms announced that its Yeo Farms Club Lamb Sale and Livestock Judging Competition will take place at the farm on Saturday, April 30.

Registration for the judging competition is set for 9:45 a.m. at the farm that day. Junior and senior judging teams from 4-H and FFA Clubs are being invited from counties in Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland, and West Virginia. Yeo Farms will provide several classes of sheep and cattle from their operations for both team and individual judging competitions.

The Yeo Farms Club Lamb Sale will take place after the judging competition, approximately 1:30 p.m. A total of 30-35 lambs will be offered to 4-H and FFA buyers to use as summer projects leading to competition at county and state fairs.

Larry Garner Auctioneers of Carrollton, Ohio will manage the sale.

The Lawrence County 4-H Club will have a refreshment stand for a continental breakfast and lunch.

This will be the seventh year Yeo Farms has had a Club Lamb Sale. It is the third year that the sale has been held in conjunction with a livestock judging competition.

Yeo Farms is a crop and livestock farm, owned and operated by Ed and Gretchen Yeo of Lowellville, Ohio, that spans the Ohio — Pennsylvania state line. Yeo Farms is a producer of grains, purebred Suffolk sheep, registered Angus cattle, and commercial cattle.

Sire Evaluation Sale For Beef Producers

DRYDEN, N.Y. — Cornell Cooperative Extension and the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association will be cosponsoring the New York Sire Evaluation Sale on April 23.

The sale will start at 3 p.m. at the Cornell Teaching and Research Center located on Route 38, 4 miles south of Dryden, N.Y.

The bulls will be available for preview evaluation on Saturday, April 23, starting at 8 a.m. Check-in for the bulls will begin at 8 a.m. on Friday, April 22.

This is the first year for the Sire Evaluation Program. This program is an on-farm based program that evaluates bulls based on their expected progeny differences (EPDs).

EPDs have been shown to be an extremely important tool for sire selection. Many of the central testing programs in the country are currently working EPDs into their indexing formulas.

This year will feature about 30 bull available for sale. Bulls from the Angus, Limousin, Polled Hereford, Red Angus, RX-3, Salers and Simmental breeds will be sold.

For more information on the Sire Evaluation Program or sale, contact Ted Perry, New York Beef cattle extension associate, at (607) 255-5923. For a sale catalog, contact Jeanne White, sale chairperson, at (607) 838-3670.

CONSIDER THE MANY ADVANTAGES OF CONCRETE

This has been quite the winter, hasn't it? I think most of us are really looking forward to spring. In the meantime, we have to get through this ice, snow, and soon MUD! There's a lot of ground not frozen because of the snow cover, and if you must go over that ground to get to your stored feed, that will cause quite a struggle.

And, if the long range forecasters are right, another 6 years of severe winter weather means you will want to be better prepared to store and handle your valuable feeds.

"On most dairy farms, QUALITY FORAGE is the single most important factor affecting profit."

Our business has to do with "Protecting Your Forage Quality." Nobody protects forage quality like we do... Nobody!

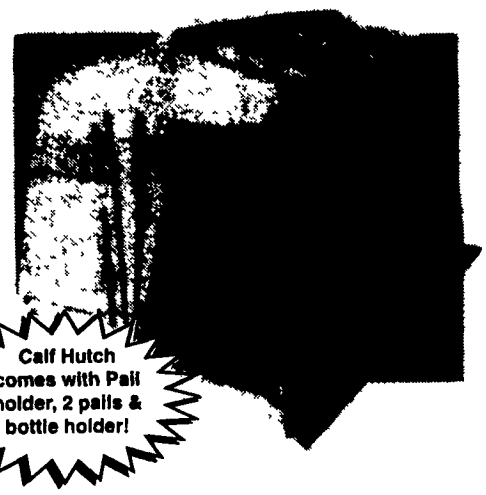
SUPREME CALF HUTCH

J&D MOLDED HIGH DENSITY-POLYETHYLENE CALF HUTCH

J&D Calf Hutches will keep calves drier in the winter, they will stay warmer and start eating at an earlier age. During the warm summer months you can use the standard, adjustable air vent to control the climate in the Calf Hutch. Your calves will be healthier and will grow faster. You may add an out door fence area to the hut.



Calf Hutch comes with Pail holder, 2 pails & bottle holder!

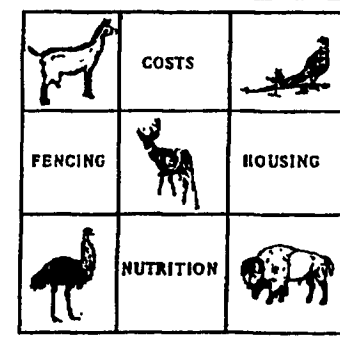
PENN JERSEY MID-ATLANTIC ALTERNATIVE ANIMAL CONFERENCE



April 15 and April 16, 1994

Friday Evening 6:30 PM to 10:30 PM Saturday, 8 AM to 4:30 PM

Hosted by Rutgers Cooperative Extension and Penn State Cooperative Extension
Conference held at the Days Inn Conference Center in Allentown, Pennsylvania at junction of Old Route 22 and Route 309

"HOW TO WIN THE GAME"

The Second Mid-Atlantic Alternative Conference is once again hosted by Rutgets Cooperative Extension and Penn State Cooperative Extension.

This years conference is designed to further assist new and existing alternative livestock enterprises, by providing a diverse forum of programming covering various species and related topics. Items ranging from general health care, marketing, management, species selection, and first-hand experiences highlight the conference.

General questions and answer sessions combined with selected break-out sessions will provide information needed for beginners and those already in some stage of the alternative livestock business.

Many of the speakers for the conference are individuals already involved in in some alternative livestock species or are University Specialists with in-depth expertise in one of the alternative Livestock Fields.

You will have many opportunities to ask questions and to interact with the presenters throughout the conference.

As a participant at the conference, you will receive a combined Alternative Animal Directory and a packet of fact sheets and related information on the species covered at the conference. Your registration fee will cover the materials cost, Friday's hospitality, lunch on Saturday, and break refreshments.

DEADLINE DATES
PROGRAM PRE-REGISTRATION DUE BY APRIL 8, 1994
Late registrations will include extra fee and acceptance based on conference attendance. For information and registration call Greg Solt (215) 746-1970.

CORN & SOYBEAN OILS - For Animals

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.
- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

PERMANENT FENCE SYSTEM

"With Gallagher Power Fences Insul Timber, I never have to worry about using or replacing insulators."

Dave Thompson
Delta, PA

Compared to woven and barbed wire, Gallagher Permanent Power Fence Systems are:
- Safe and more effective in controlling any livestock.
- Less material and labor required.
- Substantially lower cost to install and maintain.

For more information on the Gallagher Permanent Power Fence System contact your nearest Gallagher dealer listed or call 1-800-531-5908.

Registered Highland Cattle

- Discover the breed that still retains special traits acquired from its ancestors of Scotland.
- Great foragers, clearing most pest plants common to poor pastures
- Thrive in cold, damp climates
- Produce excellent lean beef in adverse conditions where other cattle would fail
- Docile and Hearty
- Calve easily due to small birth weights—something of interest to dairy people for servicing first-calf heifers
- Brucellosis, TB, BVD free herd and inoculated against rabies

Dealers Welcome

Have you tried toasted grains?

Consider these advantages over traditional roasting methods:

- Consistent by-pass proteins and low moisture levels
- Improved energy density of your rations
- Excellent quality control.
- Exchange programs with feed mills.
- Economical storage, rolling and grinding available.
- We also buy corn and soybeans

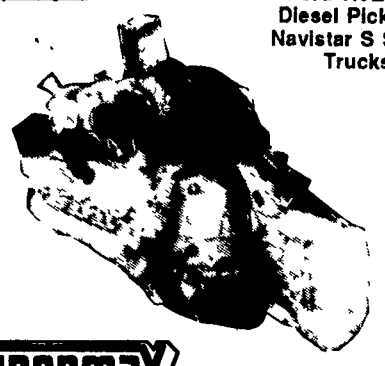
TURBOCHARGER SYSTEM

"Banks"



Ford 7.3L/6.9L Diesel Pickup & Navistar S Series Trucks

HyperMax ENGINEERING, INC.

The HYPERMAX PULSE TURBOCHARGER SYSTEM utilizes the high pressure exhaust pulses to achieve faster "off idle" engine acceleration and vastly improves throttle response This response feature is accomplished without the use of a wastegate, which detracts from performance anywhere but at low engine speeds, due to its inherent high exhaust back pressure.

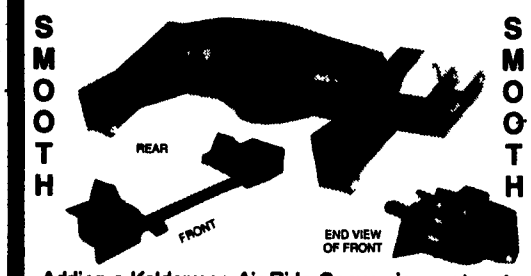
KELDERMAN AIR RIDE



Adding a Kelderman Air Ride Conversion system to your present suspension will result in a two stage suspension system. This is not to be confused with adding an Air bag mounted above the axle. Allows adding extra spring leafs to increase load rating and still maintain Air-Ride comfort.

The bolt on basic package utilizes an air stem mounted in a convenient location to add or remove air from the system.

Currently available for front and rear suspension in Dodge Series 250 & 350 trucks. Available soon for Dodge Dakota models.

Also available for some Ford, Chevy, and GMC truck models. Special orders available for most motor homes. This option will smooth out the ride on those rough-road fishing/camping trips.

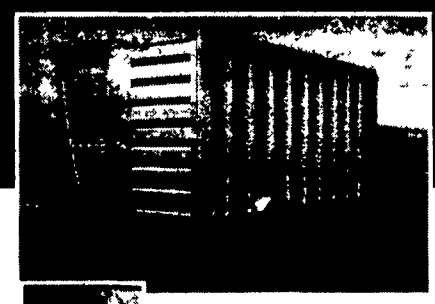
Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies



M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

Let EBY custom build one for you.

FOR SALE
960 ACRE FARM/ESTATE
(Great Potato Soils)

Just 35 Miles from Philadelphia and 90 minutes to N.Y.C.

A rare opportunity to own a beautiful private valley. Formerly the world class Masten Potato Farm, the land consists of level to gently rolling fields, and a beautiful stream valley with water for irrigation. The buildings feature an exceptional circa 1730 Stone Manor House with six bedrooms and four huge fireplaces with an elegant yet quaint entryway to the Manor House grounds, passing between the gate house and the stone bank barn and over two stone bridges to the Manor House. There is also a large Federal brick manor house. In total there are eight farm houses six of which are stone, two large stone bank barns and grain storage for 70,000 bushels. This farm has excellent potential for a potato farm or an equestrian estate. Call for a brochure on this and our other fine farms and estates.

RUFF-TUFF
POLY SILO LINERS
for Upright Silos

Now With New Expansion Ring For Easy Installation

If Your Silo Needs New Life...

Try Our Poly Silo Liners

-THE ADVANTAGE OF A POLY LINER-

- Spoilage is reduced around doors.
- Feed is exposed to less oxygen - better fermentation.
- Allows storage of high moisture grains or dry grains in a conventional silo.
- Delays repair or replacement of corroded silos.
- Prevents corrosive acids from contacting silo wall - extends silo life.
- Quick installation.
- Effectively seals silos from air and weather.

The Liners Are Manufactured To Fit Most Standard Diameter Silos.

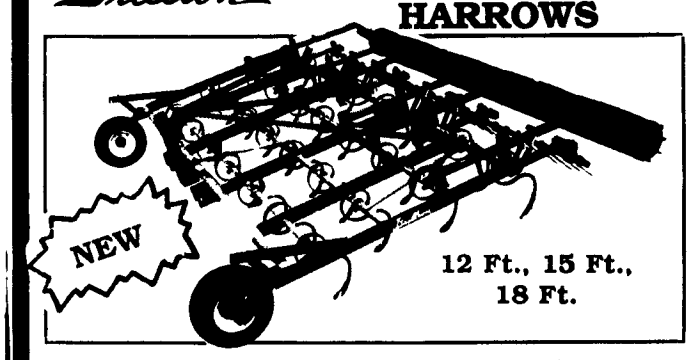
Brillion

3 PT. BASKET HARROWS

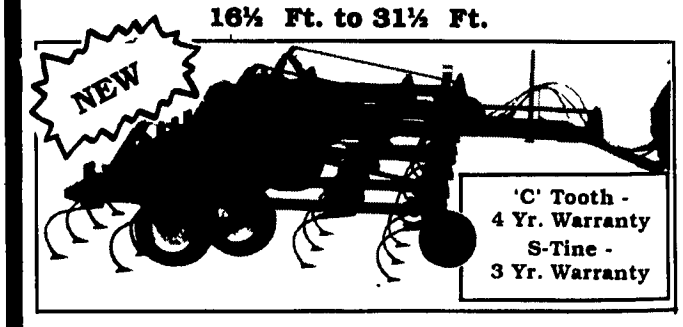


12 Ft., 15 Ft., 18 Ft.

Brillion has designed a 3 pt. S-tine field cultivator with a larger, aggressively angled 12" diameter rolling basket, a 4-bar frame that allows for either 4" or 6" tooth spacing and an adjustable coil tine leveler bar. Gauge wheels are optional

Brillion

HFC FIELD CULTIVATORS
16½ Ft. to 31½ Ft.



The "heart" of any field cultivator is the shank pivot point. A "bulked up" shank bracket made of cast ductile iron instead of the usual formed steel bracket, incorporates a hardened steel bushing AND a zerk grease fitting to lubricate the pviot point to reduce wear. The result is thousands of acres of extended life of the shanks.

SPECIAL $199.00

At Last! A Reliable, New Stainless Steel

AG-CHEM FOAM MARKER Reg. $925.00 SPECIAL $830.00

Each Foam Marker Contains:

- Mixing chamber for each boom.
- Drop hoses for each boom.
- Electronic harness for in-cab controls (on-off/left-right).
- Hose for boom lengths up to 47'.

The Ag-Chem foam marker offers you efficient operation with a 12 volt compressor that draws only 9 amps. Independent left and right boom markers can be controlled from the cab for on-the-go operation. That lets you operate either boom marker for precise, economical foam placement. And best of all the Ag-Chem Foam Marker produces a dense foam within seconds of agitation, and has a dependable output that can be adjusted for volume.

A Revolutionary Approach To Pressure Washing

The DK Cleaning Nozzle
The Dirt Killer is the ideal cleaning nozzle. With its unique, high-speed, spinning head it gives a less powerful machine the impact of larger, more powerful industrial pressure washers.
The DK, unlike some rotary nozzles, leaves no unsightly pressure washing lines on the surface it is cleaning and it is safe for use in sensitive industrial areas. Some uses include brick restoration, paint and graffiti removal and deck cleaning.
When you don't need a water blasting nozzle, but want high performance cleaning, turn to the DK from Dirt Killer.

The IDK Water Blasting Nozzle
The Industrial Dirt Killer is the world's most powerful cleaning nozzle. It also features a spinning head, which moves at a much slower speed to produce large water droplets that deliver a devastating blasting force.
The IDK has the ability to attack and thoroughly clean 3-dimensional surfaces such as concrete and steel. Difficult cleaning projects, such as crab pots, hog confinements, farrowing crates, milk barns and many others, are made easy with this incredible tool
For the toughest industrial pressure washing applications, ask for the IDK from Dirt Killer

Champion Texas Longhorns To Be Crowned

ARDMORE, Okla. — Harrisonburg, Virginia has been selected as the site for the 1994 Annual Texas Longhorn International Championship Cattle Show and Convention.

This event will be the first show of its kind held east of the Mississippi River. More than 200 registered Texas Longhorn cattle of all ages are expected at the two-day competition at the Rockingham County Fairgrounds on October 21-22.

International grand champions of the breed will be selected by three prominent cattle judges. The Sheraton Inn, 1400 East Market Street, has been appointed show and convention headquarters, according to Ben Gravett of Catlett, Va., regional director of the International Texas Longhorn Association, show sponsor.

The International Texas Longhorn Association (ITLA) is the registry for this historic breed of cattle. ITLA world headquarters are in Ardmore, Okla., and it boasts of member-producers in 46 states and six foreign countries. Thousands of newly born cattle are entered in the ITLA registry each year.

Almost extinct in the early 1900s, there are more than 200,000 of these cattle living today. J. Frank Dobie, in his book "The Longhorn," estimated more than 60 million Longhorns roamed the southwest area of the U.S. after the Civil War in what is now New Mexico, Louisiana, Texas, and northern Mexico. These are the cattle that were driven on the great trail drives to beef hungry northern, eastern, and far western states.

Texas Longhorn cattle gave birth to the American Cowboy and originated the great western ranching industry. Ancestors of the Texas Longhorn were mostly Spanish cattle brought to Mexico around 1500 A.D. for food, milk, hides, and tallow for Catholic missions and the exploring Conquistadors. Disease, marauding Indians, and completion of the work of the explorers left these Spanish cattle to fend for themselves.

Present-day Longhorns are the result of hundreds of years of nature's "survival of the fittest" method of eliminating the weak and unproductive. Today, Longhorn cattle are being revived due to their natural lean meat, long life, high protein, low cholesterol qualities, and other genetic attributes.

New Technology, Regulations Harder On Small Farms

NEWARK, Del. — Technological change and increasing government regulation are likely to have a profound impact on American agriculture through the rest of the decade. And small-scale family farms will have the hardest time surviving these pressures, particularly in the global marketplace, according to Dr. Gerald Cole, University of Delaware resource economist.

"New technology is presumed to enhance productivity and increase output," said Cole, a member of the department of food and resource economics in the College of Agricultural Sciences. "While some technologies are scale neutral, others are likely to be adopted only by larger producers."

New or expanded government regulations — particularly the 1999 implementation of the Coastal Zone Act — also are likely to make it harder for smaller farm operations to survive in Delaware and other states.

"Nutrient management plans, pesticide application records, and labor regulations are all examples of changes that increase record-keeping requirements," the economist said. These changes tend to create a greater disadvantage for smaller producers who lack computer skills and/or the latest financial and production management technology.

"We often hear politicians speak with great fondness about preserving smaller family farms," Cole said. "But many times new laws that are passed with the intent to help agriculture actually don't, because many small producers can't keep up with the additional cost of meeting the regulations.

"These regulations are likely to hasten the demise of farm businesses that are already marginal," the economist said. "It's like when dairy farmers had to switch from milk cans to bulk tanks back in the 1970s. Faced with the added expense of installing the tanks, many producers opted to go out of the dairy business. I see this as a similar turning point."

At the same time, Cole expects farm program support to gradually erode, putting agriculture under increased market pressure.

"Pressure to reduce the U.S. budget deficit will result in agriculture's being one of the target areas for spending cuts," he said. "Also, in both the recently completed General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) and in the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), there is a call for gradual reduction in agricultural price supports and/or tariffs on agricultural commodities."

Most of the future growth for U.S. export markets will be in newly industrialized or developing countries in Latin America and the Pacific Rim, Cole predicts. These economics offer the best potential future market for U.S. agricultural exports, particularly value-added products such as processed grain, processed poultry, and processed fruits and vegetables.

"Numerous forces will continue to influence the future profitability of U.S. agriculture," he said. "Many of these factors are determined in an international setting, well beyond the control of farm organizations and especially the individual farmer. That's why all of us who are concerned about the future of U.S. agriculture must be increasingly aware of what happens daily in the global marketplace."

Monroe Conservation District Wins Environmental Award

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Monroe County Conservation District in Stroudsburg, Pa., was honored as the Conservation District of the Year by the National Association of Conservation Districts at the group's annual convention in Phoenix, Ariz.

Austin Blakeslee, chairman of the district's board of directors, and head naturalist Roger Spotts represented the district at the award ceremony, where they were recognized before nearly 2,000 conservation leaders for the district's innovative natural resource education programs.

"The staff and board of directors of the Monroe County Conservation District combines a strong commitment to conservation with the creativity that makes the stewardship of our nation's soil and water an important part of life in eastern Pennsylvania and worldwide," said Dick Foell, manager-AgriBusiness Affairs for Zeneca Ag Products, co-sponsor of the program.

"Through the educational programs of districts like this one, our nation can pass along the respect for our natural resources that will be so important for sustaining future generations."

Monroe County Conservation District serves Monroe County residents and school districts with a wide array of fee-based services, including educational curricula that fulfill the state requirements for environmental education, a newsletter on local environmental programs and issues, a summer day camp for children, and public programs for adults.

The district is housed in an environmental education center supported by more than 600 dues-paying members. There are three full-time naturalists on staff, as well as three resource technicians, three office support staffers, a maintenance person and a district manager. Naturalist Karen N. Boyle says the Education Center was built and developed thanks to a decade of hard work by many people who have since left the organization.

Boyle and fellow naturalist Glenn Wachter discussed the Monroe County Conservation District Environmental Education Center with conservationists and educators in a conservation education workshop in Phoenix. The workshop introduced NACD Conservation Education Award winners to each other, and to members of the organization that presented them their awards.

"It's nice to be recognized for doing something we think is important," said Wachter. "Although we're not in it for the recognition, we appreciate it."

Soil Judging Team First In Northeast Contest

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Student Soil Judging Team recently placed first among six colleges in the 1993 Northeast Collegiate Soil Judging Contest at the Ag Progress Days site at Rockspring. The team now qualifies for the National Collegiate Soil Judging Contest to be held at the University of Maryland in the spring.

The competition, which is hosted by a different school each year, provides students with a unique opportunity to see soils from different areas of the state, classify them and make interpretations for different land uses.

GLASGOW, Ky. — In February, United Farm Tools announced the formation of UFT Financial Services.

This new division will coordinate all financing activities of the company, including invoicing, dealer floorplanning, and customer retail financing. UFT has named Richard Pook to head up this new division.

In making the announcement, Sam Lawson, president and CEO, said, "This is the next logical step in developing the recognition of United Farm Tools as a 'World Class' manufacturer of farm equipment.

To introduce the new UFT Financial Services Division, the company will be offering customers a choice of 0% interest until October 1, 1994 or 5.9% notes for 36 months on the purchases of new UFT equipment, plus an array of lease options.

For more information, contact UFT Sales at (319) 283-5451 or UFT Financial Services at (502) 651-7121.

Committee Hires New Veal Merchandiser

CHICAGO, Ill. — V. Russell Woodward has joined the Veal Committee as veal merchandiser.

In this position, Woodward will work with retail and foodservice operators in selected target cities to implement veal promotion and merchandising programs. He will regularly visit with meat directors, meat merchandisers and advertising departments of major retail and wholesale headquarters, as well as packers, foodservice operators, distributors and purveyors.

Much of Woodward's work will focus on encouraging veal marketers to participate in the new "Veal. Discover The Special Choice" campaign, launched last fall by the Veal Committee.

Previously, Woodward was a purchasing/raw products manager at Keystone Foods Corporation in Bala Cynwyd, Pa. He has also worked on the resource staff of the Texas 4-H Center and as a lab assistant at Texas A&M University, where he received his bachelor's degree in food science and technology.

Student Ag Day At Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — "Agriculture: Learning today to care for tomorrow" will be the theme for this year's Student Ag Day on the University of Maryland campus at College Park.

The 69th annual event is scheduled April 30 in the livestock barns area behind the Animal Sciences/Agricultural Engineering Building. Activities will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. There is no admission charge, and the public is invited.

Typical of country fairs, Ag Day will feature student competition in fitting and showing dairy cattle, beef cattle, swine, horses, and sheep. The program booklet again will be dedicated to a College of Agriculture faculty or staff member who has rendered outstanding support to students and student activities.

By 2:30 p.m. the winners in each livestock class will be exchanging animals to determine who deserves the honor of being selected grand champion showman.

Prior to the final student competition — around 2 p.m. — College of Agriculture faculty members (with little or no previous experience) will compete in a humor-filled swine showmanship contest. Contestants are encouraged to dress in funny or outlandish costumes.

Ag Day is sponsored each year by the Agriculture Student Council at the University of Maryland with support from 12 College of Agriculture student clubs. Many of the clubs will operate concession booths, selling barbecued beef sandwiches, hot dogs, soft drinks, and other food items.

Bedding plants and vegetable transplants also will be on sale. The Collegiate FFA group and an Anne Arundel County 4-H club will be selling craft items.

Barnyard babies will be included in a farm animal petting zoo. Woodsy Owl and Molly the pink cow characters will be on hand, too.

In conjunction with this year's Ag Day, an 11 a.m. dedication ceremony will commemorate the new Agricultural Engineering wings of the Animal Sciences-AgriculturalEngineering Building at the University of Maryland.

A major speaker at the dedication will be Norman R. Scott, vice president for research and advanced studies at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y. Dr. Scott is national president of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

Sheri L. Jardine of Bowie (Prince George's County), an animal science pre-veterinary senior, is president of the ag student council, the sponsoring organization for Ag Day.

Jardine said that the goals of Ag Day are to make the public and the campus community more aware of Maryland agriculture and to give College of Agriculture students an opportunity to participate in all aspects of a scaled-down county fair.

Farmers Union Recommends Targeting

FARGO, N.D. — The primary objective of national agricultural policy must be to revitalize the family farm system of agriculture and to enhance farm income so that farmers can continue to provide a reliable supply of food and fiber while serving as stewards of the nation's land and water resources, according to the National Farmers Union.

In policy adoption recently, delegates to the farm organization's 92nd anniversary convention said the basic issue facing rural America is the control of American agriculture.

"National farm policy must provide direction and emphasis to ensure that control of agriculture is vested within the family farm. The decline in the number of farms must be reversed. Programs which encourage sustainable agriculture and diversified production, while discouraging capital intensive and hight input farming, can be keys to reversing this trend," delegates said in the adopted policy statement.

The farm group said the current farm law has placed this nation's system of family farm agriculture into "continuing economic jeopardy, leaving farmers at the mercy of a marketplace which is increasingly dominated by vertically-integrated, multi-national grain and food conglomerates."

The Farmers Union called for new directions in the development of the 1995 farm law to prevent family farmers from becoming an "endangered economic species." It urged federal farm program benefits be targeted to the production levels of family farms in order to reduce government costs and to further the sustainability of family farms and rural communities.

The farm organization historically has favored supply-management programs and continues to do so; however, it acknowledged that "current farm law and trade policy directions lessen this nation's ability to manage the agricultural supply-demand and pricing situation on behalf of its producers."

The result is that future farm policy seems limited to a choice between continued decoupling or the targeting of farm program benefits, according to the Farmers Union. "Decoupling so far has provided artificial competitive advantages to the largest farms while collapsing the very safety net that was originally established for family farmers," the Farmers Union policy declared.

The organization explained that the nation's largest farm operations have continued to receive their full entitlements, while the across-the-board cuts through the triple-base system have put the burden of the budget cuts on the backs of the small and mid-sized farm families.

The Farmers Union policy said the organization would adamantly oppose further decoupling. It said targeting farm program benefits is the "most viable policy alternative available today to respond to the crisis facing family farm agriculture.

"Targeting must establish a basis that provides cost-of production returns and a reasonable livelihood from the basic output of a family farm," the farm group said.

Tiered marketing quotas, set-asides, and price supports, together with overall, per program and volume (bushel) based commodity loan and deficiency payment limitations were endorsed as effective targeting tools.

In addition to targeting efforts, the Farmers Union endorsed defining farmers eligible for program benefits as "farm operators who rely on farm income for their livelihood." The organization said farm operators who have supplemental off-farm jobs should continue to be eligible for farm program benefits, but those persons or entities which have extraordinary annual net incomes from unrelated, non-farm sources of more than $100,000 should not be eligible.

Workshop Set On Rural Income Opportunities

KEEDYSVILLE, Md. — Farmers and other rural landowners can explore opportunities to produce additional income from their property at a workshop on "Income Opportunities For Rural Areas Utilizing Your Natural Resources."

Sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia and the Small Business Development Center, the workshop will be held Saturday, April 16, at the Center for Career and Technical Education in Cresaptown, Md., five miles south of Cumberland on Rt. 220.

"Response to this very popular workshop in past years has been extremely encouraging," said Jonathan Kays, a natural resource specialist with the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. "Participants at past workshops have made it clear that private landowners are interested in using their natural resources to meet recreational demands and provide non-traditional products and services."

Kays believes that continuing concerns for the environment, especially as regards water quality and long-term land stewardship, will only increase interest in alternative income-producing enterprises.

The workshop will help prospective entrepreneurs and producers looking to diversify get started by providing them with information on how to produce, market, and finance a variety of non-traditional products and services.

The morning program will explore various opportunities, examine legal and liability issues, and discuss enterprise budgeting and marketing.

After lunch there will be three breakout sessions:

- Agritourism: fee fishing, bed & breakfasts, and guns, grit and glory.
- Environmental horticulture: greenhouse crops, marketing specialty products and maple syrup production.
- Forestry and natural resources: dollars from woodlots, mushroom and ginseng production and kiln drying opportunities.

A $12 registration fee includes lunch, morning coffee and donuts, break beverages, and informational materials. Preregistration is required by April 8 and is being handled by the Alleghany County office of the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. Call this office at (301) 724-3320 to request a brochure or to register by phone. Your local cooperative extension service office in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia also have workshop brochures.

Books Provide Latest Tillage, Soil Management Information

MOLINE, Ill. — Farm owners, farm managers, and anyone else who seeks the latest information about profitable, site-specific tillage practices and effective soil-management strategies can find it in two books, entitled "Tillage" and "Soil Management." The books are published by Deere & Company's Service Publications Department.

"Tillage," a completely revised edition, replaces a book of the same title in Deere's Fundamentals of Machine Operation (FMO) series. "Soil Management" is part of the company's Farm & Business Management series.

"Both series are used extensively by educators and make excellent reference material for those associated with production agriculture," said John Kuhar, senior editor with Deere's publication department.

The 164-page tillage book, complete with more than 300 illustrations, presents up-to-date information on primary and secondary tillage systems and provides practical strategies for conservation planning and working with higher levels of crop residue. Other topics include dryland tillage practices, tillage at seeding, managing soil compaction, and equipment adjustments.

The soil management book contains 140 pages of practical information about subjects such as soil fertility, erosion control, soil compaction and its management, factors affecting crop yield, and conservative planning. The topics are illustrated with more than 200 photographs, charts, and drawings, and many are in color.

"Tillage" and "Soil Management" are priced at $29.95 and $24.95 respectively.

For ordering information, write Lori Lees, Deere & Company, Service Publications Dept., John Deere Rd., Moline, Ill. 61265-8098, (309) 765-4516.

Dairy Farmers Establish Institute To Study Diet, Genetics, Heart Disease

BATON ROUGE, La. — The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board announced that it has approved funding to establish the Dairy Institute on Diet, Genetics and Heart Disease at the Pennington Biomedical Research Center of Louisiana State University.

The National Dairy Board, funded by dairy farmers from across the nation, will provide $1.6 million over three years to create the Dairy Institute. The Dairy Institute's research program will investigate the effects of varying levels of fat in the diet on risk factors for heart disease and how these risks may be influenced by genetic factors.

"We are very enthusiastic about the prospects of this exciting research, which will address the leading cause of death in the U.S.," said John Peachey, Florida dairy farmer and chairman of the National Dairy Board's Dairy Foods and Nutrition Research Committee. "We look forward to meaningful results that will lead to improved quality of lilfe for all Americans."

Louisiana Commissioner of Agriculture Bob Odom said the Pennington Center's ability to attract a program of such vital interest to the nation demonstrates the quality of work now being performed at the research center. "Establishment of the Dairy Institute will boost the Pennington Center's reputation in the nation's scientific community even further."

Low-fat diets have been widely promoted as an effective means to reduce the risk of heart disease, according to Paul Roheim, M.D., who will direct the Dairy Institute's research program.

"But previous research has demonstrated that such reductions may not be beneficial for everyone. We will examine whether certain individuals may actually be more at risk when consuming a low-fat diet," said Roheim, director of the Division of Lipoprotein Metabolism and Pathophysiology at the LSU Medical Center in New Orleans and professor of medicine and physiology at the LSU Medical Center and the Pennington Center.

To identify individuals who may increase their risk of heart disease by consuming a diet low in fat, investigators at the Pennington Center will study levels of cholesterol and other lipids in the blood of 100-120 male volunteers and how these levels are influenced by genetics and changes in diet, particularly intake of dairy fat, he said.

The study includes three six-week feeding periods. During this time, all volunteers' meals will be prepared and served by the Pennington Center's metabolic kitchen. In each of the three feeding periods, the percentage of total fat and saturated fat in the meals will be varied. The study is expected to begin early this summer.

Michael Lefevre, Ph.D., who will serve as co-principal investigator on the project, said a low-fat diet reduces risk for heart disease by also reducing saturated fat intake, which, in turn, reduces LDL, or "bad," cholesterol levels in the blood. "Some people respond very well to this therapy, but others respond only modestly, if at all."

The catch, he said is that a low-fat diet also reduces HDL, or "good," cholesterol and increases tryglycerides. Low levels of HDL and high levels of triglycerides are additional risk factors for heart disease. "So if a low-fat diet lowers HDL levels and increases triglycerides in an individual without significantly lowering total cholesterol levels, such a diet may be doing more harm than good."

To identify these individuals, the Dairy Institute will follow up on previous research funded by the National Dairy Board, which identified a gene marker believed to be linked to the risk of heart disease.

"There is evidence that this gene marker controls the size of the LDL particle. The particle size may be a predictor for both those who will and those who will not benefit from a low-fat diet," said Lefevre.

A technique based on this discovery will be used to screen volunteers according to their genetic makeup. In conjunction with information from the feeding studies, the results should provide insight into the role genetics and levels of fat in the diet play in the risk for heart disease, said Roheim.

"Hopefully this information will allow us to tailor dietary recommendations to individuals based on their gentic traits," he said. "This would be a significant step toward reducing the risk of heart disease."

Alfred State Calls For Ag Dialog

ALFRED, N.Y. — Building upon Alfred State College's strong reputation in the field, College President Dr. William D. Rezak is spearheading an effort to match Alfred State agriculture programs with industry needs for the 21st century.

Recently Rezak called together some 40 agribusiness leaders from Western New York to begin dialog on the future of agriculture education in the region.

The Agriculture Strategic Planning Council will focus on charting a course in which Alfred State's agriculture programs can bolster the economic foundation of Western New York, he said.

"This is a highly talented group dedicating time and energy to help create the future for agriculture/food science programs in the 21st century," said Rezak.

Keynote speaker for the initial meeting was Richard McGuire, New York State commissioner of agriculture and markets.

In addition, state Sen. John (Randy) Kuhl (R-Bath) attended along with representatives from Cornell University and the State University of New York Agricultural and Technical Colleges at Cobleskill and Morrisville.

Council participants include successful growers, dairy farmers, processors, and distributors from every aspect of agribusiness.

During the group's first session Feb. 17, Rezak, who is council chair, presented an overview of current agriculture programs and asked the council members to help Alfred State identify educational programs which could best address their needs. He also charged the Agriculture Strategic Planning Council to determine ways to attract students to these programs.

The council was born out of a determination to "rejuvenate" the agricultural offerings at Alfred State College, said Rezak.

"Those in the agricultural field tell us we have excellent programs," and our "grads our sought after," he said, but enrollment in these programs is on the decline.

"Alfred State is the only college in the western part of the state offering a full spectrum of two-year post-secondary educational programs in agriculture and related curricula," said Rezak. "If these programs are to flourish in the 21st century in response to the needs of agribusiness in the western part of the state, we must do something differently.

"Like land, human resources are one of the few assets which appreciate over time," said Rezak. "It is essential that Alfred State be able to focus on the human resource needs of agribusiness in Western New York in order to provide a continuing supply of well-educated professionals so critical to the success of the food enterprise."

The Agriculture Strategic Planning Council will meet throughout 1994 to map Alfred State College's future role in agriculture education.

In early 1995, the council will produce a report making recommendations regarding agriculture and related programs that Alfred State College will offer. The group will next meet in late spring.

Disease Prevention Increases Alfalfa Productivity

DON ROBINSON
Lancaster Conservation District

"Queen of the Forage Crops" may seem a regal name for a crop as commons as alfalfa. But as Pennsylvania dairy farmers know, alfalfa is a major source of protein in their feed programs. As silage or dry hay, it often accounts for 25 to 50 percent of a program. Given its importance, this crop deserves the royal treatment.

The success of a stand can determine the success of the feed program. Most growers realize that good establishment practices lead to longer-lasting stands and higher yields. A number of factors, however, can limit a stand's potential. With vulnerable seedlings, there may be no greater threat than the presence of disease.

With many pests, like insects and weeds, growers see a direct influence on the health and productivity of a stand — but the effects of soil-borne diseases can be overlooked. Robinson worked extensively with alfalfa while an adult farmer teacher in Lancaster.

If seedling diseases like damping-off and root rot, caused by Pythium and Phytophthora respectively, infect root systems, Robinson says growers can see an immediate stand reduction at first cutting. Losses vary, but at its worst, disease can eliminate an entire stand. Sometimes the damage is not always that noticeable. With infected roots, alfalfa loses some of its ability to over-winter, which can decrease yields in later years and shorten the productive life of a stand.

Both diseases are an annual threat. The region's cool, wet springs provide ideal conditions for the development and spread of disease. While all soils can contain these disease pathogens, poorly drained, low areas are especially susceptible.

Disease control must begin before disease is present. There are few measures that can control Pythium or Phytophthora once they infect a plant, so it becomes essential to incorporate preventive management practices. If possible, don't plant in low areas or use conservation practices like terracing or contouring. And rotate crops, particularly in fields that have a history of disease.

Selection of disease-resistant alfalfa varieties with a seed treatment also can limit disease impact. But often these safeguards are only temporary. Preventive applications with a fungicide like Ridomil® 2E increase protection."

Despite the continual threat of disease many growers still don't know enough about fungicides to use them during stand establishment. The cost of an additional input and one more trip into the field may discourage some growers.

The most dramatic results are in the first year. In my test plots, plant counts and yield in stands treated with a fungicide was consistently higher than untreated stands, especially in wet years when plants are prone to disease.

In 1990, we had a very wet year. But when plant counts were made, the fungicide-treated fields averaged nearly 40-percent more plants per square foot than untreated acres, which translated into a 28-percent higher yield. That's a dramatic difference.

A healthy stand in the first year increases productivity throughout the life of the stand. If growers can improve a stand by 20 percent, they prevented a 20 percent loss. These "extra" plants mean higher yields in following years. It may even extend stand life.

Bible Becomes President

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Ed Bible has been named president of the American Polled Hereford Association, headquartered in Kansas City.

A 20-year employee and senior vice president of the national beef breed association, he assumed his new post in early February.

He first joined the association as editor of the breed publication, Polled Hereford World, and as director of communications. Besides his magazine, advertising and promotion duties, he is also director of the association's field staff.

He has served as president of the Livestock Publications Council, as a national officer of the National Agri-Marketing Association, and was that group's Ag Communicator of the Year in 1993.

Md. To Host National Soil Judging Contest

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Maryland will host the 34th National Collegiate Soil Judging Contest, scheduled April 15 on the Eastern Shore. There will be 16 universities competing. All are top teams in their respective regional contests around the nation.

The precontest banquet will be held on April 13 in the Kent Narrows area on the Eastern Shore. Dr. Richard W. Arnold, chief of soil surveys for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service (SCS), will be the guest speaker at the banquet. The awards presentation will take place the afternoon of the contest.

Contest coordinators are Dr. Martin Rabenhorst, and Dr. Delvin Fanning, professors of soil science at the University of Maryland at College Park. Other helpers include the UMCP Agronomy Club and Soil and Water Conservation Society student chapter; Diane Shields, a SCS soil scientist in Queen Anne's County; and Jim Brewer, area SCS soil scientist at Easton.

The 16 schools that will be competing are as follows: Texas Tech University, University of Tennessee, Ohio State University, University of California — Davis, Virginia Tech, Cornell University, California Polytechnic State University - San Louis Obispo, Utah State University, University of Wisconsin - Platteville, Southwest Missouri State University, University of Kentucky, University of Idaho, University of Arkansas, Iowa State University, Pennsylvania State University and Purdue University.

In the Northeastern Collegiate Soil Judging Contest last fall, the University of Maryland A team placed third among six schools. The competition was held Oct. 23 at Pennsylvanis State University's Rockspring Research Farm. The Penn State team captured first place with 3,537 points, Cornell was second with 3,407 points, and Maryland was a close third with 3,405 points.

Individuals in the top 10 from Maryland were Sam Buonocore, from Pomona, N.Y., who placed third and Susanna Watson, from Bethesda, who took ninth place.

The Maryland team has won two national titles in the past 34 years. However, because Maryland is the host state, the University of Maryland team will not be competing for national honors this year.

Toughest cleaning jobs made easy!
MI-T-M CORPORATION • Peosta, IA 52068

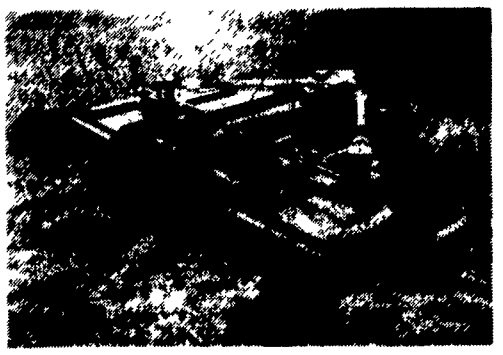
The SR15...

15' Medium Duty, Flex Wing Rotary Cutter is the ideal choice for mowing pastures, highway rights-of-way, crop residue, and other general purpose applications.



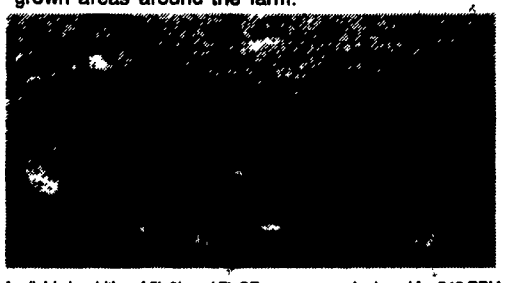
Available in 540 or 1000 RPM, the SR15 features a proven four-gearbox design that is rated to cut material up to 2" in diameter.

The divider gearbox is rated at *140 HP and the center and wing gearboxes are rated at 100 HP. The 10 gauge deck is reinforced with heavy wall tubing that provides added strength and extended life to the mower's mainframe. Replaceable side skirts are ¼" thick and 10½" deep, providing extra capacity to handle those demanding cutting jobs.

* 1000 RPM

The SE 5, 6 & 6...

Servis-Rhino's SE family of economical single-spindle rotary mowers are rated for material up to 1" in diameter and are ideal for weed or grass mowing, pasture clipping, and cleaning up overgrown areas around the farm.



Available in widths of 5', 6', and 7', SE mowers are designed for 540 RPM tractors with a standard CAT I three-point or CAT II hitch for the SE7. The flexible three-point hitch design allows the mower to follow the contour of the ground while minimizing the stress placed on the tractor. Standard features include free-swinging updraft blades for a cleaner cut, pan blade carries that help the unit glide over obstructions, and a streamlined deck provides for easier clean up and enhanced eye appeal. The rear tapered deck design provides for safer and more even distribution of cut material. A'Cat 3 driveline is standard on the SE5. The SE6 and SE7 feature a dependable Cat 4 driveline to help withstand the horsepower of larger tractors. Ruggedly built and time-tested gearboxes are at the heart of every SE mower from Servis-Rhino to help provide quality at an economical price.

MAXXUM

Three years ago, Case International MAXXUM® set new standards for mid-size tractors. With the introduction of the 5200 Series, those standards have been raised even higher.

You wanted more visibility; we added exclusive all-glass doors. You asked for easier implement attachment; we responded with ground-level hitch control. You wanted more muscle; and we increased horsepower and durability.

And we added a new model – the 112 horsepower 5250.

Leadership never stands still, and the MAXXUM 5200 Series is still the best in the business.

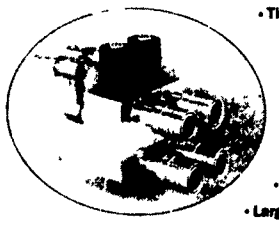
BEARLINK Replacement Top Link Improves The Performance Of Your Three Point Tractor!

The BEARLINK's seven inch adjustment stroke moves with hydraulic power, automatically locking in place wherever you want it...saving you trips back behind the tractor...making hooking implements or taking them off faster and safer...BEARLINK owners tell of shortening the hydraulic link while turning around at the ends of fields saving damage to equipment and making in-field angle adjustments without stopping...

It's Your Turn TO Profit!
List $569.00
INTRODUCTORY OFFER
$512.10 Thru Sept.

Others report hookups and unhooks without the usual hassles of freeing up the threads and all the usual manual labor associated with their mechancial top link. Every dollar you save in labor costs, time, and damage to equipment or crops... goes directly to your bottom line.



- Tired of climbing down from your tractor just to switch hoses?
- Save time, money and steps!
- Now you control two circuits with the flip of a switch!
- Stay safe - Keep high-pressure hydraulics out of your cab.
- Universal - Fits all tractors
- Large Capacity - 15 gpm

REMOTE MASTER DOES IT ALL!

The REMOTE MASTER lets you use one outlet to control two sets of hoses by moving a three-position toggle switch from circuit A to circuit B, then operating your existing tractor lever for directional control.

Put a Front-Mount Millcreek Aerator on Your Commercial Mower.

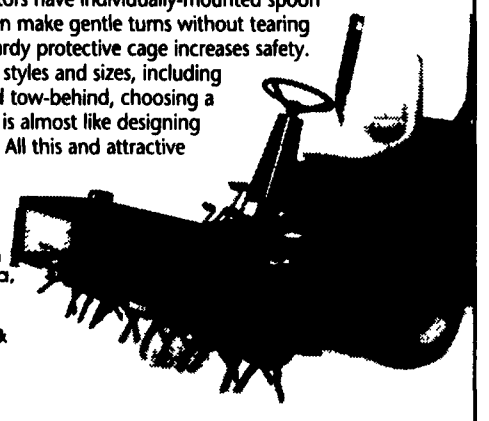
Millcreek aerators have individually-mounted spoon wheels so you can make gentle turns without tearing turf. And our sturdy protective cage increases safety.

With so many styles and sizes, including 3-point hitch and tow-behind, choosing a Millcreek aerator is almost like designing one for yourself. All this and attractive pricing too. Call today for your free information.



- Fits Ford, John Deere, Kubota, Excel Hustler
- 42", 63", 84"
- 3-point hitch & tow-behind models
- Economy Models Also

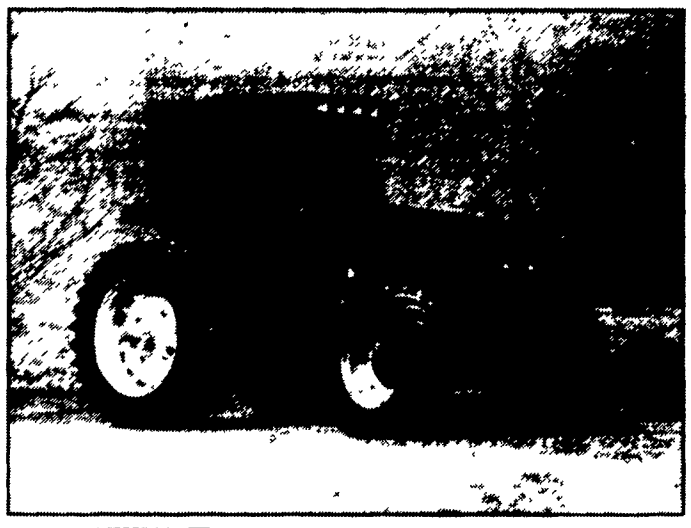
For The Way You Farm Today

Fingertip Powershift Control, Improved Field Visibility and The Most Comfortable Cab Ever



AGCO ALLIS
For the way you farm today

Model 9650
147 PTO HP (109.7 kW)

With their new 18x9 speed full powershift transmissions that electronically control the engagement of massive gears with just the tap of a hand... their cab-forward design that permits a clear, unobstructed view of the field in all directions... and their roomy, comfortable cabs, that feature a unique swivel, air-ride seat and an exclusive seat-mounted control console, the new 9600 Series tractors are clearly ahead of the time.

Every component — from the sleek, sloping hood, to the rugged, cast-iron mainframe to the world-proven air-cooled diesel engines, that require less maintenance — has been designed to match the way you farm today. The result is greater comfort, better performance and improved productivity.

Compare the features and specifications for yourself. Better yet, stop by your AGCO Allis dealer soon and try out one of the 9600 models for yourself. You have to drive it to believe it.

NO SPREADER BUILT BETTER

The New Holland Model 185 is built to last.
- Strong, corrosion-resistant steel sides.
- High-density polyethylene (HDPE) floor.
- Lifetime Bonded Protection warranty.

This 287-bushel spreader features osculating tandem wheels that allow faster ground speeds with less ground compaction. Get fast, smooth unloading at two spreading rates with the standard worm gear drive.

Stop in and see why this is the best-selling spreader in its class.

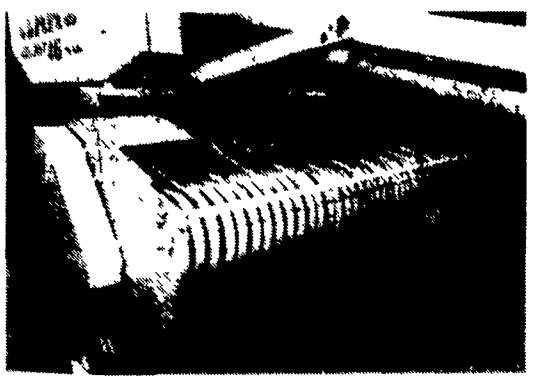
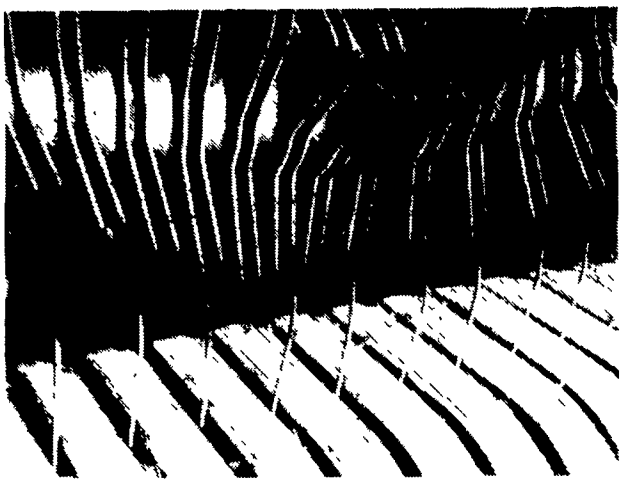
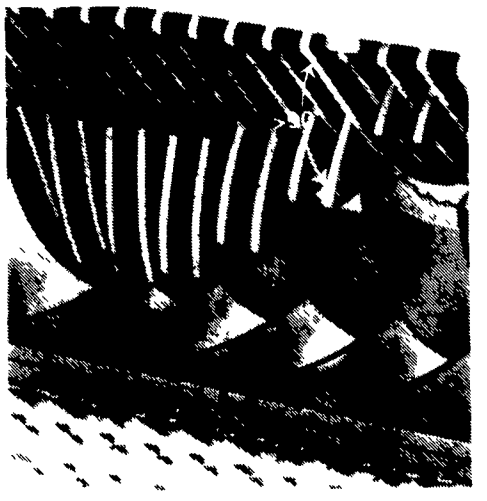
The New CLAAS ROTOCUT SILAGE BALER

Cuts Your Crop As It Is Forced Through A Series Of Knives.







The Benefits:

- Hard to feed crops are aggressively fed right into this baler
- Now you can cut and bale rye, barley and oats at boot stage.
- Bales fall apart - you can throw them down a hay hole and feed them with a fork.

ATTENTION FARMERS
If you have deteriorating concrete masonary or stone walls, have it repaired with GUNITE®

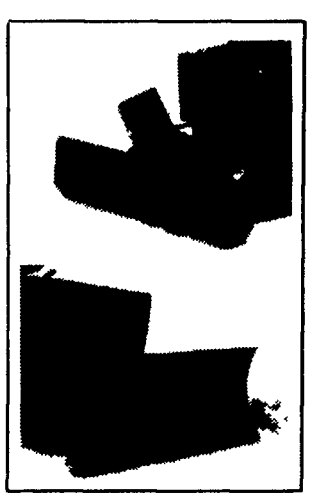
THE AMERICAN DREAM

No one said owning property meant spending all of your free time on upkeep.

With the ability to mow more than four acres an hour the Ingersoll 5018 will make short work of mowing your lawn.

And since it's a true zero turning radius machine your trimming time will also be cut; leaving you time to enjoy the American Dream.

THE ONLY LIFETIME WARRANTY IN THE INDUSTRY SPRING, SUMMER, FALL OR WINTER



All Ingersoll 3000 and 4000 series Garden Tractors feature HYDRIV™, a hydraulic drive system patented in 1965 and manufactured by J.I. Case until 1983 when Ingersoll acquired the product line and further enhanced it with state-of-the-art technology. Almost 30 years of reliable performance gives us the confidence to offer the TOP™ total Owner Protection Lifetime Warranty. Consult your dealer for specific TOP™ details.

Ingersoll offers the most complete line of time saving hydraulic attachments to tackle the tough chores on your small farm or ranch. Shown here is a Tiller and Chipper Shredder, but we also have Brushcutters, Log Splitters, Mowers, Vacuums, Scraper Blades and Snow Blowers.

Contact your local dealer now and see why we say...Ingersoll is the tractor of a lifetime.

WATER NEEDS FOR SWINE

Hog producers know that as a nutrient, nothing ranks higher than water.

From a practical sense, feed intake hinges on an adequate water supply. From a biochemical sense, virtually everything that happens in the body thrives on and depends on water.

Quantity

Pigs normally drink a little more than a quart of water with every pound of feed they eat. Hot weather, boredom, and high salt levels in the feed increase water needs.

High salt and mineral levels in the water may also increase consumption — to a point. If salt or mineral levels get too high, water intake will drop.

Pig Weight	Quarts/Day
Up to 30 Lbs.	1
30-80 Lbs.	2
80-130 Lbs.	5
130 Lbs. & Over	6

Pigs (and sows) on full feed should have free access to water to maximize feed intake. Water can be restricted somewhat for limit fed animals. For example, sows getting five pounds of feed per day need no more than three gallons of water under normal conditions. And some commercial feeding systems successfully combine limited access to both feed and water for growing-finishing pigs.

Number Of Waterers

A rough rule of thumb is to provide one waterer for every 10 to 15 pigs with a minimum of two per pen (see Table 2 below). Keep the fountains far enough apart — one to two feet for grower pigs, two to three feet apart for finisher pigs and sows in gestation. The separation is needed so that pigs can drink without competition from one another.

Flow Rate

Studies at South Dakota State University and the University of Minnesota show that when flow rates are less than ½ cup per minute, pigs spend more time drinking but consume less water than pigs getting at least 3 cups/minute through the waterer.

These findings are at least in partial agreement with that of a joint study conducted at the University of Nebraska and Purdue University (data presented below).

Table 2: Effect Of Water Flow Rate and Number of Waterers on Finishing Pig Performance.

	Flow (cups/min)		Waterers/pen
	1	4	2	1
ADG, lb.	1.56	1.61	1.62	1.55
ADF, lb.	5.65	5.74	5.74	5.65
F/G	3.64	3.57	3.55	3.65

(Adapted from Nebraska Swine Report, 1991, p. 22)

Research also shows that sows on restricted water flow (approximately ½ cup/min) tend to eat less and lose more weight during lactation than sows on a high flow rate (approximately 3 cups/minute). But a study conducted in Ottawa, Ontario showed no differences in water intake in lactating sows whether at a high (8.5 cups/minute) or low (2.5 cups/minute) flow rate. However, sows wasted only 2.5 quarts per day on the low water flow rate vs. 8 quarts per day on the high flow rate.

Based on these studies, it appears that water flow rate for individually housed lactating sows should be at least 2.5 cups per minute. But there is little justification for flow rates greater than 4 cups (1 quart) per minute.

Table 3: Suggested water flow rates for various stages of production.

STAGE OF PROD	FLOW RATE
10-25 lbs	1 cup/min
25-50 lbs	2 cups/min
50-125 lbs	3 cups/min
125-market wt	1 quart/min
Sows and boars	1 quart/min
Lactating sows	1 quart/min

Type Of Waterer

The best waterer provides fresh water, requires little maintenance, and stands a lot of abuse. For most stages of production, it's tough to find a waterer that will do a better job than a nipple.

Sows housed in gestation stalls could also drink from a continuous concrete trough with a valve at one end. The only concern with continuous troughs is that some diseases (such as TGE or pseudorabies) are quickly spread in a trough.

For baby pigs, water isn't too important until they start consuming a significant amount of creep feed (three weeks for most operations). However, ¼ inch nipples work well. Bowl or cup waterers, while less sanitary than nipples, probably have better acceptance with baby pigs.

Mounting The Waterer

Nipple waterers work nicely when mounted horizontally. Many folks suggest pointing the nipple down at a 45 degree angle to prevent wastage. I'm not convinced that will reduce wastage at all, but if nipples are mounted on an angle, they should be mounted an inch or two higher than the pig's back line.

A study from the University of Nebraska did find that pointing the nipple up on a 45 degree angle created clogging problems with the feed particles.

Water Quality

Here are suggested quality values (adapted from EPA standards, 1973 and the National Academy of Sciences, 1974). Many of the levels cited below will seem unusually high. Clearly, more research is needed.

Total Dissolved Solids (TDS, also total dissolved salts) — Avoid using water for swine when TDS levels exceed 5,000 parts per million (ppm). High levels are more of a problem during hot weather, pregnancy, and lactation. Watch for low consumption rates or milking problems. Sulfates can have a laxative effect. As little as 500 ppm of sulfates in the water can have adverse effects on weanling pigs and sow reproductive efficiency.

Total Coliforms — This is a measure of total E. Coli present in the sample. While all strains of E. Coli are not harmful, total coliforms provide an indicator of contamination. 5,000 coliforms/100 ml should be a maximum. If the value approaches this, look for sources of contamination.

Fecal Coliforms — These are the E. Coli bacteria originating from manure. Don't use the water for swine when fecal coliforms exceed 1,000/100 ml. High levels usually lead to diarrhea or mastitis problems.

Nitrates — This form of nitrogen can be tolerated at moderate levels by the pig. Some estimates place the maximum level at 440 ppm. I suggest that 100 ppm (23 ppm nitrate nitrogen) be the maximum level. Even at this level, the source of contamination should be located and contained if practical. Nitrites are much more toxic than nitrates. Nitrite level should not exceed 30 ppm. High levels can lead to stillborn pigs.

Toxic Metals

ELEMENT	MAXIMUM LEVEL, PPM
Aluminum	5
Arsenic	.5
Cadmium	.02
Copper	5
Lead	.1
Mercury	.033
Zinc	50
Calcium	1000

Source: Canadian Task Force on Water Quality (1987)

Commercial laboratories or your health department can usually assist in water analysis. Unless you see problems, annual checks for total dissolved solids, nitrates, total coliforms, and fecal coliforms are probably adequate.

Chlorination

Disinfection of water supplies for livestock is sometimes needed. Ultraviolet disinfection is adequate as long as the unit is designed for the relatively high flow rates often found with large animal operations.

Chlorination is another means of disinfection. Add enough chlorine to provide at least 1 ppm of free residual chlorine. One ppm will control bacteria, but you will need slightly higher levels to control Giardia and viruses if present.

Also, water with a pH higher than 7.5 will require at least 2 ppm of free chlorine to be effective. Be sure that the chlorine is in contact with the water for at least five minutes.

Stray Voltage

Under some conditions, the watering system may become electrically charged.

Because flooring is damp in swine facilities and because the pig is a good conductor of electricity, pigs drinking from these systems will sense an electric shock.

Studies at the University of Minnesota show that 3.7 volts is enough to reduce water consumption by 25 percent. Many researchers and producers also feel that stray voltage through the watering system can lead to nervous behavior and cannibalistic vices such as tail biting.

Recently in southeastern Pennsylvania, a sow herd had recently been experiencing vaginal discharges during gestation, and a fairly high rate of abortions. Stray voltage was evident, and although the source could not be located, the problem was corrected with the installation of neutral ground isolator.

The vaginal discharges stopped with days of that installation, and the conception rate in the herd also improved markedly.

Stray voltage reaches the watering system since many electrical systems are grounded to an external ground and to a water pipe, and because much of the electrical equipment and fencing are interconnected. The stray voltage should be measured between the waterer and an external ground (driven in a damp area) at least 25 feet from the building. Measurement should be taken with equipment both operating and turned off.

The causes of stray voltage include:

- Unbalanced load in the electrical box. Check to see that the number of circuit breakers (and the current load) on each side of the box is roughly equal.
- A short circuit or faulty appliance. Check water pumps, heaters for waterers, drip cooling systems, feed auger motors, and limit switches in feeders. All should be properly grounded and functioning normally.
- Stray voltage through the neutral line. This current may originate from the power company or their equipment.

Although unrelated to water, it should also be noted that stray voltage can reach the pigs through feeding equipment or fences just as readily as it does through the watering system.

Stray voltage problems, with the help of an electrician or a power company representative, are usually easy to correct.

Remember that pigs consume more pounds of water each day than any other nutrient. Be sure you give it the attention it deserves.

Forestry Workshop Set

WILKES-BARRE (Luzerne Co.) — Urban and community forestry can make a difference in our lives. As we develop and apply technologies for a better way of life, often times side effects adversely affect our natural environment.

In many cases, the trees that help create liveable communities are taken for granted and fail to receive the maintenance they need to remain healthy.

On April 14, Penn State Cooperative Extension in cooperation with Penn College of Technology, the Pennsylvania Urban and Community Forestry Council, the Bureau of Forestry, and the Williamsport Shade Tree Commission will hold a seminar entitled "Promoting Tree Health: A Community Forestry Workshop."

This program will begin to address community forestry issues and examine ways of maintaining and promoting tree health in our communities.

If you are a municipal manager, green industry professional, or an individual concerned about the health of your community trees, this workshop is worth attending.

The workshops will be held at the Alvin C. Bush Campus Center at the Pennsylvania College of Technology in Williamsport. The registration fee is $15 per person, which includes lunch and written materials.

For more information, call Luzerne County Cooperative Extension at (717) 825-1701 or (717) 459-0736 ext. 701.

Now Is The Time To Have Your Farm Entered In The Dairy Of Distinction Program. Use Application Below.

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.)—The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, Inc., is prepared to receive applications for the 1994 awards. This program rewards clean, well-kept farmsteads to help with consumer acceptance of dairy products in the store.

State President Dan Baker, dairyman from Covington, Tioga County, said the program has been well received, and officers look forward to an excellent program again next year.

"There are plenty of good looking dairy farms out there that have not been judged," Baker said. "And even those who have entered the selection process in the past years, without success should enter again."

The program provides rewards of recognition to producers who maintain attractive production sites. This recognition benefits the entire dairy industry, as well as individual dairymen. Not only does the favorable publicity generated by the program in the general press help bring modern farm practices to the attention of urban people, farmers use the distinction to promote their own operation or seek and hire farm labor.

Paul Nichols, the secretary for the Pennsylvania program, said applications may be sent to him any time after January 1, 1994. Deadline for applications is April 15. Judging is completed in May and is based on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds, and surroundings. The states are divided into districts and a local committee oversees the program in each district.

A team of judges designated by the local committee visits each farm and uses a score sheet to rate each farm. In Pennsylvania, in addition to this team of judges, the sanitarian for the farm's cooperative or dealer-handler is asked to be part of the judging process.

"One of the things I always tell people is that even though they may not now have the most fancy place, they can work toward the principles of the Dairy of Distinction program," Nichols said. "By doing this, they work toward a goal that encourages consumers to use more dairy products."

Winners receive a colorful, 18x24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to be placed at the entrance to the farmstead. In addition, as in past years, an 11x14-inch color portrait of the farm will be given by Lancaster Farming to each winning farm in the Pennsylvania program.

"As a dairy farmer, you work hard all year long, taking care of your farm," said Helen Fountain, program executive secretary. "In addition to managing your herd, there are lawns to mow, flowers to plant, and overall maintenance to keep farm buildings looking great. You deserve to be recognized for all the hard work, dedication and pride you put into your farmstead.

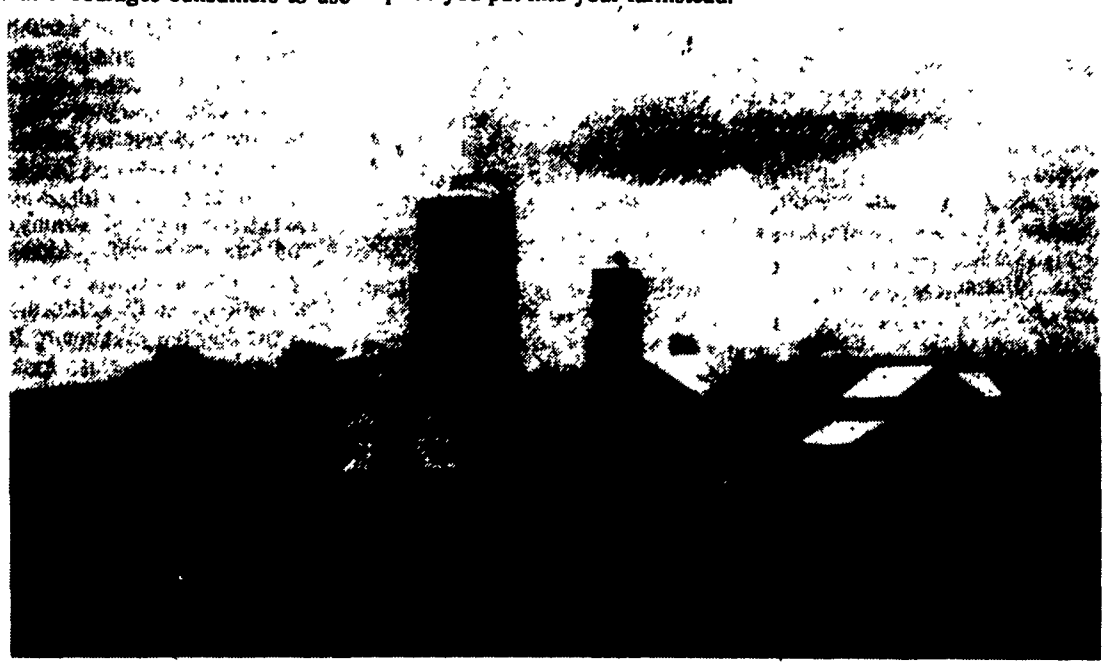
"It's time you and your farm received some recognition for your hard work. The coveted Dairy of Distinction award will give you that recognition, In addition your attractive farm will enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk, thereby stimulating milk sales and encourage public support for the dairy industry."

Active dairy farms in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania are eligible to apply for the award. Criteria for Dairy of Distinction awards include: clean and attractively finished buildings; neat landscaping, ditches, roads and lands; and well-maintained fences. Cleanliness of animals, barnyard, feed areas, as well as manure management, are also taken into consideration.

Applications are available from each state's program secretary or local cooperative extension. In

New York, contact Carol Weddle, New York Holstein Assn., 957 Mitchell St., Box 190, Ithica, N.Y. 14851. In New Jersey, contact Angust Knispel, RD 1, Box 325, Pittstown, NJ 08867.

In Pennsylvania, you may contact Paul Nichols, American Dairy Association/Dairy Council, Tower Business Building, 239 Schuyler Ave., Kingston, PA 18704.



The North View Farm of the Calvin and Mary Will family in Somerset County is an example of the farms that were designated Dairy of Distinction last year. You are invited to use the application to have your farm named in 1994.

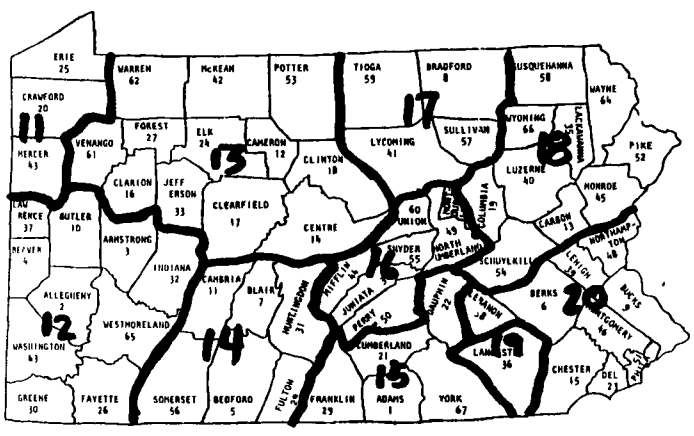
Dairy of Distinction
Dairy Farm Beautification Program



Pennsylvania Districts

Pennsylvania is divided into ten districts. Approximately 10 Dairy of Distinction awards will be made each year in each district. There is no cost to the applicant.

Pennsylvania area chairpersons are: District 11, Leslie Firth; District 12, Wally Jackson; District 13, Susan DuJour; District 14, Janet and David Hileman; District 15, Norman Coons; District 16, Robert and Bernice Gable; District 17, Larue Thomas; District 18, Allen Roszel; District 19, Lisa Risser; and District 20, Russell Rooks.

As a winner, you will receive a certificate and a nice metal sign to install at the end of your farm lane. In addition, LANCASTER FARMING will present a color farm portrait print to each of this year's winners in Pennsylvania. If your farm is a winner, be sure you or your district committee takes a color photograph of your farm and sends the negative and proof to LANCASTER FARMING in time for the awards ceremony.

NUTRITION LABELING — ITS TIME HAS COME

William R. Henning
Associate Professor
Animal Science

Meat processors around the country are furiously accumulating nutrition information about their products.

Food Safety and Inspection System (FSIS) officials in the standards and labeling branch are swamped. Label and packaging companies are doing a booming business.

What's at the bottom of all this activity?

By July 6, processed meat and poultry products must comply with provisions of the recently enacted Nutrition and Labeling Act, which require that processed meat and poultry products display labels with specific nutritional information. Companies may choose to use existing "database" information rather than compiling an expensive laboratory analyses for each product. While that would save processors millions of dollars, they must provide records and current analyses if requested.

There has been some controversy about whether the labels will be effective or an unnecessary, costly government mandate. But the bottom line is that consumers want nutritional information about the products they purchase. Such labeling should make diet planning easier for those who are genuinely concerned about the health and well-being of their families.

For instance, if a 2,000-calorie diet is consumed, nutritional guidelines say that no more than 30 percent of these calories should come from fat. Those 600 calories would be derived from 65 grams of fat in the product. Information on the new food labels make it relatively simple to count grams of fat. What information will the labels include?

The goal of the legislation is to "clear up consumer confusion and encourage product innovation to reflect new knowledge in nutritional science about nutrients that are of public concern." Some of the terms you need to know to read these new labels include:

• Reference daily intake (RDI) replaces RDA (recommended daily allowance). The values currently are the same, but revisions are under way.

• Daily reference values (DRV) provide desirable dietary goals for total fat, saturated fat, cholesterol, potassium, sodium, total carbohydrate, protein, and dietary fiber.

• Daily values (DV) are derived from RDIs and DRVs and provide the information upon which "percentage information on the nutrition label is based." Values are based on a 2,000-calorie daily intake. This may be about right for most consumers, but others must understand that their specific values may differ from the standard values.

• Reference amount. These are the "amounts customarily consumed per eating occasion" (serving size). Although there is a difference between serving size and reference amount, it was determined that servings must be to the nearest whole piece, such as a slice, link, or patty (in the case of meat products).

While this information should be helpful, consumers must remember to read carefully. For instance, the Reference Amount for typical frankfurters — commonly 16 franks to the pound — is 56 grams (2 ounces), since the serving size is two franks. However, if the franks are larger (for example, "stadium franks," which are typically 10 to the pound), the serving size is only one frank, and the Reference Amount becomes 45 grams.

A total of 14 nutrients are required on the standard nutritional label. These are to be listed as normal units (i.e., calories, grams, or milligrams) as appropriate, and as a percent of the Daily Value (%DV): total calories, calories from fat, total fat, saturated fat, cholesterol, sodium, total carbohydrates, dietary fiber, sugars, protein, vitamin A, vitamin C, calcium, and iron. The declaration of other nutrients — such as soluble fiber, potassium, and other essential vitamins and minerals — is optional.

Exemptions From Labeling Regulations

Because the USDA has decided that labeling would provide a financial burden for small businesses, meat processing firms with an annual production of less than 100,000 pounds of product and 500 or fewer employees are exempt from the new labeling regulation (so long as their product labels bear no nutritional claims or nutrition information).

Other labeling exemptions include meat products that are intended for further processing, are sold to restaurants, weigh one-half ounce or less, are intended for export, are packaged in ready-to-at portions or portioned at retail establishments, are multi-ingredient, or are processed at retail establishments.

Although raw, single-ingredient meat, fish, and poultry products are also exempted, the USDA is strongly encouraging retail establishments to voluntarily provide point-of-purchase nutrition information on at least 45 of the most common retail products.

Some things to remember about meat labels:

• Fat and cholesterol are the least understood nutrients. Most consumers have little idea about the relationship between dietary cholesterol and serum cholesterol, and many are confused about "true but misleading" claims. While the new labeling may help some consumers identify the hidden sources of fat in their diets, it may be misunderstood by others.

• Single-food items should not be classified as "good" or "bad." Because meats contain only fat and protein, a relatively high amount of calories will necessarily come from fat. Remember, the guideline recommends that no more than 30 percent of total calories consumed daily should come from fat. Some of the foods you eat will have less fat and others will have more, but overall, if you consume 2,000 calories, no more than 30 percent of these calories should come from fat (equivalent to 65 grams). Labeling will make it easier to plan for these differences.

• Because FDA wants to standardize all foods, some meat products will be forced to change common references to absolute amounts for certain nutrients. That means that ground beef currently labeled "extra-lean" (10 percent fat) will simply be labeled "lean." To earn the extra-lean label, the fat must be reduced to less than 5 percent.

• To benefit consumers and enhance the perception of their products, some processors are lowering both fat and sodium.

There is no question that many consumers want nutritional information. But will the complex label format and changes from more traditional terminology provide that information or just confuse consumers? Only time will tell.

NC+ Hybrids Works To Find Corn Borer Resistance

HASTINGS, Neb. — NC+ Hybrids researchers are examining both conventional and biotechnological ways of establishing resistance to European corn borer, according to Lonnie Hester, NC+ corn research manager.

"While we continue to do screening and testing for natural corn borer resistance, we are also working with companies that are involved in gene transfer to accomplish corn borer resistance," Hester said.

Hester said that biotech firms working to transfer the Bt gene from Bacillus thuringiensis that produces the toxic effect against corn borer into the corn plant, have a good chance of success.

"We maintain testing and working relationships with as many of those companies as possible," Hester said. "And we expect the material to be available to us at some point. We will then have to breed the outside material into our lines. That's why we are researching which of our lines have the best natural resistance."

Two studies under way at the NC+ Reasearch Center near Hastings, Neb., are aimed at identifying hybrids with natural resistance. The studies are in the third year. In addition to their research application, the studies also are designed to provide agronomic information to NC+ sales staff and customers, according to Doug Volkmer, corn breeder and project coordinator.

Plenty of Good Food

First Saturday of April Marshall Machinery holds an Inventory Reduction Sale

This year with all the snow and ice, our equipment is buried and frozen in the ground. It would take an enormous number of man hours to get the equipment dug out of the snow and get set up for the sale. We would damage or destroy much of the equipment trying to free it up to move it. We have therefore,

CANCELLED OUR SALE FOR THIS YEAR

Mid-View Farms

Wayne & Georgia Tucker, along with their son Stan, operate Mid-View Farm near Jefferson Maryland. Stan's wife, Sandy and their children Justin and Rebecca also help with the daily chores. Presently they are farming in excess of 300 acres to provide high quality alfalfa haylage, corn silage, and high moisture corn for the dairy herd.

The herd consists of 135 Holsteins that are presently producing a rolling D.H.I.A. average of 21,076 pounds of milk. 801 pounds of fat (3.8%), and 670 pounds of protein (3.2%). The Tuckers maintain a 12.8 month calving interval and the average age of their first calf heifers is 24.8 months.

The milking herd is fed a TMR ration using corn silage, alfalfa haylage, high moisture corn, whole cottonseed, and Purina's Hi E milking concentrate. A top dress of Hi-E B 31% and high moisture corn is fed to the higher producing cows.

Dry Cows and the younger livestock are also fed Purina products. Calf Startena, Nurse Chow 100 Hi-E, Animax, and Prepare Concentrate are all being fed on the farm.

The TMR forage ingredients are routinely tested to maintain adequate nutrient and dry matter intake. The herd is scored for body condition periodically and the data is reviewed in evaluating ration changes.

H. C. Summers, Inc. and Purina Mills Inc. would like to thank the Tucker family for their continued patronage and wish them the very best in the future.
